GM Gives 11-Cent Rise In 2-Year UAW Pact Geared to Living Cost

Offer to 225,000 Workers to Avert Strike Viewed as Industry Pattern

Detroit, May 25 (AP).—General Motors Corp. hitched the wages of its 225,000 employes to the Nation's cost of living today in a two-year pact with the CIO United Auto Workers.

The biggest firm of its kind in the world gave a flat 11-cent-an-hour wage boost to avert a strike set for Friday. This will be adjusted later to the cost of living.

GM did not reveal whether the wage boost would lead to another increase in its car prices.

This third round of postwar wage increases set a pattern for the one million-man auto industry. There were indications that the formula might find favor also in other large industries in the United States.

General Motors offered the same terms to its 40,000 employes who are members of the CIO United Electrical Workers. They were studying the proposal.

$75,000,000 on Payroll

General Motors called its sliding wage scale "the new approach to the living cost problem." Officials said it would add about 75 million dollars a year to the payroll. It will boost the average wage to about $1.61 an hour.

The UAW-CIO said that, if the rest of the industry follows the pattern, it would put an extra 220 million dollars a year in the pockets of the Nation's auto workers.

The UAW-CIO felt General Motors wasn't as generous as it might have been. However, union leaders hailed the agreement as proof that the company accepted "the principle that prices and profits are a concern of labor."

"This is progress," declared the big union.

Acting President Emil Mazey of the UAW-CIO predicted that the GM formula would bring a quick end to a 14-day strike of 75,000 Chrysler Corp. workers.

Chrysler Parley On

Chrysler is scheduled to reopen negotiations with the union Wednesday. It's best offer was six cents an hour made before the employes walked out May 12. The company later withdrew it.

The UAW-CIO demanded 25 cents an hour from GM, and 30 cents from Chrysler and Ford. In 1946 they got 18 to 18½ cents, and in 1947 15 cents.

Ford has asked the UAW-CIO to accept a pay cut. However, negotiations have not begun yet.

Here's how the new General Motors formula works:

As of May 29, wages go up 11 cents an hour. That boosts the average from $1.50 to $1.61 an hour.

Next September 1, and each quarter of a year thereafter, the two sides take a look at the consumer price index put out by the

Until August Indictment

Realty Board Held Fee Cuts Unethical, 'Trust' Trial Told

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

The Washington Real Estate Board, prior to its indictment last August on brokerage fee-rigging charges, regarded rate-cutting as "unethical," it was brought out yesterday in District Court.

The local board and the National Association of Real Estate Boards are standing trial before Associate Justice Edward M. Curran charged with antitrust-law violation in conspiring to fix fees.

Charles J. Rush, executive secretary of the Washington board, testified under questioning by Justice Department Prosecutor Victor H. Kramer that the board had opposed slicing fees below standards recommended by the group.

The rules against fee-cutting were "modified," he said, "following the indictment."

This last phase brought Defense Attorney William E. Leahy to his feet with an objection and it was ordered stricken. Rush explained "the former rules provided it was not ethical to solicit business in normal instances" at cut-rate. He said that "in many instances the situation was not normal," citing mass projects such as veterans' housing developments for which "special rates" were not considered against board standards.

Cross-questioning the witness, Leahy brought out figures to show that the District had issued 4361 real estate licenses to firms and individuals as of 1947.

"Of that number doing real estate business in the District, how many belong to the board?" Leahy asked pointedly.

"About 450," Rush answered.

Earlier the secretary testified the board's standard rate schedule had been republished at different times with "modifications and clarifications."

Attempting to link the national association and the local board, Kramer introduced a 1941 letter to Rush signed by Boyd T. Barnard, chairman of the national group's committee on rates, rules and customs.

Inclosed in the letter were guides showing rates recommended by the national body. The letter said the national association was interested in finding if member boards could agree on basic procedures as suggested in the guide.

Nationalize Railroads, Urge Unions

Leaders Demand Action or Right To Strike for Increased Wages

By Robert E. Nichols

Leaders of 21 railway unions, representing more than 1,250,000 workers, demanded last night that the Government nationalize the railroads or else permit strikes for higher wages.

The Railway Labor Executives Association voted unanimously in support of a resolution demanding that:

1. The Government "assume the full responsibilities" of operating the railroads, in addition to operating them legally as has been the case since May 10, when the Army took control to avert a strike.
2. The Government "take control of the revenues of the railroads as it has already taken control of the employes . . . and proceed to bargain upon wages and working conditions."
3. The Government "begin preparations for the transfer of railroad ownership from private interests to the United States of America."

Engineers Concur

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which is not a member of the association, concurred in the resolution.

At a press conference following a secret meeting here, H. W. Fraser, association president, made it clear that the unions are indifferent whether nationalization is permanent or only temporary—as was the case during World War I, when the Government took ownership of the roads for more than two years.

The resolution was adopted as a result of the breakdown in negotiations between the railroads and three key unions: the Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the Switchmen's Union of North America. The latter is an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

Rail Official's Statement

W. T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads, issued a statement last night saying:

"This action by the Railway Labor Executives' Association is an attempt to divert attention from the fact that the leaders of three railroad unions refused to accept the recommendations of an impartial board named by President Truman to hear all the facts and recommend a settlement fair and just to railroad employes and employers and to the public which pays the bills.

"The railroads still stand ready to put into effect the board's recommendations both as to increases in wages and changes in working rules."

Injunction Fight Promised

President Truman authorized Army seizure of the railroads on May 10 when the three unions made it plain they would strike the next day in a demonstration for higher wages. At present, all trains are operating under direction of the Army and at the order of Associate Justice T. Alan Goldsborough, of United States District Court. The temporary injunction against a strike expires Saturday night.

A. J. Glover, president of the Switchmen, was asked at last night's press conference whether the three would vote for compliance with the U. N. demand that firing cease by 7 p. m. tomorrow (1 p. m., EDT.).

But a United Press dispatch from Amman said the Arab countries did not want to strain relations with the U. N. unnecessarily and might agree to a truce provided it did not prejudice the present "favorable" position of the Arabs

Hopes for Home Rule Fade As House Sidetracks Bill; Foes Use Delaying Tactics

Measure Shelved Indefinitely With Many Major Issues Still Undecided

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

House foes of Washington home rule yesterday slowed work on the plan to the point where leaders gave it only a slim outside chance for a final vote this session.

After six hours of work, the home-rule bill was set aside indefinitely, with no time now in sight for the job to be finished before Congress adjourns.

Sponsors said they had not given up hope that time could be found to complete the bill and send it to the Senate—where the pressure might be even stronger than in the House to bury the bill in the adjournment rush.

Major Battles Remain

The Auchincloss home rule bill weathered every House test yesterday, only to get the possibly permanent tag of "unfinished business." With little more than a third of the bill out of the way, there were major battles yet to come when and if the House resumes work on the measure.

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), leading a touch-and-go fight for passage, said he still has hopes that a day will be found to continue work on the home rule bill.

The bill calls for sweeping reorganization of the District government, and for a limited type of home rule, with elected city council and school board and a nonvoting District delegate in the House. Major District legislation would still have to be approved by Congress and the President.

Former District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), leading the fight against the bill, said he was sure the measure would come to a final vote before the end of the session.

But House leaders were not so sure. For the rest of the week, the home rule bill will give way to national and international affairs—extension of reciprocal trade agreements today, Interior Department appropriations Thursday, tax revision Friday.

Memorial Day weekend will take many members out of town, so there is no session planned Saturday, and only memorial services Monday. Beyond that is the prospect of continuous pressure of legislation leading to the proposed June 19 adjournment date.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), chief drafter of the home rule plan, said he was still hopeful of passage.

On paper, House actions have given the bill a chance for passage, but this record could turn out to be written in vanishing ink.

Bill Nearly Killed

Capitol observers recalled no recent piece of District legislation that had come so close to death so many times and still survived.

This showed in yesterday's down-again up-again vote on the proposal of Representative Frederick C. Smith (R., Ohio) to kill the bill by a technical amendment striking out its enacting clause.

A voice vote saved the bill.

A standing vote 53 to 47 backed up the voice vote decision.

Both were reversed by a teller vote; 80 members marched up the middle aisle of the House to record themselves for Smith's plan, and only 70 showed up to oppose it.

Finally, the teller vote was reversed by a roll call—163 to 182—which rescued the bill and opened it to further debate.

After that test, progress was slowed to a walk by delaying tactics. Chief time-taker on which foes of the bill insisted was a meticulous word-for-word reading of the bill. Such reading is a part of the House order which is frequently skipped. It can be avoided only by unanimous consent. Dirksen several times asked for agreement to dispense with reading lengthy sections of the 180-page measure. All his requests but two met objection. The reading went on.

McMillan said it was not a filibuster. But he commented "so many members did not know what was in the bill that they all wanted

House GOP Got Into Line For Trade Vote

Party Parley Brings Agreement After Objection by Eaton

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A slightly shaken House Republican majority last night was urged to vote down the line for a cutback in the President's reciprocal trade powers despite Democratic hints that it will bring a veto.

GOP leaders summoned a conference of the full House Republican membership after Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) and some other members of the usually well-disciplined majority opposed a "watered-down" trade program.

Following the conference, House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) claimed "overwhelming" GOP support for a shortened one-year extension of the trade program, with Congressional "veto" privileges in some cases.

Near Unanimity Predicted

Halleck said House Republicans may not vote unanimously in today's House tariff showdown, "but we will approach unanimity."

The House Democratic Steering Committee meanwhile voted unanimously for a full three-year extension of the present reciprocal trade program and declared the Republican proposals would deal "a fatal blow to the leadership of the United States in world economic affairs."

Democratic talk of a veto followed Monday's warning by Secretary of State George C. Marshall that it would be better to permit the trade program to expire than to render it unworkable with "crippling" amendments.

Representative Aime J. Forand (D., R. I.), chairman of the House Democratic conference, and Representative Wilbur D. Mills (D., Pa.) told reporters they thought Marshall's statement would mean but one thing—a veto if the bill is passed in its present form.

The politically outnumbered Democrats meanwhile launched a two-way drive to reverse the GOP tariff proposals.

Their first attack will be aimed

Gaming Jury Recalls Blick, Odessa Madre

Vice Squad Chief, Numbers 'Bookie' Quizzed 2d Time

Two witnesses who had testified previously were recalled yesterday for further questioning by the special grand jury investigating Washington's gambling.

Odessa Madre, self-styled numbers "bookie" and a familiar figure in Washington gambling circles for many years, was before the grand jury for an hour and a half yesterday, after being questioned for two hours the day before.

Miss Madre, who has a record of gambling convictions, is rumored to have provided police with gaming information in the past. There was speculation yesterday that she was being questioned about her relations with police.

This speculation was strengthened by the fact that following her appearance before the special jury, Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief, was called in.

He appeared for several hours last Wednesday.

Henry L. Johnson, jr., attorney for Miss Madre, after he had discussed with her the testimony she gave the grand jury behind closed doors, told reporters:

"She has nothing to hide. She answered all questions that they asked her freely and fully."

Johnson said that both he and his client were unable to determine "just what the grand jury is after" from the questions asked.

Blick, who entered the grand jury room with Odessa Madre, had no comment for reporters.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay and his chief assistants, John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray, have participated in all the known sessions of the grand jury, but have made no public comment on the proceedings.

In addition to Lieutenant Blick and Miss Madre, other witnesses known to have appeared before the jury are Albert F. Miller, former holder of an honorary police badge and friend of many police officials, and Charles R. Warde, recently paroled from prison and former cooperator of a fashionable Massachusetts ave. gambling casino.

Lebanon Gives Condition for Release of 41

By the United Press

The little Arab nation of Lebanon served notice on the State Department yesterday that it will release the 41 Americans seized from a Palestine-bound ship only on condition they return directly to the United States.

The State Department said Lowell Pinkerton, U. S. Minister to Lebanon, is asking the interned Americans how they feel about it.

Meanwhile, two New York Democratic Congressmen, Representatives Andrew L. Somers and Abraham J. Multer, introduced a bill calling for suspension of commercial relations with Lebanon.

Lebanese authorities removed the Americans from the American Export Lines ship Marine Carp when it docked at the port of Beirut, Lebanon, last Wednesday. Lebanon contended they were Zionists en route to the Holy Land to enlist in the army of Israel.

The State Department immediately demanded their release. Lebanon's first reply was a flat refusal.

Pinkerton renewed his demand for their release yesterday, but he notified the State Department that Lebanon again refused to let them go without assurances that they will not proceed to Palestine.

The United States also protested an Arab attempt to blockade the Palestine coast, and served notice that American ships are not being ordered out of the restricted waters.

The State Department said this Government cannot recognize the validity of the blockade proclaimed by Egypt and Syria, and that American diplomats in those countries have been instructed to tell them so.

It was not clear whether the "blockade" presented any real danger to American shipping, although there have been unconfirmed reports that Egypt already has mined the waters off Palestine.

Department Press Officer Michael McDermott said he did not know whether the blockade was "in effect." But he emphasized that no official warning is being given here to American ships.

Sales Tax Bill Goes to House Group June 3

Plan to Avoid Rise In Realty Levy Has Many Ifs, Bates Says

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A sales tax bill, designed to eliminate the possibility of a rise in the real estate levy here, will be placed before a special meeting of the House District Committee June 3, it was announced last night.

Effective date of the sales tax would depend on what Congress does about the proposed cost-of-living pay increase for Federal—and District—employes.

The sales tax would—according to Representative George Bates, chairman of the fiscal affairs subcommittee—become effective July 1, should the pay plan be adopted by this Congress, or should the Eightieth Congress fail to enact the wage hike for Civil Service employes, on July 1, 1949.

Legislation along this line, Representative Bates pointed out last night, would remove the necessity of boosting real estate taxes in the District. Bates estimated a 2 per cent sales tax would raise around seven million dollars to eight million dollars a year, equivalent to a 50-cent boost in the property levy.

Bates disclosed he had requested Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West to draw up the sales tax legislation to parallel the 2 per cent tax currently effective in Maryland, where food for home consumption and medicines are exempted from the levy.

The June 3 meeting was called by Committee Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) to assure action on the precarious fiscal situation here, which up to the present has been hanging on all kinds of "iffy" questions.

Bates said the 2 per cent sales tax together with a reduction of $1,600,000 from the House-approved District budget of 101 million dollars, and a reorganization of the District's proposed fiscal structure, would adequately take care of financial problems for the next year.

The cut in the budget would have to be forthcoming from the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Pretty Girl Gives Traffic the Slip; Only Way Out

"I've seen everything now," said the cabbie.

And he just about had.

He was cruising at 14th and F when, opposite the Willard Hotel, he saw a young and pretty girl step out into moving traffic. Before you could say "my goodness" the girl's dress and slip were whipped right off by the torn fender of an old Dodge which was headed south on 14th.

The chivalrous cabbie went through a red light, stopped beside the girl, opened the door, and told her to get in. Which she did do, imploring him "Don't you look."

He took her to an apartment at 4801 Connecticut, where she redressed. Then, not a whit perturbed, she came out again and asked to be driven to the Ward-man Park Hotel.

Inquiry Commission Proposed

Lane Puts Limit of $500,000 For Aid; $2,650,757 Asked

Annapolis, Md., May 25.—Governor Lane informed Maryland legislators here tonight he was willing to allot but $500,000 of the $2,650,757 additional money the State Welfare Department says it needs.

At the same time he proposed creation of a commission to inquire into every phase of welfare operation in Maryland.

The Governor, opening the State's second special session since its last regular biennial General Assembly, in 1947, made no reference to the much discussed "ripper" bill aimed at abolishing the State's Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

Such ripper action, however, was virtually doomed a short time before Lane spoke, when Republicans in caucus voted to oppose the proposed legislation.

"That definitely kills any chance such a bill would have," declared Senate Minority Floor Leader Kimble (R., Allegany), adding that he was "unalterably opposed to correcting conditions by legislating people out of office."

The Governor spoke before a joint session of the legislators, convened at his call to appropriate $2,101,654 for 10 per cent salary increases to slow up a big turnover in State employes.

Because of the salary increases, and other things already projected, the Governor advised the assembly that as it looks now, by the end of 1951 the State will have mighty little left of its current 15 million dollar surplus.

The Department of Public Welfare had laid before the legislative council a proposal for $2,650,757 additional for its work, most of it because of an expected increase in the case load for dependent children.

"I am convinced," the Governor told the joint session of House and Senate, "that the State cannot undertake to participate, as it is requested to do, without now deciding that additional taxes must be imposed upon the people of the State, and that I am unwilling to do."

The special session last November voted an additional $500,000 for welfare. That is all it should do now, Lane insisted.

The Governor said that last week's report of the commission on governmental efficiency and economy—which gave the welfare department a warm pat on the back—was most encouraging. But just the same:

"What gives me great concern is where is the road leading us?

"Where are we headed in terms of the ability of the people of the State to support a public welfare program of the magnitude we have been asked to approve for the fiscal year 1949?"

Therefore, he intends to ask the Legislature to create a commission with full legal authority "to

Education, Minimum Pay Bills Passage Requested by Truman

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday asked for action on Federal aid to education and an increased minimum wage before Congress adjourns June 19.

The Chief Executive conferred for an hour at the White House with Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois and John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, Democratic whips in Congress. Members of the House Committee on Education and Labor also attended.

President Truman asked Democratic leaders to do all in their power to see both measures enacted this session, Lucas told reporters.

Mr. Truman wants the minimum wage raised from 40 cents to 75 cents an hour, Lucas said.

The Federal aid to education bill, sponsored by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), has already passed the Senate but is bottled up in the House Committee on Education and Labor.

Chairman Fred Hartley (R., N. J.) of the Labor Committee has said the bill will not be reported until it is given the green light by the House GOP leadership.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) has made it clear the measure will not get consideration until Congress decides how much must be spent on national defense, so that the status of the Federal budget can be determined.

In Chicago yesterday Martin reiterated that he favored the bill

Israel's Leader Asks Truman To Permit Arms, Supply Loan

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, provisional President of the new Jewish state of Israel, yesterday asked President Truman to do two "major" things for his country—to lift the arms embargo "as soon as possible," and to lend the State 90 to 100 million dollars.

The ailing, 73-year-old chemist, at a press conference following a half-hour meeting with the President, said he was given the impression that:

1. The matter of lifting the embargo is "now under discussion."
2. The plea for a loan was "not in vain."

Weizmann said the President gave him "some sort of hope" that lifting of the embargo might be "achieved in the near future." The United States now bans shipment of military equipment to any part of the Middle East. Israelis claim this makes it difficult for them, because Arabs are able to obtain arms elsewhere.

Dr. Weizmann, here as an official guest of the American Government, sat in a chair in the garden of Blair House as he spoke to reporters. His hands trembled and his voice was low. A nurse hovered in the background.

Despite his illness, which has

Weizmann, as President of New Israel, Sees Dream of a Lifetime Come True

A dreamer with the courage and perseverance of a realist is Dr. Chaim Weizmann, provisional president of the new Jewish state of Israel.

The dreams began in a ghetto near the town of Pinsk in southern Russia, where Weizmann was born 73 years ago. He knew poverty there, for he came of a large family and his father was a lumberman.

But something else made a stronger impression on him, and it was this which turned him to Zionism and the fight that was to extend through more than three decades and two world wars. He learned about restrictions and prejudices which excluded his coreligionists from certain professions and businesses and neighborhoods.

He felt the Jewish people should have a land which they could call their own.

Thus it was that an historic scene was enacted 32 years ago in London—a scene which laid the groundwork for another historic parley. The second scene was enacted yesterday. The place was the White House.

Back in 1916, during World War I, the British were very grateful to Dr. Weizmann, a chemist. He had just developed a synthetic acetone—gravely needed to assure the country an adequate supply of explosives. The Prime Minister, David Lloyd George, summoned the Jewish chemist and asked how he could show his appreciation.

Weizmann said "no" to a title, to a monetary grant, and to other suggested honors. Lloyd George was persistent. At last, Weizmann acquiesced. He said:

"There is only one thing I want—a national home for my people."

Yesterday, with the national homeland a reality, Weizmann asked President Truman to insure its success by lifting the arms embargo and lending the new state a large sum of money to buy equipment and speed up plans for admitting displaced persons.

The years between the two conferences have taken their toll. Like a runner when the race is won, Weizmann is weary. His face is heavily lined, his head is almost bald, his hands tremble.

With him constantly are a nurse and a doctor and when he walks he uses a cane and receives support from aides. Worst of all, his vision is poor, and friends say he is going blind in one eye.

But the frailities of age and the vicissitudes of a full life have not dampened his spirit nor his eloquence. Nor have they dimmed his enthusiasm for his second great love—science.

Even now he is supervising experiments which seek to use the by-products of oranges in the production of synthetic fuel. And his great prize is the new institute of science now being constructed at Rehoboth (Rehobota), in Palestine, a project named for him and made possible by contributions from Jews all over the world.

Weizmann looks more like a poet than a politician, and he has the reserve and sensitiveness of an artist.

Like his striking brunette wife, whom he met in Geneva while she was studying for her medical degree, he dresses well. He speaks many languages fluently, and loves the theater. He is a great patron of the Hebrew National theater, the Habimah, which originated in Russia but was developed in Palestine.

Although no great orator, he is fluent on his favorite topics. He is witty, too, and enjoys being with people.

(Chaim, if spelled as it is pronounced, would read Cha-eem. The ch is pronounced gutturally. The last name is pronounced Vitesmahn, the first syllable rhyming with rights.—Editor's note.)

Jews Charge Arabs Bombing Jerusalem

(From Press Dispatches)

Jewish army headquarters in Tel Aviv, Israel, charged last night that Arab planes were dropping high explosive and incendiary bombs indiscriminately on Jerusalem in the first aerial bombing of the Holy City.

No details of the reported raids were given and they were not mentioned in restricted Jerusalem dispatches.

Israel's own air force opened bombing operations against Syria, with raids on the town of Fiq, about five miles beyond the Palestine frontier, and on the main highway between Lebanon and Trans-Jordan, a Tel Aviv communique said.

In the same area, a Jewish victory was claimed in a fight with Syrian troops at Kfar Harib, on the Syrian side of the frontier. The Jewish troops crossed the border after Arab planes and artillery killed several settlers at Ein Gev, on the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee in Palestine territory.

A United Press Haifa dispatch said British forces were pouring through the port, headed for home, and it was reported their evacuation might be completed by the end of June.

From inside Jerusalem's Old City, an Associated Press correspondent reported four buildings in the old Jewish quarter destroyed in dynamitings. An Arab legion officer said many Jews were believed entombed in the rubble.

No semblance of a cease-fire by either side marked the eighth day of the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion's battle for Jerusalem.

Legion reports claimed Notre Dame Hospice, the center of a week's bitter close-in fighting just outside the Old City's northwest corner, was at last completely cleared of Haganah defenders. They said the Italian Hospital likewise had been seized from the Jews.

These two positions commanded the north and south end of St. Paul's rd., the dividing line between the Arab-held Musrara quarter of modern Jerusalem and the Jewish Mea Shearim quarter.

Poles Block Probe by U. S.

The United States renewed yesterday a complaint that Poland's Communist-led government refuses to cooperate in determining whether some 20,000 persons in Poland are American citizens, as they claim to be.

The State Department said the Warsaw government has been notified formally that the United States wants to wind up activities on a commission on mixed nationality. The group was set up last June to sift the claims.

The commission has made no progress, the department said. Poland has been told through the Warsaw Embassy that from now on the citizenship claims will be handled through regular diplomatic channels.

Poland's refusal to facilitate visits by American officials to persons claiming American citizenship who were held in jail has created a major difficulty. The department said the United States will continue to press vigorously for the right to interview and protect the interests of such persons.

British Officers May Leave Arab Legion

London, May 25 (NYHT).—The British government is "considering" withdrawal of British officers from the Arab Legion now fighting the Jews in Palestine, the Foreign Office said today.

There are about 40 British officers serving in key posts in the Legion.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin sidestepped questions on Palestine in Commons today. He told Winston Churchill, leader of the opposition, that any statement from him today would "be prejudicial" to current Anglo-American negotiations on the problem in Washington and London. At the same time he promised Churchill he would make a statement on the Arab Legion tomorrow when he is scheduled to answer several questions on British aid to the Arab states.

Bevin and Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador, have been in almost constant communication today and part of their discussions at least have concerned the situation in Palestine.

Asked tonight if the government were reviewing Britain's arms shipment treaty commitment to the Arab states as well as the question of the Arab Legion, a Foreign Office spokesman said no.

Finns Unable To Solve Crisis, Reports Say

Helsinki, Finland, May 25 (AP).—The Finnish cabinet met tonight and failed to solve the government crisis, competent sources said.

The ministers will meet again tomorrow and try to bring about a solution to the situation arising from the removal of Communist Interior Minister Yrjo Leino.

A strike wave engineered by Communists as a protest against Leino's removal gathered its greatest momentum today but it was evident it did not spread in the way leftist extremists had anticipated.

Work was resumed today in the ports of Kotka and Jakobstad, and some workers returned to their jobs in the port of Abo.

Striking workers spent the morning going from one working class section to another in Helsinki urging workers to strike. Social Democratic workers stayed on the job, however, and the walkout did not reach the proportions of a general strike.

Fifty-five per cent of the workers stayed on the job in the Helsinki railway shops.

Ninety-one vessels were tied up in Finnish ports waiting to be unloaded, however.

Britain Eases Ration Curbs

London, May 25 (AP).—Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, announced today that clothes rationing will be relaxed soon, and promised British publishers more newsprint for larger issues next year.

Wilson told Commons that on June 7 a ne worder will permit sales of rationed clothing "at half coupon rate at half price." He said a supplemental issue of coupons will be available Wednesday.

The order, he explained, will help stores clear shelves of excess stocks at summer sales.

Wilson said present supplies of newsprint will be maintained. He did not indicate whether there will be a cut of imports from the North American dollar area.

It is the government's ambition, he said, to get to what is called the five-page newspaper as early as possible. Most British newspapers are limited to four pages a day. A "five-page" newspaper would permit publication of four and six-page editions on alternate days.

During the last half of this year, Wilson announced, paper allocations to periodicals will be increased from 3½ to 5 per cent of prewar supplies.

LEADERS MEET—Dr. Chaim Weizmann (right), provisional President of Israel, hands President Harry Truman a Torah, the first five books of the Old Testament, handwritten in Hebrew on a parchment scroll. The two leaders met briefly yesterday to discuss Palestine matters restricted his visit to affairs of as Minister of the ne wstate, is state, the Zionist leader seemed in a gay mood.

Purpose of Funds

The loan funds, Dr. Weizmann said, are needed for certain military and reconstruction supplies. He reported his government contemplates spending part of any loan for "a few tanks, planes, antitank guns and quite a good deal of military tackle."

Much of the money, he said, would be used to provide housing, food and transportation for displaced persons. It is the new state's intention to "bring" them in at the rate of 15,000 a month beginning at once.

"They have been waiting a long time to come from Germany," Dr. Weizmann said.

These people, he said, have been "deprived of everything" and "we've got to rehabilitate them." It is "our duty," he added, to "bring them in in dignity and in honor now that the doors of Palestine are open."

On the matter of the suggested loan, he quoted the Chief Executive as saying, "there is no trouble about that because the Jews pay their debts—which they do."

Question of Envoys

He said the question of exchanging diplomatic representatives was not touched upon "very much." The appointment of Elihu Epstein, head of the Washington office of the Jawish Agency for Palestine, still pending.

Dr. Weizmann said he opened his interview with the President by "expressing regret" over the recent deaths of two Americans in Jerusalem. He said both men were killed "by Arabs."

He said he left with Mr. Truman a letter outlining the problems the new Jewish state is facing, along with a hand-lettered parchment copy of the Torah, the first five books of the Old Testament. Mr. Truman told him he had always wanted a copy of the Torah, he said.

The Zionist leader said he believes some of the Arab countries will heed the United Nations cease-fire order in Palestine. He did not name the countries.

He expressed the opinion that Jerusalem should be internationalized.

British Warn Loan Might Spoil Truce

London, May 25 (AP).—A British Foreign Office spokesman said tonight that for the United States to give Israel a loan "without warning" might jeopardize a possible Arab agreement to cease fire in Palestine.

"It would therefore be regarded here as a most regrettable action," the spokesman said.

Red Accuses Churchill Of Promoting New War

Berlin, May 25 (U.P.).—The Soviet deputy commander of Berlin charged today that Winston Churchill is "directing preparations for a new war."

Soviet Col. Alexj I. Jelisarov made the statement during a four-power deputy commanders' discussion on whether the Churchill-inspired European Union movement should be permitted to have a branch office in Berlin.

Jelisarov vetoed a U. S.-British-French proposal to establish the branch office and, since all four powers must agree on all measures, the city council was informed the organization could not operate in Berlin.

U. S., Britain Push German Setup Plans Despite French Fears of Soviet Reaction

In the face of bitter and strenuous French objections, the United States and Britain pushed ahead yesterday with plans to set up a full-fledged provisional government of western Germany.

The French have argued, apparently without success, that such a move might provoke the Russians into trying to push the western allies out of Berlin, with results that might be catastrophic.

The Americans and British, divided last week over Palestine, are united now in insisting that the French are wrong, and that the plan for Germany must go forward. The least sign of hesitation from the West, they say, might provoke the Russians into strong-arm tactics and make the French nightmares come true.

As a result, the six-nation conference in London was deadlocked yesterday in its efforts to agree on the political development of western Germany.

The disagreement was so sharp that British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin delivered a veiled threat to the French on Monday. He said he would be "reluctant" to have to limit the proposed German government to the American and British zones, thus leaving the French zone out of it.

Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas, the chief American delegate in London, and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American zone commander, are equally determined to announce a timetable of western German self-government without further delay.

The quarrel threatens to embitter the western allies, to poison the atmosphere in which the European recovery program is starting, and to stir dissension from which Russia will benefit in the end.

What the Americans and British want is to announce the convening of a western German constituent assembly to draft a western German constitution starting in September. Delegates to the constituent assembly would be elected in the three western zones.

This would be proof, as the Americans and British see it, that the United States meant what it said in Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith's message to Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow on May 4. The Ambassador said then that American policy toward western Europe "will continue to be vigorously and firmly prosecuted."

Moreover the American and British authorities consider it essential to German economic recovery to set up a full-fledged and fully functioning government there. They see no way of handing over responsibility to the Germans in nonmilitary fields, and of making sure that decisions are carried out, except by setting up an authority that can act.

The French foresee that a western German government would remove one of the western allies' main reasons for staying in Berlin, the headquarters of the four-power Allied Control Commission. They also say they would like more time, so that present tri-zonal barriers can be abolished and the German states or "Laender" be set up in new boundaries.

French fears are heightened by the prospect that American military aid to western Europe would take at least a year to arrive. Congress is unwilling to discuss anything like a military lend-lease plan until the next session in January. The Vandenberg resolution, soon to come before the Senate, will permit a start of negotiations, but any agreements will have to come to Congress next year for approval.

[In London the Big Three representatives have discussed at least twice the danger of a Russian move to force the three powers to abandon Berlin and what they would do about it, the New York Herald Tribune reported last night.

[Authoritative sources reported that Douglas asked whether Britain and France would support the United States with force if the United States felt obliged to use force to prevent a Russian move.

[The British and French representatives declined to commit themselves, pleading that the question was so big that they would have to consult their governments.]

Apart from the issue of the west German government, the western Allies are close to agreement on other important issues in London. Only a narrow gap separates them now on the creation of a seven-power international authority to control and allocate the exports of the Ruhr.

This would give Germany's western neighbors economic control over what used to be the arsenal of Europe. It would achieve one of the state objectives of Allied policy since the end of the war—to use the Ruhr for the benefit of Europe.

The international authority would be set up at the same time as the proposed new government took power—probably early next year.

Committee Votes Plant Reserve Bill

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Legislation to create a "national industrial reserve" of Government-owned surplus war plants was approved yesterday by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Under the measure, some 100 boarded-up and rusting factories, which have had "for sale or rent" signs on them since the war end, would be renovated and maintained for a future emergency.

Officials put a three-billion-dollar value on the plants and another 150 factories that also will form part of the war reserve but will be leased, operated by the Government or sold with a recapture clause.

New Threat Built Up

Meanwhile, opponents of the draft bill and pressure of floor business built up a new threat to passage of the controversial measure before adjournment.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the bill would not come up for Senate debate before June 1. Previously, he had hoped to get it before the Senate late this week.

The House bill remained before the Rules Committee with no action in sight. Two North Carolina Congressmen—John H. Folger and Graham A. Barden—testified against the measure, declaring that higher Army pay would make selective service unnecessary.

Hearings will continue this afternoon, with at least 10 more opposing House members scheduled to be heard.

35 Million for Year

Under the "national industrial reserve" bill, 35 million dollars would be spent next year in rehabilitating 60 plants.

An almost identical bill is awaiting House action. Leaders forecast approval of the plan before adjournment.

Another measure voted by the Senate committee yesterday may run into trouble. Designed to protect American codes and code-breaking methods from public disclosure, it is modified considerably from a bill with the same objective killed during the last Congress.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) said the new version amply protects the freedom of the press. The earlier bill would have imposed fines and jail penalties on anyone publishing information that originally had been transmitted in coded messages by the armed forces.

Chief purpose of the bill, according to its Navy Department sponsors, is to prevent former Government employes and former service men from giving away cryptographic secrets.

They say they want to prevent another "American Black Chamber" revelation of code secrets. A book by that title published in 1931 by Herbert O. Yardley, former Government cipher expert, disclosed many such secrets, Navy officials said.

Representative Folger told the House Rules Committee that approval of Representative Leo Allen's bonus-for-volunteers substitute for the draft, plus more "democracy" in the Army, would make selective service unnecessary.

Witnesses Favor Bill

The Rules Committee also heard witnesses favoring adoption of a 207-million-dollar housing bill which includes the controversial Naval Academy airfield.

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), sponsor of the measure, rejected a proposal from Chairman Leo Allen and Representative Forest A. Harness (R., Ind.) that he drop the Annapolis project and authority for a chapel at the Bethesda, Md. hospital from the bill. They declared they would approve the measure without these items.

Representative Lansdale G. Sasser (D., Md.) also supported the Annapolis airfield. He declared that an "extremely influential, well-financed lobby" was opposing the project by "misleading propaganda." Bates criticized the opponents as "some summer residents" of the area "who put their needs and happiness over the needs of the country."

"Solved Problems"

In another defense development, Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, retiring chief of the Air Force, told members of the National Press Club that the USAF already has solved the problems of long-range bombing missions across the polar regions.

Looking into the future, he predicted that guided missiles and long-range rockets always "will be an auxiliary to air power."

"I do not believe the brain in the air ever will be replaced by the brain on the ground," he added.

3-6-Billion Bill Predicted for Europe Arms

By The Associated Press

Senator George (D., Ga.) predicted yesterday that Congress would be asked early next year to spend between three and six billion dollars to help rearm European nations opposing communism.

George told a reporter the Truman Administration had promised the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that — barring something unforeseen—it would not ask for such funds until the Eighty-first Congress meets.

"It depends on who is elected President and how far he wants to press the matter," George said, "but I shall be surprised if Congress isn't asked to provide anywhere from three to six billion dollars for rearming western Europe.

"It will be an armaments Marshall plan. And it is going to be costly, though it might be spread out over a period of two or three years," he continued.

The Senator said that among other things the United States may be asked to help pay for modernizing the British navy and for boosting its air force.

George said it is his understanding that if the Senate approves the regional defense resolution offered by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), this will be the signal for western European nations to get together on their arms needs.

Truman Expresses Confidence in Virden Who Quit Because of Daughter's Tass Job

President Truman yesterday expressed complete confidence in the loyalty of John C. Virden, top Commerce Department employe who resigned after it was disclosed that his 22-year-old daughter is working for Tass, Russian news agency.

In a letter to Virden, the President attributed the attack on the Cleveland industrialist through his daughter to politics. Last week Representative Fred Crawford (R., Mich.) asked Secretary of Commerce Sawyer to drop Virden as head of the department's office of industry cooperation because of the daughter's employment.

Virden promptly resigned although he said he had "completely" broken with the daughter, Euphemia, when she started working for Tass last January.

Meanwhile, on both sides of Congress the question of what to do about Communists was in the forefront of the news.

1. The Senate Judiciary Committee scheduled quick three-day hearings starting Thursday on the Mundt-Nixon Communist-control bill which passed the House last week by a 319 to 58 vote. Rapidity of the hearings, however, apparently does not mean the bill will gain a place on the crowded Senate schedule before the June 19 adjournment date.

2. A House Foreign Affairs subcommittee issued, mainly for reference use, a "Who's Who" of international Communists in the Eastern Hemisphere, with the exception of Russia. Highly significant was the number who had received direct indoctrination in Moscow. Selecting one country at random, the biographies showed that seven out of 12 top Communists in Greece had received Moscow training.

Chairman Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee, announced that supporters of the Mundt-Nixon bill will be heard Thursday, and opponents on Friday and Saturday.

Opinions to Be Sought

Wiley said the committee will also call on some of the Nation's foremost legal authorities for the opinions on the constitutionality of the act.

The committee, many of whose members are lawyers, met yesterday and discussed the bill without reaching any conclusions.

Recently Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York expressed doubts of the constitutionality of the measure. Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) chairman of the Senate Majority Policy Committee, has said the measure must be studied very carefully.

The measure does not legally outlaw the Communist Party. It does establish penalties of 10 years in jail and/or a $10,000 fine for leading any foreign-controlled organization seeking to set up a totalitarian dictatorship in this country. The bill specifically provides that the Communist Party is a foreign dominated organization of totalitarian character.

Registration Required

The Communist Party and all its fronts would be required to register their members with the Department of Justice.

The House Foreign Affairs document, issued by the national and international movements subcommittee headed by Mrs. Frances P. Bolton (R., Ohio) shows a striking similarity in the lives of 506 of the world's top Communist leaders.

Of them the report said:

"These are the 'professional revolutionaries' whom Lenin called into being in his own image and to whom he passed the torch of world revolution. They are not quite 500 Molotoves, for the qualities of a Molotov are watered down in any larger group.

"But few groups in all history have ever conformed so closely to a pattern."

The text of President Truman's letter to Virden yesterday was:

"Dear Mr. Virden:

"I cannot allow an unfortunate controversy to go further without associating myself with those who have already commended you for the way in which you have discharged important duties under trying circumstances.

"It is regrettable that the services of a faithful and efficient public servant should be sacrificed to political expediency. I believe in you. My faith in your loyalty is unshaken.

"Very sincerely yours.

HARRY S. TRUMAN."

Sawyer wrote Crawford last Friday he was asking Virden to stay on the job. He added, however, he would accept the resignation if Virden "feels that he does not wish to have his personal family affairs the subject of further public discussion."

Virden was reported by associates today to be standing by his decision to quit as soon as a successor learns the work.

Crawford later termed the Virden case "tragic" but he said Federal officials "having known Red relatives will save themselves and their Government embarrassment by removing themselves."

Alumni to Hear Lewis

Dr. Frank Bell Lewis, president of Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va., will be guest speaker at a dinner given by the Washington Chapter of the Mary Baldwin Alumni Association, to be held today at 6:30 p. m. at the Kenesaw Apartments, 3060 16th st. n.w.

Bill Restores Ill Officers' Pay

A bill which would authorize the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force to recall sick and injured wartime officers to paid active duty during hospitalization and while being considered for retirement, was introduced simultaneously yesterday in the Senate and House.

Pushed by the Reserve Officers Association, the measure is designed to offset a recent decision by Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren that nearly 4000 such officers had been issued their pay and allowances illegally in the last two or three years while patients in Army hospitals throughout the country.

The comptroller general's action stopped payments of this nature on May 1 and the ROA announced it would "carry the issue to Congress" when the situation was disclosed.

National Guard and Army of the United States (AUS) as well as reserve officers of World War II are covered by the proposed legislation. It would be retroactive to August 8, 1946, and legalize payments already made in such cases under the "humane" Army policy previously followed in handling them. Technically, the finance officers making these payments might be held personally responsible for the "unauthorized disbursements" involved.

Army officials said a total of 3980 war-time officers had been recalled to active duty and ordered to hospitals since August 8, 1946, when the policy scuttled by the comptroller general first was instituted.

They insisted, however, that only 236 were patients when the decision was announced on March 12, that this number had been cut to 53 officers on May 1, when the pay cut-off became effective, and that this total would be reduced to 10 patients by June 1.

ECA to Protect U. S. Business in Argentina

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Argentine will not get a dollar of American ECA funds unless it eases its restrictions on American businesses there.

This was promised to the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday by ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman, who plans to spend more than a billion dollars in Latin America for supplies for western Europe.

Committee Chairman H. Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) was aroused over the Argentine Government's control over export and import trade, and suggested writing restrictions into the coming ECA appropriation bill to deal with it.

Calls Matter Serious

"This Argentine thing is a very serious matter that demands your attention," he told Hoffman. "We have some 240 American businesses down there, with an investment that totals 350 million dollars. They are forbidden to send home their profits in dollars, and they are forbidden to import the goods they need."

He asked Hoffman whether the coming bills should insist on consolidated buying in Argentina for all the 16 Marshall Plan countries and western Germany.

Hoffman and his assistant, Richard M. Bissell, jr., answered that negotiations with Argentina had not been opened and that no goods would be bought from Argentina or any other Latin American country until such negotiations were completed.

"I agree," said Hoffman, "that any dollars we furnish Argentina shall take account of the needs of American businesses there." But he pleaded against writing any such restriction into the bill, saying that it would be "embarrassing" and unnecessary.

Won't Aid British Military

Bridges asked him to look into reports that Britain was giving aid to the Arab countries as the direct or indirect result of getting ECA funds. Hoffman answered that ECA was financing specific projects, that "nothing we send to England can possibly fall into the category of military credits," and that every request to ECA is judged by the single yardstick "of whether it will or will not contribute to recovery."

After a whispered consultation with Bridges, he promised the committee he would look into the matter and report on it later.

Another promise Hoffman made yesterday was to follow up the uses of ECA money in western Germany "as energetically as in any other country." Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) commended him for saying that Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander there, would have to come to ECA with his requests just as if he were the spokesman of an independent government.

$134,395,169 Committed

Hoffman told the committee he had already alloted 908 million dollars in grants and 278 million in loans to western Europe, but that these were far from being definite commitments. Actual ECA commitments totaled $134,395,167, he said, and no money was actually committed in any case until a specific transaction had been approved.

In the afternoon the committee heard encouraging reports from American commercial attaches in Rome and London. Frederic Bartlett, the Attache in the London Embassy, said the British were making "outstanding" efforts to push their exports and control their imports, and expressed the hope that the British would reach their 1948 target of exporting 11 million tons of coal.

He thought there was a good chance of Britain balancing its trade with the Western Hemisphere in the next four or five years if the European Recovery Program as a whole develops as planned.

Zellerbach Appointed

One of the key European posts in ECA was filled yesterday by the appointment of James D. Zellerbach, president of the Crown-Zellerbach Paper Co., of San Francisco, as chief of the special mission to Italy.

Zellerbach is United States employer delegate to the conference of the International Labor Organization, which meets in San Francisco next month, and is vice-chairman of the ILO governing body.

It will be his job to see that the new Italian government makes effective use of the 703 million dollars of American aid tentatively allocated for the first year of ECA operations.

GM Wage Increase May Set Formula

By the Associated Press

Government labor officials welcomed the General Motors "cost-of-living" wage boost yesterday as a possible strike-averting pay formula for most industry in 1948.

Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said he hoped the two-year pact between General Motors and the CIO Auto Workers will "make a substantial contribution to industrial peace."

Ching, whose job is to help employers and unions settle disputes without strikes, told newsmen:

"This doubtless will establish a basis for settlement of a number of other wage disputes now pending."

But it remained to be seen if the 11-cent GM raise will serve as a pattern for such key industries as coal, electrical manufacturing, telephones, maritime and stevedoring—now all in the process of negotiating new contracts.

The GM agreement has these important factors:

1. It is the first major concession in labor's drive for a third round of postwar wage increases.

2. It provides a two-year, instead of the usual one-year, settlement—thus promising labor peace for two years to GM, and to other auto manufacturers if they make the same deal, at a time when demand for cars is at a peak.

3. It accepted, for the first time in such a large industry, the principle of gearing wages to changes in the cost of living.

Many Government labor experts long have privately plugged for such an "escalator clause," in labor contracts. They argue that (a) it gives workers more money when living costs go up, (b) it gives employers the incentive of lower wage costs if they help bring prices down.

Labor Law Repeal Asked

By The Associated Press

An American Federation of Labor official yesterday urged Congress to repeal the Taft-Hartley law right away.

"It has now become abundantly clear that the act does not contain any possible benefits for labor," said Richard J. Gray, president of the AFL's building and construction trades department.

Gray testified before the Senate-House watchdog committee set up to study operation of the law. The group is reviewing suggested changes, but few if any are expected this session.

Gray described as "the most vicious" sections of the law those provisions dealing with picketing, making secondary boycotts illegal and permitting use of injunctions in some labor disputes.

The one proposed amendment given a chance for action this session would abolish a requirement that a majority of employes vote for a union shop before one can be set up. Under a union shop, the employer can hire anyone he chooses, but workers must join the union later, usually within 30 days.

Nationalize Rails, Say Unions

Leaders of 21 railroad unions demanded last night that Government take over railways or permit strikes for higher wages. Standing are Alfred J. Glover, head of Switchmen's Union and Alvanley Johnston, Chief of Locomotive Engineers. Seated (left to right) are: David B. Robertson, representing Firemen and Enginemen; H. W. Fraser, chairman of Railway Executive Association and A. E. Lyon, executive secretary of the Railway Executive Ass'n unions plan to fight the injunction at a hearing Friday morning.

"Damn right we're going to fight it," he asserted. "Our lawyers will be there."

On the question of nationalization, Glover said: "If the Government is going to coerce us—and prevent us from striking—they should coerce management, too. We're getting a rotten deal."

David B. Robertson, president of the Firemen, interrupted, saying that he did not think "a Nation-wide strike does anybody any good—but what else can we do to get someone to come over to our camp and listen to our side of the argument?"

The union leaders—Glover, Robertson, Fraser and Alvanley Johnston, of the Engineers—all indicated they preferred taking a chance on letting Congress settle their wage grievance rather than submit the matter to compulsory arbitration.

"What can a group of three men know about railway working problems," Glover demanded. He pointed out that two fact-finding boards of three men each had been set up to investigate the present dispute. "Both came up with different answers," he said. "The first gave us a better deal than the second. Why should we accept the last findings because management was unwilling to accept the first?"

These men expressed confidence that, should the Government take full control of the railroads, the unions still would be able to bargain collectively and—if necessary—strike. They pointed out that the International Labor Organization of the United Nations has specified that workers on nationalized railways should have the right to strike. Fraser, who is also president of the Order of Railway Conductors, added, "and the United States is a member."

At present, the private owners of the railways continue to collect and disburse all funds despite the Government operation.

The three unions involved in the wage dispute are asking a 30 per cent wage increase, or $3 a day guaranteed increase, plus a number of changes in working rules. The companies and the President's emergency fact-finding board have offered $1.24 a day increase and "some" changes in working rules.

The resolution last night charged the Government with placing itself "on the side of the railroads" and of acting as "a strike-breaking agency."

As long as the Government maintains control and the court extends the "no-strike" injunction, the workers—numbering about 200,000—are obliged to work at wages prevailing on May 10.

Labor Group Hears Ewing

Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing yesterday called on organized labor to continue its fight for conservation of America's "human resources."

"Your job . . . is not done," he told more than 400 delegates attending a convention of the Maryland-District of Columbia Federation of Labor, in the Statler Hotel.

The FSA chief pointed out that "in spite of some temporary road blocks, a new unity seems to be crystallizing in support of human welfare." This, he declared, is "a hopeful sign . . . but as labor so well knows, this hope will remain merely a possibility, an unrealized potential, unless we implement it with action."

Labor's interest in health, education and security measures has been "heightened by the increased cost of living," which has made it "increasingly difficult" to obtain adequate quantities of these needs, he said.

Among those nominated for the vice presidential posts—there are six—were three Washingtonians. They are: Clement Preller, president of the Central Labor Union; Charles McClosky, president of Bakery Workers Local 118, and Charles Hill, business agent for Hotel and Restaurant Workers Local 80. Both Preller and McClosky are incumbents.

Unopposed for treasurer is the incumbent, Robert Lester, president of the teamsters joint council here. Frank Coleman, secretary of the CLU, and long-time secretary of the Maryland-D. C. Federation, also faces no opposition for reelection.

A banquet is set for 7 p. m. today.

Reception for French

The French Protestant Church of Washington will give a reception for the Rev. Hugues de Cabrol, head chaplain of the French army, at 5:30 p. m. today at St. John's Church parish hall, 819 16th st. nw. French living in Washington have been invited.

Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics.

If this shows that living costs have gone up, then the union automatically gets another wage boost at the rate of one cent per hour for every 1.14 points of the rise. There is no limit on this wage boost. It goes up as high as the index.

If the cost of living goes down, then the employes take a cut of 1 cent for every 1.14 points the index drops. But in no case can the corporation reduce wages more than five cents an hour between now and 1950.

More over, a year from now, wages automatically go up three cents an hour regardless of what happens to the cost of living.

Thus the worst that can happen to a GM worker making $1.50 an hour today is that his wage can be cut from $1.61 to $1.56 next September 1. But it automatically goes back up to $1.59 next May.

The plan will be placed before UAW-CIO representatives from 90 General Motors plants Friday. Union leaders will ask them to approve it. Normally, they get what they ask.

Then it goes before the rank and file with a recommendation for acceptance or rejection. Again, the members usually follow the advice of the men they name to represent them.

If they okay it, it becomes effective as of May 29.

The union shelved demands on GM such as penions, union shop and the like. They did get a dues checkoff, instead of a union shop. That means the company will collect dues for the union from any employe who wants it done that way.

On such things as pensions, the company agreed to go on talking them over with the union. However, even if an agreement is reached, it wouldn't be made a part of the contract before 1950. The union agreed that the contract will not be changed in any way that will cost the corporation extra money before that date.

Court Postpones Hearing on Lewis Case Another Day

By The Associated Press

A one-day postponement was ordered yesterday in next week's court hearing on the Government's plea for an order forcing John L. Lewis to bargain with the Southern Coal Producers Association.

In shifting the hearing from June 1 to June 2, Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough said he wanted the additional time to study a brief which he has asked Lewis and the United Mine Workers to file June 1.

The injunction, if granted, would keep the UMW chief from continuing to snub Joseph E. Moody, president of the association. Last week's talks on a new soft coal contract collapsed over that issue.

Lewis' refusal to bargain with the Southerners could put him in contempt of court for the third time in 18 months.

Texas Democrats To Back Nominee

Dallas, May 25 (AP).—Texas Democrats decided tonight to send delegates to the national convention instructed to fight President Truman's civil rights program but pledged to support the party's nominee for President.

The State convention at Brownwood voted overwhelmingly to bind its 23 presidential electors to vote for the party nominees.

Business moved rapidly toward a conclusion after anti-Truman groups had surged into firm control by election of Wright Morrow of Houston as national committeeman.

Overwhelmingly approved were resolutions opposing President Truman's civil rights program and urging passage of legislation ceding title of tidelands to the States.

The convention pledged its national convention delegates to seek restoration of the rule requiring a two-thirds majority to nominate party candidates at the national convention.

Morrow is anti-Truman. He was opposed on a roll-call vote by Mayor Tom Miller of Austin, supported by the pro-Truman faction.

Texas Republicans already had finished their convention at Corpus Christi, naming a national convention delegation of 33 members composed of 30 supporters of Senator Robert A. Taft, 2 for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and 1 for Harold Stassen.

At Brownwood, a convention committee squelched a proposal for a party referendum for or against Texas presidential electors for civil rights program. This action was a slap at the States' rights party faction with leanings toward the Southern revolt movement.

Morrow was backed by the anti-Truman coalition of organization Democrats, led by Gov. Beauford H. Jester and the States' rights Democrats.

Earlier the Jester-led organization and the State's righters ganged up on the President's supporters to win the first test vote at the convention.

At Corpus Christi the Taft organization, in control from the start, captured 19 of the State's 21 congressional districts, divided another with Stassen, and received three of the State's four delegates at large.

Dewey won the delegate from one congressional district and one delegate at large—George C. Hopkins of Dallas, chairman of the State Republican executive committee.

At stake in the Democratic convention were Texas' 50 delegates to the national convention. The convention also selects 23 electors.

The Democratic test at Brownwood arose from a motion by Woodville Rogers, San Antonio attorney and leader of the Truman forces, that national delegates be selected by congressional district caucuses.

The motion was tabled by a vote of 1047 to 992. The pro-Trumanites lost to a coalition of the faction led by the party organization and Gov. Beauford Jester and the States' rights group. The Jester faction wanted the Texas delegation uninstructed as to nominees, but instructed against Mr. Truman's civil rights program. The States' rights group is all-out against the President.

At the outset of the convention, only a few delegates remained seated when State Executive Committee Chairman Robert W. Calvert called for a standing pledge of loyalty to the party.

After the two actions, the convention broke up into district caucuses to make recommendations for convention officers and national delegates. Under the Rogers proposal, the convention would have been bound by the caucuses' choices of delegates. Under the convention procedure, they were merely recommendations.

Pupil and Teacher Accused by FBI

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

Miss Parrill Brown

Donald N. Brown, 44-year-old Elwood (Ind.) high school teacher accused by the FBI of living in New York State with one of his girl pupils, agreed yesterday to return to Indiana. Brown told a United States commissioner in Syracuse he would arrange for bail in Indiana. The girl in the case, 18-year-old Verna Jean Parrill, held as a material witness, was released in $1000 bail posted by her stepfather, Ross Carpenter. Brown is the father of four children. He pleaded innocent to a charge of violating the Mann Act in transporting the girl across State lines.

make a survey of the entire field of our legislative program."

The total of $2,101,654 would allow a flat 10 per cent boost for employes who have not had any since September 1, 1946. If any increases after that time did not reach 10 per cent, the workers would get enough extra to reach that percentage.

Lane defended the "across-the-board" plan for the wage increase, saying:

"I recommend to you the adoption of the formula laid down for the straight 10 per cent increase as the fairest and most equitable method of providing the salary adjustments needed at this time because of the increased cost of living.

Lane said:

"Thus far, for the 10 months of this current year from July 1, 1947, there has been a turnover of more than 3800 in the 7000 classified positions in the State government and, based on these figures, the employment commissioner has estimated that, unless some steps are taken, it will reach more than 4600, or over 66 per cent, by the year's end on June 30."

With virtual demise of any chance of legislating the Tidewater Fisheries Commission out of operation, it appeared late tonight that the whole business would wind up in an investigation of the commission's troubles by legislative action.

The investigation reportedly would be made by a committee appointed by the Governor, according to a source close to the administration.

Stassen Sees Possible Help From Oregon

Harold E. Stassen, defeated by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the Oregon presidential primary, claimed yesterday that 9 of the 12 convention delegates elected in the same primary may ultimately back him for the Republican nomination.

Stassen told reporters here that although Dewey outdistanced him in the Oregon popular vote, a "majority of our (delegate) candidates won."

Conceding that all 12 are "legally and morally" bound by Oregon law to support Governor Dewey as long as he is a serious contender he added: "But if there does come a break-up, we have a very strong position."

The Minnesotan released a wire he sent to Robert A. Elliott, of Portland, Oreg., his Oregon manager, who was elected delegate-at-large. The telegram advised Elliott and other Stassen supporters on the delegation to comply with the primary results and "vote for Governor Dewey so long as he is in the race."

Under questioning, Stassen reiterated that he would not accept the vice-presidential nomination on a ticket headed by Dewey.

McCarty Leading For Governor in Florida Returns

Miami, Fla., May 25 (U.P.).—Dan McCarty, youthful Fort Pierce citrus grower, took the lead over Fuller Warren of Jacksonville tonight in the first sizable batch of returns from the runoff primary for Governor.

Returns from 622 of the State's 1535 precincts gave McCarty 144,279 votes to 133,976 for Warren. More than half of this count came from populous Hillsborough County, of which Tampa is the seat.

McCarty ran second to Warren by a narrow margin in the original nine-man primary field.

Marshall Says America's National Interest Demands Aid Measures for Children Abroad

New York, May 25 (AP).—Secretary of State Marshall said tonight that America's national interest demands relief measures to prevent children abroad from growing into "a generation of embittered adults."

"If we fail to do our part for the nourishment and care and normal development today of the children with whom our children will have to live tomorrow," he said, "we shall have failed in statesmanship as well as in humanity."

Joint Money Drive

Marshall spoke in support of a joint money drive for American overseas aid and the United Nations appeal for children. The goal is 60 million dollars for general relief and for needs of children in Europe and Asia.

Terming the need "great" and "urgent," Marshall said in his prepared address that "during the past winter at least 30 million children and mothers with infants were in dire need in Europe."

"It is difficult to determine exact needs in China and other Eastern countries, but they are known to be immense," he added.

Speaks at Garden

Speaking at Madison Square Garden, Marshall said some other nations are making heavier contributions than the 40 cents per capita sought from Americans. He said Canada is seeking 10 million dollars or about $1 per capita and that Iceland already has raised more than $4 for every inhabitant.

American overseas aid consists of the principal voluntary agencies concerned with relief.

If all governments meet their commitments, the United Nations international children's emergency fund will have 139 million dollars, but Marshall said this would provide supplemental feeding for only about one in four who need help.

7.7 Pct. Rent Hike Recommended for Apartment House

Average 7.71 per cent rent boosts for 64 units of an apartment house at 1530 16th st. nw., were recommended yesterday by Rent Control Examiner James G. Tyson.

Monthly rents for 1½-room-and-bath apartments would go up from $45 to $48.50, for 3-room-and-bath units from $82.50 to $88.50, Tyson said.

The petition filed by Morris Cafritz Co. sought increases amounting to 9.69 per cent, he revealed. The recommended boost would bring the owners $3492 more a year compared with the $4392 they sought, he said.

Trester Head

Publicity Association Has Election

Leonard W. Trester, director of public policy for the General Outdoor Advertising Co. here, was elected president of the American Public Relations Association last night in its annual meeting at American University.

Selected as vice presidents were Glenn E. Carter, assistant vice president, public relations officer for the Bank of America, Los Angeles, and Edward B. Lyman, assistant to the president of Fordham University.

Other officers are Mrs. Thalia S. Woods, executive secretary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, of Washington, secretary, and Roy T. Berry, vice president and treasurer of the Whiting Elevator Co., of Washington, treasurer.

Prior to the business meeting, delegates heard two panel discussions.

Truman Seeks Bills' Passage

but military expenses had to be considered first.

At a press conference following a speech to members of the Inland Daily Press Association, Martin said action on the measure is being held up for budgetary reasons.

"We must wait until we can see what the finances of the country will be when we get through with military expenses," Martin told newsmen.

Wages Action Seems Unlikely

In neither house is there any indication that minimum wage legislation will be enacted this session. Republicans and some Democrats on both House and Senate Labor Committees give minimum wage legislation no chance at all.

House Republican Leader Charles Halleck (R., Ind.) said no decision had been reached either on the aid to education bill or the minimum wage measure.

"We cannot make final decisions on large spending programs, such as aid to education, until we have a definite and clear picture of the Federal financial situation," Halleck said.

"Our first responsibility is to national defense. We are going to handle first things first."

There have been some tentative proposals on the House side that the Senate-passed three-million-dollar-a-year measure providing grants in aid to the States might but cut back to a lower figure to win approval from the economy-minded GOP.

Opposition in Both Parties

The measure was the first large social welfare measure to pass either House of Congress this session.

Halleck said there is considerable opposition among Democrats as well as Republicans to an increase in minimum wages.

Some Democratic members of the Senate Labor Committee disclosed that they had not been invited to yesterday's White House conference. They said it possibly was because their opposition to the boost was known at the White House.

In Chicago Martin predicted passage of "a housing bill" this session but embattled members of the House and Senate here are far from certain he's right.

The House Banking and Currency Committee, now holding hearings on the long-range TEW housing bill, sent word a few days ago to Taft, sponsor of the Senate-passed measure, that if he wanted the bill passed at all he'd have to agree to forget the public housing feature.

Provides for 500,000 Units

The bill provides for 500,000 government-built housing units for low-income families during the next five years.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) co-author with Taft and Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) of the TEW measure said yesterday that Taft has firmly declined to compromise on the bill.

"It's all or nothing," Ellender said. "If the House wants to kill off all housing including home loans to veterans it's the House's responsibility. The Senate has done its part. We passed the bill."

6 City Firemen Are Promoted, 2 to Captain

Six firemen, including two lieutenants, were promoted in rank yesterday by the Commissioners.

The advancements will become effective June 1 to fill vacancies caused that date by the promotion of Captains W. H. Ronan and G. L. Darling to battalion chief, the Commissioners said.

Lieut. Albert A. Thompson, 42, of No. 3 Truck Co., will become a captain at No. 24 Engine Co. Lieut. Emile J. Daigle, 43, of No. 10 Engine Co., will go to No. 7 Engine Co. as captain. Both will receive $5023 a year in their new posts.

Sergts. Noble G. Teale, 48, of the Division of Apparatus, and William W. Snow, 48, of No. 20 Engine Company, will become $4278-a-year lieutenants at No. 3 Truck Company and No. 10 Engine Company, respectively.

Pvts. Robert H. Kirshmyer, 39, of No. 4 Truck Company, and Benjamin R. Howard, 41, of No. 1 Truck Company, will go to No. 2 Truck Company and No. 20 Engine Company, respectively, as $3872-a-year sergeants.

As a result of their promotion, the last named four men will lose an extra $6.78 a month they now receive for "outstanding efficiency." Beginning June 1, these payments will go to Sergts. George W. Quinn and Herbert D. Grimsley, and Pvts. James E. White and Hollis A. Slagle, the Commissioners ordered.

5 Plead Innocent to Charge Of Selling Misbranded Drugs

Super Cut Rate Drugs, 1110 7th st. n.w., and five men alleged to be proprietors or employes of the firm, were accused by the Food and Drug Administration in Municipal Court yesterday of selling misbranded drugs which were worthless as remedies for venereal disease.

Assistant District Attorney James McKay presented the charges in a 32-page information, which asserted the store sold the supposed remedies over the counter to customers, and that the drugs were dangerous to health.

Judge Walter J. Casey released the five men, who had posted collateral of $50 last week at the Second Precinct, on bond of $500 each, after they pleaded innocent and asked for jury trials.

The defendants are Irving Feld, 33, and his brother, Israel Feld, 30, of 6600 Luzon ave. nw., said to be proprietors of the store; Joseph D. Cabaniss, 66, 1523 S st. nw.; Arlington D. Anderson, 55, 15 Yuma st. nw., and James W. Spriggs, 40, 3611 10th st. nw.

Baptists Told Way to Help World Peace

Milwaukee, May 25 (AP).—Less competitive drum-beating and more melodious playing of the symphony of the Gospel by religious denominations was suggested by a church leader today as a possible aid in world peace talks.

Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg of Syracuse, N. Y., president of the Northern Baptist Convention, told the 5000 persons attending the opening session that "there should be a powerful crusade for world peace on every front."

A $600,000 national scholarship program to help Baptist youth through college will be inaugurated at Friday night's session. Cash awards, ranging from $200 to $2000, will be made to 50 young persons. Nominations were conducted last summer.

A proposal to consider transferring national headquarters from New York City to Columbus, Ohio, was presented by Dr. Raymond Bailey of Columbus.

Guilty Plea Filed By Williams on Numbers Charge

Cleo N. Williams, 30, of 2424 N st. nw., yesterday pleaded guilty in Municipal Court to a charge of possession of numbers slips.

Williams, arrested May 10 in the 3400 block of Connecticut ave., was permitted to remain free in $500 bond while Judge Walter J. Casey referred his case to the probation officer for investigation before sentencing.

In another numbers case, William R. Bailey, 43, of 1013 3d st. ne., waived a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips. Bailey was held for the grand jury under $1500 bond.

Traffic Court Parley Postponed Until June 2

The third annual one-day Traffic Court conference, originally set for today at 10 a. m., at Municipal Court Building, has been postponed until June 2 at the same time, George E. McNeill, District Bar Association president, announced yesterday.

McNeill said the "gripe session," where the public can put traffic officials on the pan, was postponed because some of the officials were out of town. The conference is sponsored by the association's Traffic Court conference committee and the Junior Board of Commerce's traffic and safety committee.

100 Vehicles Sold by WAA At 25% of Cost

More than 1500 veterans and other buyers swamped a War Assets Administration sale of 100 surplus vehicles here yesterday.

When the rush was over at the WAA Customer Service Center, 4th st. and Jefferson dr. sw., the Government had recovered about 25 cents on every dollar of its original investment.

About 70 automobiles, jeeps, motorcycles, house trailers and station wagons went to veterans at fixed prices. The applicants drew lots for priority in taking their choice of the "as-is, where-is" items.

Thirty trucks, ambulances and carryalls were sold by bid to veterans and nonpriority purchasers. These may be resold or used in business.

Howard Wentworth, manager of the WAA center, said all the equipment originally cost the Government between $90,000 and $100,000.

John B. Rosenbury, 27, of Beverly Plaza Gardens, Alexandria, an Agriculture Department economist, came up first in the lottery and came away with a 1942 two-door Chevrolet sedan, the only one on sale. The former Army field artillery instructor paid $335, then bought a battery for $9.75 so he could drive the car off the lot. It was his fourth try at getting a surplus automobile, the other three unsuccessful.

Morrow Wins Appeal in Md.

A Montgomery County Circuit Court gambling conviction which led to imposition of a maximum sentence has been set aside by the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Defendant was Wilburn E. Morrow, 52, formerly of Silver Spring, who was convicted in the lower court of accepting racing bets. Detectives testified Morrow threw $2100 into the gutter when arrested.

Morrow was fined $1000 and sentenced to one year in jail by Chief Judge Charles W. Woodward, of County Circuit Court.

Joseph B. Simpson, jr., former Montgomery County State's attorney, who represented Morrow, appealed the case, contending the lower court refused to admit in evidence a garage receipt which, he claimed, proved the defendant was in South Carolina at the time of the alleged offense.

board's code of ethics advocating standard fees, the defense emphasized that the code declared members "should" follow the set standards—not that they "must" abide by it.

At another time Kramer read from a model sales contract supplied on demand to members of the board, the phrase "regular rate of commission fixed by the Washington Real Estate Board."

Rush is expected to take the stand again today when the trial resumes at 10 a. m.

How do YOU define a Public Relations Medium?

a message to those attending the American Public Relations Association's First International Public Relations Institute at American University

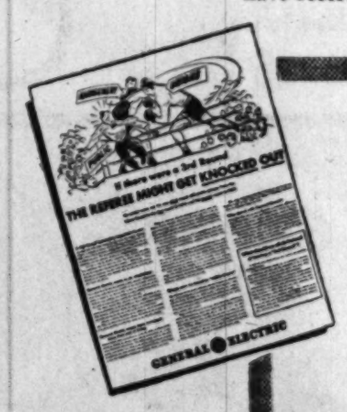
Any form of communication can be used for public relations. But a really good medium should conform to these definitions: First, it must reach the right people. Second, it must have their confidence and respect.

You are looking at exactly such a medium now. The Washington Post does reach the right people, the people in Washington whose opinions count. Repeated surveys have shown such Post readership as this: The President and every member of his Cabinet. Every justice of the Supreme Court. 96% of the Senate. 94% of the House of Representatives. And so on.

The Washington Post does have their confidence and respect. Few other newspapers anywhere have received so much praise from so many sources: "One of the world's ten greatest newspapers," "Honest and valiant, well-informed and independent." "Best informed editorial page in this country." These are just a few of the many tributes from other editors. More tangible evidence of the paper's excellence is in the many awards it has won in such competitions as for the Pulitzer Prize, Heywood Broun Memorial Award, National Headliners Club Awards, and others. In fact, the Post has received more such awards during the past 15 years than all other Washington newspapers put together.

No wonder The Washington Post belongs first on any list for public relations advertising.

The Washington Post



Everybody's "Plant City"

The General Electric "plant city" program of public relations advertising has included Washington, D. C., and The Washington Post. Fred Rudge, Inc., responsible for this GE campaign, knows that the Nation's Capital is every firm's plant city, and that it's important to bring the message to government, which sits ex-officio on every board of directors and in every union meeting.

Communities Urged To Arouse Churches

The churches of America are still a vast untapped reservoir of energy for building community life.

The Rev. Robert W. Searle, director of community relations for the New York City Protestant Council, made this observation yesterday before the first National Conference on Community Improvement, meeting at the United States Chamber of Commerce building.

The three-day convention ends today.

"The great untapped potential of church resources for action on various levels of community life," said the Rev Searle, "is desperately needed."

Urging that churches "snap out" of the tendency to surrender their traditional community welfare tasks to public and private agencies, the Rev. Searle declared:

"Let every community knock on the doors of its churches . . . with a sustained persistence that finally grips the conscience of the church . . . Give your churches no peace until they emerge determined to serve as their God demands."

Frederick J. Adams, president of the American Institute of Planners, taking up the conference theme of building community life from within the community, declared concerning neighborhood planning:

". . . no plan for an urban area is comprehensive or valid if it fails to recognize the importance of the social, economic and physical relationships within the neighborhoods, which taken together make up the great proportion of the metropolitan community as we know it today."

The conference delegates, local and national leaders in planning, education, business government, and community welfare, last night attend group conferences at the Statler Hotel on: (1) neighborhood and homegrounds improvements, (2) rural-urban relations, and (3) recreation.

House GOP For Trade Bill

at the so-called "gag" rule barring any amendments from the floor, waiving points of order and limiting debate to three hours.

If they fail to open the rule to amendments they will have only one more chance to change the bill—a motion to recommit by Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.). Daughton will move to instruct the committee to bring back a full three-year extension of the Trade Agreements Act, without any change in present tariff-making procedure.

Eaton Stresses Need Now

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Eaton, who played a lead role in pushing the European Recovery Program through the House, earlier told reporters the trade agreements program "is more necessary now than ever to bulwark western Europe cooperation.

"I would prefer not to vote for a watered-down program but it may be the only chance to extend the act in any form."

Eaton was referring to the closed rule, which bars non-committee changes on the floor.

Following the GOP mass conference later in the day, Halleck said Ways and Means Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart (R. Calif.), author of the GOP bill; Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) and Halleck himself all urged the Republican membership to support the changes.

Halleck denied Democratic charges that the GOP measures "sabotage" the trade program, adding: "It simply writes in safeguards in the National interest. These in no way jeopardize the trade agreements."

House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) and his Democratic steering committee, thought differently. Their resolution declared the Gearhart bill "would sabotage and effectively kill the reciprocal trade agreements program as a major instrument of foreign policy, and would be a return to Smoot-Hawleyism, and the stagnation of trade and commerce of the 1930's.

The Democratic resolution said it is well understood that the 14-year-old trade agreements act is "an essential supplement to participation by the United States in the proposed ITO and to the ultimate success of the European Recovery Program."

Finally it appealed for a full three-year extension "which will take this aspect of American foreign policy out of politics in a campaign year."

Gerard Swope, chairman of the Citizens Committee for Reciprocal World Trade, in a statement sent to all members of Congress, meanwhile charged a GOP leadership "conspiracy to keep the public and fellow members of Congress from being informed about this vital issue and expressing their opinions on it."

"Smoot-Hauley and Worse"

The statement, also signed by Alger Hiss, executive committee chairman, said 128 members of Congress who have never participated in a full discussion of the trade agreements act are "now required to vote on a bill which will make the act a hollow shell without ever having had an opportunity to weigh the merits."

It said the Gearhart bill lays the foundation for rebuilding Hawley-Smoot tariffs to 1½ times their original size.

Grauman's Sued in Fall Over Garson Footprints

Hollywood, May 25 (U.P.).—Mrs. Tillie Siegel, 49, filed suit today for $5000 because, she said, she tripped over Greer Garson's footprints.

The suit named Grauman's Chinese Theater as defendant and said Mrs. Siegel fell on her face face when she tripped over the actress' footprints in the concrete foyer of the theater January 7.

Tax-Free Aliens Cleaned Up on U. S. Markets

By The Associated Press

Congressional investigators urging tighter tax reins on foreign brokers yesterday estimated foreigners profited by $64,500,000 to 129 million dollars speculating on United States commodity markets during 1946 and 1947.

A special House committee looking into speculation for the period said none of the total estimated capital gains was subject to taxes.

Recommending tighter curbs on foreign brokers to bar American and alien grain speculators from dodging a profits tax, the committee said:

"Some of the traders may be American citizens, who transact their business through foreign brokers in neighboring countries to avoid taxation on capital gains."

The committee is headed by Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.)

One Trailer Family Allowed to Remain

The Washington Post

VETERAN'S FAMILY EXCEPTED—United States Marshals and the tourist camp manager confer in front of the Conway trailer (right), which will be allowed to remain when others in the camp are evicted. Conway, a war veteran, is in a Richmond Veteran's Hospital awaiting a serious operation. His daughter, Linda Dorlene Conway, 20 months old, plays in front of the trailer with Jo Ann Silliman, 8, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Silliman are among those moving out

Some on the verge of tears, all quietly resigned, the last of the long-time trailer dwellers at Washington Tourist Camp yesterday began straggling out.

Their exodus followed polite morning visits by United States marshals and Camp Manager Louis Napoli to remind them they had reached their eviction deadline. Back of the softly voiced question: "Are you folks planning to lease today?" was the threat of forced removal.

If any of the seven remaining families fail to depart by this morning, a crane will tow them out of East Potomac Park, where the camp is located, to "the nearest metropolitan street," the marshals warned. Should a trailer remain there, police will impound it.

The ousted trailer tenants, last of more than 100 who came in wartime, were victims of National Capital Parks' determinatoin to limit visits there to two weeks. The GSI-operated camp thus will cater to tourist trade exclusively.

To give evicted trailer dwellers a chance to find new homes, NCP NCP has offered them temporary use of land and facilities at Memorial Bridge Camp, just off the Potomac on the Virginia side of Memorial Bridge, with free rent, water, electricity and Park Police protection.

As of yesterday, however, only one trailer occupant, a bachelor, had taken up the offer. Disadvantages cited by others at Washington Tourist Camp were lack of nearby stores, weeds and mud, proximity of the highway, and an offensive-smelling creek a few feet away. Most have moved to close-in Virginia and Maryland camps.

One of the hardest hit evictees was Anthony Troutt, 21, whose 18-year-old wife, Jacqueline, is expecting their second child soon. Troutt has no auto, will have to hire someone to pull him away. And his finances are low. He said he tried several trailer camps but found all filled up. He doesn't want to take his wife and child to Memorial Bridge Camp.

Present at the checkup, together with Napoli, were United States Marshal W. Bruce Matthews, Chief Deputy Charles Ward and Assistant Chief Deputy James T. Mattingly.

Data Stored In Lavatories, Green Charges

Offices of the Arlington County treasurer are so crowded some of its records must be stored in two basement lavatories, Treasurer John Locke Green said yesterday in Circuit Court.

Green, who is suing the County for more office space, appeared yesterday to contest a petition by Commonwealth's Attorney Denman Rucker to dismiss his suit.

The treasurer told Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy that the Virginia Tax Code requires the County Board of Supervisors to provide "adequate equipment" and "suitable space" for conduct of his office.

And, he added, according to Statute 2865 of the Virginia Code, the Circuit Court can force the board to remedy "insufficient" courthouse facilities.

Commonwealth's Attorney Rucker, on the other hand, argued it was the duty of the board, not the court, to determine whether space is adequate and to arrange improvements.

Judge McCarthy said he would take the petition for dismissal under advisement for several days before rendering judgment.

LOOK OUT FOR PIN-WORMS

Recent medical reports reveal that an amazing number of children (and grown-ups too) may be victims of Pin-Worms—often without suspecting what is wrong! And these pests, living inside the human body, can cause real distress.

So watch out for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms—especially the aggravating rectal itch. Get JAYNE'S P-W and follow the directions.

P-W is the Pin-Worm treatment developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, after years of patient research. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms.

Ask your druggist: P-W for Pin-Worms!

Alexandria School Gets Zone Waiver

Alexandria City Council last night granted Congressional School, a private kindergarten and grade school, permission to enlarge its facilities on W. Windsor ave.

Operators of the school, located in a residential area, sought a zoning waiver for the construction to enable it to increase its enrollment from the present 100 to 165 students.

Nearby residents objected that their property values would go down if the school were increased in size and charged that the school's pupils, as it is, make too much noise.

Supporters of the school, however, cited extremely crowded conditions in the city's public schools and said the proposed construction would be in the public interest.

The council gave its permission by a 5-to-3 vote with a stipulation that the school's owners promise in writing to make improvements on the school grounds which they had promised neighboring landowners.

St. John's Cadets To Hold Annual Drill

St. John's College Cadet Corps will hold its annual competitive drill and review today from 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. in front of the college, 1225 Vermont ave. nw.

The visiting superior general and brothers of the Christian schools, Brother Athanase Emile, F. S. C., of Rome, will be present at the drill and review of approximately 500 cadet officers and men.

House Sidetracks District Home Rule Bill

to hear it read, but they didn't want to stay and listen."

Disappearance of members brought further delay by opening the way for quorum calls which take about 25 minutes apiece. There were three of these, one shortly after the House met at 10 a. m., the next at 12:20 p. m. after general debate had closed, and the last at 3:15 p. m. They all turned up more than 300 members. Reading of the bill had progressed to page 69 when the House quit work on home rule at 4:15 p. m.

McMillan said he felt opponents of the bill had nothing to gain by delay, but could have defeated it on a final vote yesterday.

Analysis of vote shifts between Monday and Tuesday, however, indicated the bill was holding its margins of support. On Monday a 177-to-147 vote cleared the bill for debate.

In yesterday's 182-to-163 roll call saving the measure from sudden death, 17 members voted against the bill who had voted for it on Monday, compared with 8 who swung from opposition to support for home rule.

Sixteen members who voted for the bill Monday did not vote yesterday and nine who voted against it Monday did not vote yesterday.

Of members not recorded in Monday's roll call, 30 voted for the bill yesterday, and 16 voted against it.

Four Proposals Rejected

Before the end, the House turned down by voice votes three proposals by Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.), House District Committee member, to strike out ky sections of the bill. He called for erasing the section that sets up a joint congressional District committee and two other sections saying how legislation is to be handled under home rule.

A fourth amendment, proposed by Representative Adam C. Powell (D., N. Y.) was ruled out by a point of order. Powell, Negro member of the House, demanded that an equal rights section be written into the bill.

Debate opened with a sharp attack on the bill by Representative Sam Hobbs (D. Ala.) who declared the home rule legislation was "hopelessly un-constitutional."

"Congress should be the supreme ruler and in absolute control of the District" said Hobbs.

Opposition Cited

Hobbs said he personally favored the plan to let District residents vote in the proposed council and school board elections without loss of voting rights elsewhere. He described the plan "an attempt to dilute the poison of running the District goversment by the dregs of society."

Opponents of the bill cited opposition to the measure by the Washington Board of Trade and Federation of Businessmen's Associations.

Against that view, Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) speaking for the bill, said it would eliminate "minority rule" in the District government by the Washington Board of Trade. He said the Board now rules Washington and is "by any standard of measurement, the most powerful single organization in Washington."

Deane called the present District government "a mess" and added "responsibility for this situation rests primarily upon Congress."

Representative N. McGarvey (R., Pa.) called the home rule bill "the best charter ever devised for a capital city."

Board of Trade Vote

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) cited a 1456 to 654 Board of Trade vote against the bill, declared "these are substantial people, they do the business here, they pay taxes, and they are the people who are qualified and fitted to say what kind of government is best for the District."

Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.), voicing "full support" for the bill, said the "important thing to decide is whether we want to give the people of the District a chance to govern themselves."

Representative John Jennings, jr. (R., Tenn.), said that trying to understand the 180-page bill was like trying "to hatch chickens out of scrambled eggs."

Representative Robert F. Rich (R., Pa.) joined opposition to the bill and said its proposed voting system was "not democratic, not republican and not American." Others who spoke anew against the measure included Representatives McMillan, Abernethy, and Oren Harris (D., Ark.).

District Chairman Dirksen, renewing his bid for House approval of home rule, cited the alleged 100-million-dollar gambling racket here and asked, "How can you clean it up without the power to vote?"

When the "ferment of freedom" is working everywhere, Dirksen said "now is the time for us to do a little something for our own."

When Smith proposed erasing the enacting clause from the bill, he told the House in the briefest speech of the day "This is a dangerous bill and ought to be defeated promptly."

Hall Urges Passage

After Smith's plan failed, Representatives Edwin A. Hall (R., N. Y.) and Mary T. Norton (D., N. J.), former chairman of the House District Committee, appealed strongly for passage of the home rule plan. Hall said the people of the District should be allowed to decide, as the bill would let them, whether they want home rule, and he predicted they would approve it. Mrs. Norton said the bill "would bring a measure of democracy to the only corner of the country where democracy in local matters does exist today."

Representative A. S. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.) spoke for the home-rule bill an destimated it would relieve Congress of 80 to 90 per cent of its present load of District business, an estimate sharply challeged by Harris.

Representative Walter Horan (R., Wash.) siding with the bill, asked Dirksen if it would eliminate the "serious charge" against the present setup of "taxation without representation."

"I believe it would eliminate that to a very considerable extent," said Dirksen.

Correction

Yesterday's Post recorded Representative Andresen (R., Minn.) as voting both for and against the resolution to permit House debate of Washington home rule. Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) voted for the resolution. Representative H. Carl Andersen (R., Minn.) voted against it. The Post regrets the error.

Rape and Slaying Suspects Enter Pleas in Rockville

Two Montgomery County men, one charged with rape and the other with murder, yesterday entered pleas of innocent when arraigned in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md.

They were Joseph (Dupe) Ross, 54, of 804 Larch ave., Takoma Park, Md., charged with raping a 72-year-old widow who lived alone, and John Wesley Allen, 28, of Ken Gar, Md., charged with the shotgun murder on March 20 of Burton Davis, 22, also of Ken Gar, Md. Both men were indicted by the grand jury Monday.

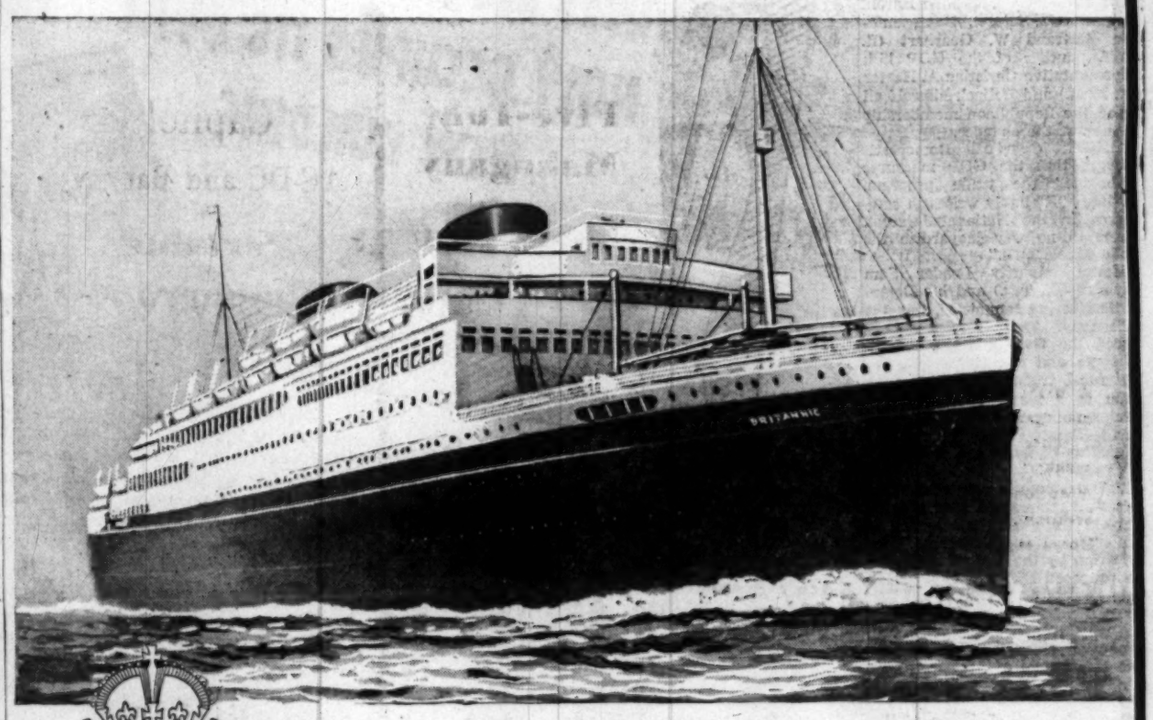
THE Britannic RETURNS



POST-WAR MAIDEN VOYAGE FROM NEW YORK JUNE 4TH TO IRELAND AND ENGLAND

Capturing from the famous "Queens" their flair for stateroom luxury, the popular BRITANNIC returns to transatlantic service redesigned to serve but two classes, First and Tourist. These extensive improvements have reduced her passenger capacity by one-third . . . but have more than doubled passenger comfort and luxury.

More handsomely appointed than ever . . . more luxurious . . . more spacious . . . this 27,666-ton motor liner is practically a new ship. Some of her First Class rooms with private bath measure more than 10 by 26 feet. In Tourist Class most staterooms have private toilets and many have private showers as well. The decoration of the BRITANNIC'S public rooms is strikingly modern and pleasing.

And as always she offers the impeccable service, the unexcelled cuisine for which Cunard White Star is famous.

Too Much Security?

A good many persons who have been steeped in the need for secrecy regarding virtually all things atomic must have gulped a bit to read that scientists at work on atomic projects have become too security-minded. The charge came from none other than a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, Mr. Sumner T. Pike. "The commission," he remarked, "is thinking of issuing a low but determined growl at some of our scientific personnel to see if we can't shake some more information—especially engineering information—out into public view." The extreme caution of some scientists "causes the commission both some concern and some amusement, since it is commonly thought that only the military mind tends to keep everything top secret."

Mr. Pike charitably did not ascribe a cause for this supercaution, and perhaps it is just as well he did not. For this condition, it seems to us, is in great part the result of the hysteria both in and out of Congress over the much-exaggerated "leakage" of secret information. Scientists are understandably cagey about giving ground for suspicion of disloyalty or indiscretion. And the unfortunate consequence is that scientific exploration may be fettered for lack of adequate information.

There can be little doubt of the need for secrecy regarding the details of atomic weapons and the precise processes of manufacture. However, the principal secret of the atomic bomb is in technique rather than basic scientific knowledge. The Atomic Energy Commission has a two-way job in this respect—to preserve minimal secrecy and at the same time to encourage the diffusion of the knowledge that is the bulwark of scientific strength. The early scare stories about the possibilities of mass destruction, now fortunately subsiding, did a considerable disservice, for, as Mr. Pike aptly observed, "Terror by itself is not a good motivation for even good causes." Nor is the opposite reaction in the form of public apathy and disillusionment that followed unsuccessful efforts to attain international agreement on the atom conducive to a sensible approach to the problems of atomic energy.

The hope of harnessing this great new force for peaceful use lies with neither fearmongers nor flannelmouths. It lies instead with a broad, unemotional effort to obtain general understanding of the nonmilitary aspects of atomic energy through an information policy that serves, rather than hampers, genuine security.

Oak Ridge

Most Americans would agree that strikes of workers employed in the laboratories and plants engaged on work for the Atomic Energy Commission should not be permitted. Yet just saying that such work stoppages are "unthinkable" doesn't exorcise the threat to national security that the country now faces for lack of adequate legislative authority to prevent such strikes.

By invoking the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act last March the President staved off a strike at the Oak Ridge Atomic Laboratories, but the 60-day cooling-off period that followed issuance of an injunction against striking has ended with the parties to the dispute still deadlocked. The next step in the procedure is for the NLRB to hold an election to determine whether a majority of the Oak Ridge employes are willing to accept the company's final offer. If they reject it, the Attorney General will be required to ask the court to discharge the injunction, which runs for only 80 days, and the employes will be legally free to walk out. So it is not only possible but highly probable that a strike will occur early in June unless Congress in the meantime enacts legislation outlawing strikes of this nature.

Toleration of strikes that interfere with production of the Nation's most powerful defense weapon is, in our opinion, on a par with toleration of strikes by members of the armed forces. They should be legally banned. The only debatable question concerns the means to be employed to insure peaceful settlement of disputes over wages and working conditions. Since the atomic energy plants are owned by the U. S. Government, the workers could be put directly under the control of the Atomic Energy Commission and given the status of Federal workers. In any event, it seems to us that the Federal Government should assume responsibility for fixing standards for working conditions and insurance benefits that private employers would have to meet under their contracts with the AEC. The matter of wage rates, as distinguished from working conditions, might, perhaps, continue to be dealt with in private negotiations. But if the principals could not agree, compulsory arbitration of wage disputes would then be necessary.

Whatever solution is devised, the main objective should be prevention of strikes. In the final analysis that means giving the Government authority to resort to coercion after all peaceful means of effecting a settlement have been exhausted. Otherwise, the threat of strikes in atomic energy plants will continue to be a menace to national security.

Let The House Vote

Filibuster tactics prevented the District home-rule bill from coming to a vote in the House yesterday. Opponents of the bill resorted to numerous tricks in a desperate effort to defeat what has now been clearly demonstrated to be the will of the majority, that home rule be restored to this voteless community. Knowing well what is in the bill, they demanded that every word of it be read. Knowing the impossibility of keeping a quorum on the floor, they forced a time-consuming quorum call. All day it was apparent that they were hell-bent to win by foul means when prejudiced and uninformed debate failed to accomplish their purpose.

The pity is that the programming of legislation in the House lent support to this undemocratic assault. Today the House is scheduled to take up the reciprocal tariff bill, leaving the home-rule bill as unfinished business. Because of the great pressure for time on the floor, only a determined effort on the part of the bill's sponsors can prevent it from being sidetracked entirely. Should no vote be taken before the end of the session, of course, the bill would be dead and all the excellent work of the Auchincloss Subcommittee that went into its making would be wasted. We cannot believe that the House leadership will consent to such an irrational outcome.

One of the amendments offered yesterday was aimed directly at the heart of the bill—proposing to eliminate its enacting clause. That amendment was voted down. The margin of victory was admittedly small, but it left the opponents clearly in the minority. How farcical it would be to let that minority view prevail for want of aggressive leadership in pushing the bill through the House in time for complementary action by the Senate before adjournment is taken! Fortunately, Chairman Dirksen has no intention of permitting the House District Committee to be thus pushed around. And the House leaders will have to stand with him if a costly fiasco is to be avoided. A principle of national and international significance is at stake, and, since they have put their hand to the plow, the whole country will expect Congressmen to stand up and be counted on the issue of democratizing the Nation's Capital before they attempt to make an accounting for their stewardship.

Oil For The Future

Anyone who has been content to regard America's oil supplies as a problem for someone else to worry about will get a rude shock from the report of the special subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee. The report is so cogent and so rational that it ought to be required reading for every informed citizen. And it pulls no punches in stating that an immediate, comprehensive oil policy is vital to security, even though the policy may make necessary such restraints as oil rationing and steel allocations. As the committee phrases it:

> We want to give expression, frankly and without equivocation, to our view that the Nation is already guilty of half-hearted action in dealing with petroleum; that as a Nation we are living profligately today in our use of petroleum products; that we are providing inadequately for national defense at a time of great international tension; that early action is imperative, on a national scale, unless we wish to continue to jeopardize the national safety and render future generations in this great country hostage to our own profligacy.

The blunt fact is that as a Nation we have become oil-happy. We are consuming now more oil than the entire world used in 1938; and last year we used 9 per cent more oil than at the peak of the war. The great upturn in demand, the committee asserts, is due to two factors: the instruments for burning oil are increasing more rapidly than the facilities for producing oil, and there is a growing public preference for oil over coal for a variety of reasons, "not excluding the gyrations of the leader of the United Mine Workers."

It should be obvious that the United States is particularly vulnerable to a curtailment of its oil supplies, even for civilian use. This is even more true with respect to military use, for oil is the food of war. Yet, according to estimates, demand will outstrip domestic production by a million barrels a day in 1948 and two million barrels a day in 1954. The committee suggests on the basis of precedent that we would be nearly three million barrels a day short of war requirements. At the same time domestic oil discoveries are declining and excess production capacity no longer exists. The critical implications of this situation cannot be stressed too strongly as world tension forces us to augment our military strength.

The report shows clearly the vital relationship of steel to petroleum, for the present oil shortage is primarily caused by a bottleneck in steel. The committee is not overly sanguine about the voluntary steel allocation program. This program, the committee emphasizes, must "not be permitted to rock along if it gives evidence of being ineffective." The alternative is, of course, a mandatory allocation program directed at attaining so far as possible self-sufficiency in this country, and beyond that at developing sources in the Western Hemisphere and other areas. In this connection the committee also observes forthrightly: "Within the next six months the Government must determine whether present efforts . . . to persuade the consumer to conserve oil will be adequate." If the voluntary program gives evidence of failure, "rationing must be imposed."

Revising The Charter

Russia's use of the double veto to prevent a hearing on the charge that she threatened to use military force in aid of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia will give further stimulus to the demands for amendment of the United Nations Charter. The Soviet Union's vetoes in the Security Council now total 25. Moscow has clearly established its power under the Charter and the San Francisco declaration to halt inquiry by the Security Council into aggressive conduct. Mr. Gromyko and his Charlie McCarthy from the Ukraine first undercut the majority decision that the resolution calling for a subcommittee to hear the complaint was a procedural and not a substantive issue. After the right to apply a veto was thus asserted, the resolution itself was killed by Mr. Gromyko's two negative votes against nine affirmative votes for the hearing.

Clearly this is a self-defeating arrangement which puts the Security Council in a ridiculously impotent position before the world. The Charter will certainly have to be amended to make the Council the positive agency for peace that it ought to be. The important thing, however, is to bring about this change in a manner that will strengthen the United Nations instead of destroying it or setting up a rival world organization. In our opinion, the best approach that has been suggested is embodied in the Vandenberg resolution unanimously approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, although it would be improved by an effort to define indirect aggression for incorporation in the Charter.

The Vandenberg resolution is in the form of advice to the President as to the "sense of the Senate." It heartily approves amendment of the Charter so as "to remove the veto from all questions involving pacific settlements of international disputes and situations, and from the admission of new members." But this action would be sought by voluntary agreement. Meanwhile the Foreign Relations Committee would have the United States pursue international peace and security through three specified steps: (1) Development of regional and collective arrangements for self-defense in accord with the principles of the Charter; (2) association of the United States with all effective regional and collective arrangements of this sort that affect our national security; (3) clear manifestation of the United States' determination to resist any armed attack affecting our security, acting under article 51 of the Charter permitting individual and collective self-defense.

The resolution also calls for "maximum efforts" to obtain agreements providing the United Nations with armed forces of its own and bringing about reduction of armaments in the hands of individual nations. If necessary after these steps have been taken, the resolution favors "review of the Charter at an appropriate time by a general conference called under article 109 or by the General Assembly." Great as is the abuse of power under the present veto arrangement, we are confident that this cautious and well-reasoned approach is wise, and would be wiser if accompanied by diplomatic soundings on the definition of aggressors. The right objective is to make the U. N. a more effective instrument for peace by every means at our command but not to risk destruction of the chief force that is now holding our chaotic world to the pursuit of peaceful adjustments.

Secretary Brannan

Given the prevailing direction of the political winds, Mr. Charles F. Brannan may be only an interim Secretary of Agriculture, and may not, in consequence, carry as much weight with Capitol Hill as he would in other times. But this does not lessen the need for an intelligent spokesman and planner on agricultural matters. Mr. Brannan has made an avocation of conservation, including reclamation of agricultural land, and his capable handling of a variety of tasks assigned him also qualifies him as an expert on long-range farm planning. It has been said that he is a lawyer who has demonstrated his ability to become an administrator without being tied down by his legal training.

It is especially encouraging to welcome Mr. Brannan, who was Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, as the second career-employe member of the Cabinet. Mr. Brannan reportedly was former Secretary Anderson's personal choice as his successor, and the appointment thus provides a needed continuity in departmental policy. Indeed, it is within the Department of Agriculture that Mr. Brannan may be able to do his best work in enlarging on one of the distinctive accomplishments of Secretary Anderson—the welding together of many divergent factions into an efficient team.

GROW, WILLOW, SWIFTLY

An old wives' tale, and yet I hesitate
To plant this willow seedling by my door
Where wind is tempered and the sun shines late,
Lest, nurtured thus, growth will be rapid, sure;
Lest, suddenly, the willow's shade will lie
A grave's length on the earth with ample breadth;
When this is so the old crones prophesy
The planter will be summoned soon by death.
Yet lovely is the willow's April green
And softly tongued the leaf in wind-blown night;
The lacy boughs let sunshine fall between
To gild the threshold with ethereal light.
Grow, willow, swiftly; doubt is now at rest;
In life, in death, your shade will warm this breast.

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Blair Lee House

Two or three recent letters to the editor have referred to the name of the Blair Lee House, 1653 Pennsylvania ave. nw., the Government guest house operated by the State Department for distinguished foreign visitors. As your correspondents are laboring under the misconception that the "Lee" part of the name refers to Robert E. Lee, I should like to explain that it has no connection with the great Confederate leader. The house was purchased by the Government in 1941 from Senator Blair Lee of Maryland.

As of possible historic interest, it was built about 1857 by Francis Preston Blair for his daughter, Elizabeth, and her husband, Samuel Philips Lee, an officer in the United States Navy. Their son, Blair Lee, later Senator from Maryland, lived in the house for many years before selling it to the Government in 1941.

Crawford's Reward

A few years ago there was a story afloat that a little colored girl's prescription for punishing Hitler was to "paint him black and make him live in the U. S." This comes to mind in connection with your news story about the forced resignation of John C. Virden under the lash of Congressman Crawford's vitriolic pronouncements.

In the land of justice of the next world, Congressman Crawford will be assigned as chief of a Government bureau. Twice a week he will be made to appear before a satanic legislative committee which will proceed to beat him around the ears with a rubber hose, will castigate him, will challenge his sincerity, will smear his reputation, and will cut his appropriation so that he cannot function. Once a week Mr. Crawford will receive a communication from a member of the satanic committee requesting a favor, an exception of rules, or special consideration for a friend—all with the implied threat that if the favor is not granted, Crawford's bureau will have its appropriations cut still further.

Once a day, Mr. Crawford will read in the Diabolic Evening Press that some satanic legislator has screamed about bureaucracy in general, and about Crawford's bureau in particular. Then, after his appropriation has been cut, Bureau Chief Crawford will get nasty letters that the standard of efficiency of his bureau has slipped disgracefully. A special investigation will follow.

But Mr. Crawford will not be able to resign. He will spend eternity in the grasp of bigoted and puerile satanic minds who lack any human sensibilities, who expect the impossible, who delight in torturing human souls, who judge every performance not by any standard of public interest, but by the standard of conformance to the pleadings of vested personal or group pressures.

And in the dim distance, Mr. Crawford will hear the anguish of all bureaucrats, past, present, and future. JUSTICE.
Washington.

"Black Maria"

David Rankin Barbee's letter of May 19 endeavored to explain the origin of the term "Black Maria," as applied to a police patrol wagon. Mr. Barbee's explanation is very interesting. But, it is not the way I heard it.

During the middle years of the last century the police doing duty in the area along the coast of Massachusetts which now includes the City of Revere at times had trouble controlling the sailors who were celebrating their arrival on shore. When the men of the sea showed indications of getting wholly out of hand the police would call for assistance on a gigantic colored woman of prodigious strength who was known as "Black Maria."

The term "Black Maria" has been accepted in some areas as symbolizing the spirit of cooperation that exists between the police and the citizens to maintain the peace. GEORGE MURPHY.
Washington.

A publication by the Frontier Press Co. of Buffalo, N. Y., dating back to the turn of the century contains the following:

"During the old colonial days, Maria Lee, a Negress, kept a sailors' boarding house in Boston. She was a woman of gigantic stature and prodigious strength and was of great assistance to the authorities in keeping the peace, and the entire lawless element of that locality stood in awe of her. Whenever an unusually troublesome person was to be taken to the station house, the services of Black Maria were likely to be required."

It is said that she took at one time and without assistance three riotous sailors to the lockup. So frequently was her help required that the expression, "Send for Black Maria" came to mean, "Take the disorderly person to jail."

This publication was probably overlooked by the eloquent gentleman from Nashville, Tenn.

Greek Executions

I should like to answer Mr. Costas Alexiou's letter of May 17 about the executions for the 1944 uprising in Greece.

The "men, women and children" who "started to march unarmed to Athens" and who, incidentally, were assembled on the morning of December 3, 1944, after a whole night of tolling by the Communists of the Athens church bells, were so "unarmed" and "innocent" that as soon as they reached the police headquarters on one of the main squares of Athens, three hand grenades were tossed in that building, fortunately enough only slightly injuring three policemen. At the same moment, the traffic policeman in the middle of the same square was riddled with bullets fired from this "innocent" and "unarmed" mob. This traffic policeman, incidentally, was heavily armed with only his club.

Thus the uprising for "freedom" started in Athens. It took more than six weeks for the whole Greek Army, which had just returned from the war in Italy, and the Greek police forces to quell this uprising, which, were it not finally for the British intervention, would have succeeded in subduing the Greek people under the yoke of a Communist dictatorship.

During those fateful six weeks, more than 80,000 people were atrociously slain (in some instances and for more fun, tins of old cans were used instead of knives) by those "innocent" and "unarmed" people.

Those 80,000 were just ordinary people. Their only crime was that, once taken away as hostages without any discrimination by the retreating "innocent" and "unarmed" rebels, they had to be fed.

Threat To The Peace In Palestine

If the United Nations fail to establish peace in Palestine, that will mean the end of the United Nations. The situation is the same as it was with the League of Nations in the case of Abyssinia in 1935-6.

At that time England and France, instead of thinking on strengthening the League as an instrument of peace, thought only of the importance of Italy in case of a future war. In this way, they killed the League and killed the peace, but they did not get Italy's support in the ensuing war.

Today, the British Foreign Office and the American State Department seem to be liable to commit the same blunder. They think more of the importance of the Arabs and their oil in a future war than of the prevention of that war by strengthening the United Nations. Now, as then, the real issue does not come into the open; it was, and is, clouded by technicalities concerning the means of enforcement.

The United States is said to be afraid that parts of an international occupation army might stay indefinitely. But why should an occupation army be necessary at all? Article 42 of the Charter empowers the Security Council to enforce its decisions through actions by air forces of its members in accordance with an agreement to be made with them. Thus, the Council could order the Arab states to retire their troops from Palestine and ask the United States and Russia to enforce this decision if necessary by airplanes to be made available in equal strength to the Council.

We may be sure that no actual enforcement would be necessary and that the authority of the United Nations would be so much enhanced that mediation of the civil war inside Palestine would promptly succeed, and that the solution of this case would give the world a new hope for peace and for the success of the United Nations.

WILLIAM ESSLINGER

Your editorial of May 22 amply indicates that the invasion of Palestine is actually a British invasion masquerading as an Arab invasion. Where does Britain get the money for this venture into Palestine? They are supposed to be broke.

Since the United States is underwriting British financial deficits they are for all intents and purposes financing their invasion of Palestine with our money.

GEORGE ADAMS
Washington

Perhaps the quickest way to end the war in Israel and bring a just settlement would be for us to insure that none of our resources are used to further the aggressions of the Arabs. The Arab armies are British-trained and Britished-financed. They could not take the field; they would not stay in the field without the support and approval of the British government.

Mr. Paul Hoffman, administering the Marshall Plan, could very quickly reduce British enthusiasm for the Arab cause by withholding any economic benefits while Britain, in turn, has sufficient economic strength to finance this most undemocratic war.

HAROLD HARTOGENSIS

Referring to the attack on the American boat Marine Carp, will you permit me to ask how it happened that an American captain couldn't protect his American passengers and the prestige of the flag he is serving against a group of pirates to whom, as a representative of the United States, he had only to raise his voice? It is inconceivable that the officer in charge of the Lebanese invaders would have dared to use his British-supplied ammunition against an American captain on the deck of his ship flying the American flag!

"Lean Year" Warnings

THINKING of the world food problem at this time, one has a strange fatalistic sense of being back among the Biblical Israelites listening carelessly and unheedingly to impassioned prophets warning of impending doom. Repeatedly from different seers in different words come the warning—in the world race between population and hunger, population is winning.

One prophet to voice this recently was Sir John Boyd Orr, the big burry-tongued Scotsman who is regarded by many as one of the few truly great men of this era. Returning to private life from directing the World Food and Agricultural Organization, he warned that world food production would have to be doubled in the next 25 years to prevent the "direst calamity."

Other scientists, among them Fairfield Osborn, author of Our Plundered Planet, warn with Sir John that hunger is a greater threat to humanity than the atom bomb. With world population now doubling every 70 years, there will have to be fewer people or more food — else increasing hunger, more pressure of underfed masses, more war.

SIR JOHN has been a prophet crying in the wilderness for a long time. We have casually listened to his warnings . . . more people will die of hunger in the next 12 months than died in World War II . . . hunger is the greatest force promoting communism . . . politicians should stop puttering with superficial matters and get down to action on the basic world problem—hunger.

We listen equally casually to conservation prophets who, like Osborn, warn that the planet, particularly the United States, is wasting its soil, depleting its natural resources, laying the historic base for the decline and death of more civilizations. We sit indifferently while Congress pinches pennies over conservation (only 1 per cent of the Federal budget is spent on it) and financial descendants of the robber barons seek to open remaining public lands and resources to exploitation.

Sir John Orr will not likely live as did Haile Selassie to cry out to the world, "I told you so!" But future generations will wonder, probably bitterly, why men in high places all over the world did not stop their political fiddle-fadding to put first things first, to proceed against the common danger that threatened their planet.

People of tomorrow may also wonder why nationalistic fears, diplomatic timidity and commercial pressure were allowed to veto Sir John's bold plan for a World Food Board vested with power to stabilize agricultural prices and adjust surpluses and shortages to alleviate hunger. For this might have been the first feasible step toward limited world government, as well as the quickest means of halting the planetary enemy, hunger.

TRUE the World Food Organization and the World Food Council (largely an advisory body) are building slowly a cooperation that in the course of years may straighten out some of the anarchy in food distributfon and increase world food supply. Meanwhile two-thirds of the world's people don't have enough to eat, and a hungry and explosive half-century stretches ahead.

What gives Sir John's warning disturbing force is that he has been right so much in the past. Early in life he saw clearly that lack of food lay at the base of most of the world's trouble, and he turned from the study of theology to devote his life to doing something about this.

As a research scientist he became aware of Britain's poor nutrition, and induced the British government to make a survey that in 1934 shocked the nation. It revealed that 50 per cent of the people had a diet inadequate for decent health, and that 10 per cent were on starvation level. Later, looking ahead to Britain's future, he was chiefly responsible for the excellent wartime feeding program for British children. As a result of this the coming generation in England is expected to be 3½ inches taller than any previous generation. True, British adults restricted themselves in food—and still do—to make this program possible. It is their sacrificial investment in tomorrow.

Equally clearly Sir John saw the food needs of the world's rising generation and the consequences of their not being met. But he uttered his last warning to a world engrossed in patching up the surface of peace.

Marine Chores

The May 16 Washington Post carried an article by Drew Pearson, who seems to be upset again about the "unheroic" jobs given the Marines. If painting Government property is demeaning, then sailors and Marines have been imposed upon for hundreds of years.

Mr. Pearson has done good service in bringing to the attention of the public practices which he considers undesirable, but when he so consistently shows his prejudice by speaking of officers in a derogatory fashion, we know that he cannot be viewing the issue impartially.

Americans have not been given to classifying useful work as demeaning—and the vast majority of us do all the manual tasks of each day without considering anything except that there is necessary work to be done.

As to the Iwo Jima Memorial, it now stands at the entrance to the Marine Barracks at Quantico, Va., where it may be seen by all who drive south on Route 1. Don't worry about the monument, Mr. Pearson. The Marines will take care of it, even if it sometimes means working more than eight hours. MARY DESSEZ

Matter Of Fact

The Twilight Terror: I

PRAGUE.—In this newest of the police states, there is no visible terror. Instead, Prague has an air of drab respectability. Dumpy women wheel their baby carriages in the lovely spring sunshine. The crowded trolley cars are painted a cheerful red. The restaurant food is worse than England's and the store windows are sparsely filled. Yet the air of determined, un-Marxist respectability persists.

The western visitor even notes with some surprise an occasional peculiar Czech version of that intensely bourgeois importation, "the new look." Except for the ubiquity of the tough, red-capped police, Prague might almost be any western European city. Yet there is a difference. The terror is invisible. Yet it is there, below the surface.

Today, hardly three months since the Czechs meekly surrendered their liberties, the terror is still of a special and peculiar kind. There are stories, to be sure, which seep through to the isolated Westerners, and which have a familiar ring—stories of a wife beaten in her husband's presence to force him to confess his part in the underground railway to the west; stories of a soldier whose arm was calmly broken by the secret police because he grumbled during the parade for Bulgaria's Dimitrov; stories of men kept standing with their arms above their heads till the pain became excruciating and they confess to political crimes which they did not commit. But although such things undoubtedly happen, the chances are that they do not happen very often.

For the terror in Czechoslovakia is for the most part an oddly polite terror—for the time being. To be sure, the jails are so over-flowing with political prisoners that the excess has had to be accommodated in "work camps"—the polite term for concentration camps. And the rubber hose and the rifle butt to the jaw are certainly occasionally found necessary—just how often is doubtless known only to the Ministry of the Interior's tough second-in-command, Jindrich Vassili, or to Colonel Rietzin, little-known chief of the OBZ (the NKVD of this particular progressive democracy).

YET FAR more typical than the rubber hose or the rifle butt of the fashion in which Czechoslovakia's new ruling class maintains its absolute authority is the case of a Czech whom we shall call Jan Konac. Mr. Konac might be a lawyer, or a small businessman, or a doctor, or an anti-Communist trade union leader. He might even be the secretary of a rowing club or of the Pingpong Association, since these two have been purified, like every aspect of Czech life. In this case, however, Mr. Konac is, or was, a civil servant.

Mr. Konac has not been clubbed or thrown into jail. Indeed, no one has even raised his voice to Mr. Konac. Yet Mr. Konac is a victim of the terror just as surely as the few who have felt the rifle butt or the eight to 10,000 who have fled to the cold comfort of the American DP camps in Germany.

Before February, Mr. Konac was an argumentative and unwisely outspoken anti-Communist Social Democrat. One morning some weeks ago, Mr. Konac found a short note on his deck. It was signed by the action committee of his ministry. (Action committees were the chief instruments of purification—there was one for the Pingpong Association, too.) The action committee not impolitely informed Mr. Konac that he had been adjudged unsuitable for further employment in his current capacity.

So. Mr. Konac lost his job. He also lost his beloved pension, for which he had worked long years at less than the going salary, in the expectation of a secure old age. A few days after the note arrived on his desk, Mr. Konac was informed by the action committee of his apartment house that he must vacate his apartment. Even so, Mr. Konac has not been sent to jail. He has not even been sent to the mines, although the law says that unless he finds another job within a limited number of weeks, the government can so dispose of him.

BUT THE difficulty is in finding another job. Always, when Mr. Konac applies, he is asked why he left the ministry. When he answers that the action committee found him unsuitable, the answer is always the same—"Sorry, all full up." In the end, Mr. Konac has taken a job as a workman, for which he is in no way suited, lest the government direct him to "suitable" employment. Although not a hair on his head has been touched, Mr. Konac no longer thinks of challenging the authority of his new masters. Indeed, at least in public, he professes his loyalty in most enthusiastic terms.

Some nimble Czechs have fared better than Mr. Konac. There is, for example, the case of the anti-Communist newspaper editor, whose ringing denunciations of the Communists before the regime took power cost him his job. Now he has turned up as the public information officer of an important ministry, at a better salary than before, having undergone a startling political conversion. Yet Mr. Konac's case is more typical, and the example of the thousands of Mr. Konacs exerts a quiet, continuing pressure on the hundreds of thousands of potential Mr. Konacs, so that no breath of opposition to the regime (except among a few students) is heard in Czechoslovakia today.

A kind of dim twilight terror thus broods over the country of the dead Masaryk and the old and broken Benes. Yet, for reasons which will be examined later in this space, those who should know are unanimous in the conviction that this twilight terror cannot last for long. Soon, perhaps within a few months, the night of terror must come.

Women In The House

SOMEONE the other day went to the trouble of discovering a typical member of the House of Representatives by averaging out ages, weights, heights and so on. The result was a pretty average middle-aged individual.

Childs

It may be because the average is so very average that the women members of the House stand out in distinguished contrast to the great gray mass of males. Because the prejudice against women in high office is still a factor in American politics, they just naturally have to be better than the men. I believe a statistical average of the awareness, the ability, the intelligence of the seven women as set against the 425 men in the House would show that the ladies have an overwhelming advantage.

Two of the women members are engaged just now in extremely interesting political contests. One is Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, a Republican, and the other is Helen Gahagan Douglas of California, a Democrat.

Because she had the courage of her liberal convictions and refused to swallow the third-party line, Mrs. Douglas is in the middle of a three-way fight in her district in Los Angeles. The Wallaceites tried to make her take a stand against the European Recovery Program and, when she said no, they entered a third-party candidate against her.

MRS. DOUGLAS is running in both the Republican and the Democratic primaries, which is possible under California law. At the same time, with the primaries on June 1, she is fighting on the floor of the House for the issues she considers most important.

First on this list would come inflation and the cost of living. In season and out, Mrs. Douglas has fought for some easement of the pressure that is working such hardship on millions of salaried families all over the country, and especially in her own district.

Once she came onto the floor with a market basket full of groceries and with a sales slip showing what they cost as compared with a sales slip of a year before. It was a dramatic demonstration of what the H. C. of L. really means to the housewife.

Mrs. Douglas was one of the little band in the House to stand up against the Mundt bill to outlaw Communism in America—a bill that, in the opinion of many, would coerce all independent thought.

In Maine, Mrs. Smith is in a contest that is equally tough. She is running for the seat in the Senate made vacant by the retirement of Maine's elder statesman, Senator Wallace White. In the primary, equivalent to election in Republican Maine, she has two formidable opponents. They are Horace A. Hildreth, the present Governor, and Sumner Sewall, a former Governor.

THOSE WHO know Maine say it is a close race, with the odds slightly in favor of Mrs. Smith. She is waging a vigorous campaign, practically commuting between her home State and Washington in these crowded final days of the congressional session, with the Maine primary coming on June 21, the date the GOP convention opens in Philadelphia.

Being a Republican from Maine, Mrs. Smith is considerably more conservative than Mrs. Douglas, a Democrat. But with her conservatism goes a sense of responsibility which is a lot more than mere stand-patism.

Thus, the other day, she pleaded with the House for a revision of the social security program which would correct great injustices that exist today. As Mrs. Smith said, study after study has pointed out the need for a drastic overhauling, yet nothing is done. She was particularly concerned over the plight of the aged who are trying to exist on pitifully inadequate old-age assistance.

Because they are closer to the tasks of daily living, women can have a more immediate sense of what a law will do in actual practice. In an article she wrote recently, Mrs. Douglas put it this way:

"As members of the community, women find that laws and their making are not abstract problems but a necessary outgrowth of having to face problems of housing, delinquency, playgrounds, nurseries, discrimination—directly, not merely in debating societies or in the halls of government."

Congress would be improved, in my opinion, with a higher proportion of women members, particularly if they had the qualifications of Mrs. Smith, who is now serving her fifth term in the House, and of Mrs. Douglas, who is running for a third term. I hope they are both returned to Washington so that the Congress and the Nation can have the benefit of their practical, responsible approach to the big problems that confront us all.

Senate Votes 1.1 Billion for Farm Program

By The Associated Press

Democrats called the tune yesterday as the Senate, by voice vote, passed a bill providing $1,126,727,495 for the Government's farm program during the year starting on July 1.

Of that amount, $580,400,278—and that is $34,866,825 more than voted by the House—is in direct appropriations. Most of the rest is in loan authorizations.

The bill goes now to a conference with the House for ironing out of differences.

Just before the final ballot the Democrats, with the help of three Republicans, smacked down a proposal by Senator Young (R., N. Dak.) to abandon the present system of soil conservation payments to farmers. The vote was 42 to 38.

Old Formula Urged

Young wanted to go back to a payment formult used prior to this year. He said it would benefit the Northern and Western States and give farmers in Southeastern States smaller allotments than they would receive under the present system.

The Democrats on Monday pushed through an amendment by Senator Russell (D., Ga.) which increased the soil conservation fund for the 1949 crop year to 300 million dollars. The House voted 225 million dollars. So did the Republicans-controlled Senate Appropriations Committee.

Young said the existing payment formula was put into effect only because Congress held soil payments for the 1948 crop year to 150 million dollars. He told the Senate that raising this to 300 million dollars for next year warranted going back to the old payment system.

Russell assailed that idea as a "punitive" step against the Southeast, aimed at nullifying his victory in adding 75 million to the soil fund.

Aided by GOP

For the second day in a row a break of three Republicans from party ranks handed the Democrats a victory. On the Russell amendment Monday, GOP Senators Cooper, Morse (Oreg.) and Langer (N. D.) gave the Democrats their winning margin.

Yesterday the Senate adopted an amendment by Senator Stewart (D., Tenn.) adding 10 million dollars to the 65-million-dollar school lunch fund approved by the House. Stewart wanted to boost it to 100 million dollars, but worked out with Senator Brooks (R., Ill.) a compromise on 75 million dollars.

Also approved, 44 to 39, was an amendment by Senator Wiley (R., Wis.) raising the total for forest products work from $1,125,000 to $1,250,000.

Besides the $580,400,278 in direct appropriations, the bill carries $71,327,127 in so-called permanent appropriations, 400 million dollars in loan authorization to the Rural Electrical Administration, and the 75 million dollars for school lunches.

Experts Believe

Food Price Fall Unlikely This Year

Food prices aren't likely to drop much this year, experts said yesterday.

Here is why: (1) they expect economic activity to remain high, and (2) no marked change is in sight in consumer spending.

The report, by Agriculture Department economists, cited tax reduction, foreign aid, and a probable hike in defense funds among factors tending to maintain economic activity.

In Chicago yesterday, a prediction that the general level of food prices will drop 5 per cent in six months came from William H. Albers, head of a chain which operates 50 supermarkets in Ohio. Albers predicted the drop with the qualification: "Barring another round of wage increases."

(Albers foresaw "sharper buying by consumers, increased competition between stores and a probable long supply of cereal products."

The report said food will be more plentiful as supplies increase seasonally in late spring and summer. However, compared with the same period last year, the total will be slightly less.

During the summer, market supplies of meats, turkey, and most manufactured dairy products, and fats and oils other than lard, are likely to be smaller. Summer oranges also will be fewer.

The report said that for 1948 as a whole, food consumption per person will be slightly under last year, but still about 12 per cent above the prewar (1935-39) average.

The reduction will be largely in meats, dairy products and poultry.

The per capita consumption of fresh and canned vegetables, potatoes, canned fruit and fruit juices, dried fruits and margarine is expected to exceed last year. Consumption of sweet potatoes, fresh fruits and corn products is expected to be smaller.

The department said food exports this year will be lower than last year's record in part because supplies available for export from this country will be smaller.

Netherlands World Bank Loan Will Be Borrowed From Swiss

The World Bank announced yesterday that it would borrow 17 million Swiss francs, equivalent to about 4 million dollars, and lend them to the Netherlands.

This was a new departure for the 46-nation World Bank, since its previous borrowings had been in dollars raised in the New York investment market.

The transaction will be accomplished by selling a World Bank issue of 2½ per cent Swiss franc bonds, maturing in 1953 and 1954. The entire issue will be bought by the Bank for International Settlements at Basle.

The Swiss franc will form part of the 195-million-dollar loan granted to the Netherlands in August for postwar reconstruction. Previously the Dutch had received part of their World Bank loan in Belgian francs.

So you think you'd like to be President...

Let the U. P. White House Correspondent tell you what the job's all about

Thomas Jefferson called the Presidency "life in splendid misery." Other Presidents have had harsher words for it. Yet many a man has been willing to gamble health, happiness and life itself for the job. Why? A PRESIDENT IS MANY MEN offers you clues to this puzzle. In it, a first-rate reporter describes the incidents and the many people who keep the job exciting. Here you will find the story of the night the White House guests ate a ton of cheese; of Sioux Indians changing into their tribal costumes in the White House toilet to greet the modern "Great White Father;" of formal functions with all the glitter of a medieval pageant — and of the man who was awarded a loving cup by Theodore Roosevelt for having triplets (he wrote a letter of thanks and asked, "Is this cup mine or do I have to win it three times?").

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that 888 Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the 888 Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, 888 Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia,—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is 888 Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people 888 Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of 888 Tonic from your drug store today. 888 Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

HOW YOUR PRAYERS ARE ANSWERED

Whether you're a child or hard-headed businessman, God doesn't let you down, says Rev. Earl A. Blackman. In June Reader's Digest, the famed "Fighting Parson" shows the different ways in which people pray. He tells how God goes about answering your prayers (sometimes in ways you least suspect) . . . and why some prayers are their own answer.

The Gallup Poll

Voter Satisfaction With U. N. at Lowest

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., May 25.—Efforts of congressional leaders to find ways to make the United Nations work more smoothly come at a time when satisfaction with U. N. progress is at its lowest ebb in this country.

The Senate is now considering a resolution of its Foreign Relations Committee charting a policy for this country to follow in its attempt to make the U. N. a more effective force for peace.

A majority of American voters probably would approve almost any attempt to speed things up, because only one in five today feels that the overall accomplishment of the U. N. can be called satisfactory. More than half are dissatisfied with the record to date.

Two years ago the vote of those with opinions divided evenly among voters who thought that things were going along as well as could be expected and those who felt that the U. N. should have done much more. The proportion of satisfied voters has gone down hill since that time.

The Institute has maintained a barometer of American attitudes toward U. N. accomplishments from a time several months following the founding in 1945. This is the question asked from time to time of thousands of representative voters in every section of the Nation:

Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with the progress that the United Nations has made to date?

Do you think the veto power should or should not be done away with?

	Satisfied	Dissatisfied	No opin.
May, 1946	37%	37%	26%
Jan., 1947	39	33	28
April, 1947	26	50	24
Sept., 1947	33	51	16
TODAY	21	54	25

Americans are no more pessimistic than people of other countries. Last fall when 33 per cent here were satisfied with U. N., Gallup Polls in other countries showed the following proportions of their citizens holding the same view: Norway, 32 per cent; Brazil, 28 per cent; Canada, 26 per cent; Australia, 26 per cent; Denmark, 16 per cent; Finland, 14 per cent; Sweden, 13 per cent. Holland, 13 per cent; and France, 9 per cent.

Generally speaking, American voters agree with two major points in the declaration proposed for Senate adoption. One suggestion is to place a limit on the use of Security Council veto and the other is that this country take part in mutual defense treaties under the U. N. charter.

At the present time a large majority of voters with opinions want to do away with the veto altogether. Today's survey asked this question:

"Do you think the veto power should or should not be done away with?"

The answers:

Eliminate veto power	41%
Keep veto power	24
No opinion	35

What this indicates is that voters want definite action taken to curb what they believe to be overuse of the veto to hamper U.N. settlement of issues. If the experts decide that, as Secretary of State Marshall has declared, elimination of the veto would drive Russia out of U.N, voters would no doubt favor whatever limitations proved workable. The Senate proposal would prohibit the use of vetoes in the settlement of disputes and the admission of new members to U.N., two places where Russia has employed most of the 23 vetoes it has used thus far.

People who are satisfied with U.N.'s record are far less likely to want the veto system tampered with, as the following table shows:

	Eliminate Veto	Keep Veto	No Opin.
Satisfied with U.N.	33%	36%	31%
Dissatisfied with U.N.	53	24	23

In a poll reported last week a majority of voters also gave approval to the general policy of a defense treaty between this country and the 16 western European nations in the Marshall Plan.

This is the type of arrangement which the Senate resolution contemplates. Sixty-five per cent of voters approved the pact with western European countries, 21 per cent opposed it, while 14 per cent had no opinion.

U. S. Court Rules For Veterans in Home Ceiling Case

Cincinnati, May 25 (AP).—The Sixth United State Circuit Court of Appeals today ruled a veteran may recover from a builder or real estate dealer if he paid more than ceiling for a home built of priority materials secured under the Government's veteran housing program.

The ruling was handed down in a suit of John B. Heimcke against Joseph Parr, Merle Butler, Mary A. McKnight and Roberta S. Hahn, all of Cincinnati. The action was described as first of its kind.

The appeals court ruling reversed a decision of U. S. District Judge John H. Druffel who held there was no provision in law for civil action to collect overcharges.

The ruling today held there is provision for recovery of overcharges on veterans' homes and the case was sent back to the district court to decide whether the home Heimcke bought was built of priority materials.

Evans Concedes Defeat For ITU Presidency

Indianapolis, May 25 (U.P.).—Independent party candidate John R. Evans today conceded defeat to incumbent President Woodruff Randolph in the biennial election of the AFL International Typographical Union.

The union promptly discontinued the unofficial tabulation of returns from last Wednesday's mail election among 88,000 members.

Randolph, the Progressive party candidate for re-election, was leading by a vote of 35,804 to 25,862 when the count was stopped.

Science Tries To Talk To Fish

By The Associated Press

The Navy is trying to talk to a fish.

One of these days soon it may even try love calls to fishes.

Don't laugh. This is serious. It may effect the price you pay for a can of salmon.

If man can communicate with fish he can save a lot of fish lives. This means saving money and food for people.

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service wants to tell young salmon, with little experience in the ways of the world, to stay out of the huge spillways and turbines that have been built in the Columbia River.

For years salmon have used the river as they come from the sea to seek fresh water for egg-laying.

The old timers among salmon have sense enough to use the fish ladders and elevators. But the young fish, born above the dam, try to come down the hard way, through the spillways and turbines. Thousands are killed. With even higher dams proposed, these facts of salmon life may become even more complicated.

So for months David Beacher of the Acoustics—noise to you—division of the naval ordnance laboratory, has been trying to talk with rainbow trout at Leetown, W. Va. Trout are silimar to salmon.

Trout have ears, and it is natural to think that if they have ears they can hear. But so far Beacher hasn't had much luck. He set up underwater loud speakers to talk with the fish. Trying to frighten them and drive them into a corner. No soap.

Where does love come into the picture?

Well, maybe if the Navy discovers the salmon love call it might be able to imitate it in the Columbia River to lure all the young salmon to one side, down easy-sliding ladders, to launch them upon life in the briny deep.

Mark Sullivan Hurt By Fall in Bathtub

Mark Sullivan, veteran Washington columnist and political writer, was reported Monday night to be recovering from a serious illness which resulted from a fall.

Ray Henle, editor of the Sunoco Three-Star Extra broadcast, said Sullivan fell in the bathtub in the New York apartment of Herbert Hoover, and that two vertebrae were cracked. Sullivan developed pneumonia while in a plaster cast, and was confined to Hoover's apartment until recently, when he was taken by ambulance to his farm in Chester County, Pa.

Truman Indorsed By Pennsylvania Democratic Body

Harrisburg, Pa., May 25 (AP).—The Pennsylvania State Democratic Committee today pledged 100 per cent backing of President Truman for reelection this year.

The unanimous action came shortly before the State organization elected Col. Philip Mathews of Carlisle, Pa., retired Army officer, to the State chairmanship. He succeeded J. Warren Mickle of Bedford, Pa., who retired.

Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh was among the first to declare full support for President Truman.

"We don't have a Hollywood glamour boy as President," he said, "but if you are looking for genuine homespun boy from the Midwest, who has come up from the farms of the Midwest, that person is Harry Truman."

School Needs Study By Citizens Urged

The head of the District school system yesterday called on the "power of public opinion" to aid in solving the city's mounting school problems.

Dr. Hobart M. Corning, principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the Dartmouth Club, asserted that public opinion, created by discussion and understanding of what the District school system is up against, "can accomplish a lot" to remedy the situation.

After a half-hour desription of some of the problems, he urged consideration of the two paramount difficulties—lack of school buildings and teachers—by citizens' groups here.

"If the needs of schools are known by the people, the power of public opinion will be very effective," Dr. Corning predicted.

He said the number of elementary school pupils, some 50,000 last year, would top 78,000 by 1952. Yet at the present time, he revealed, there are "approximately 500 teachers here not qualified for permanent appointments" in the system.

"What can we do?" inquired one Dartmouth Club member.

"Get me 600 or 700 teachers," replied the school head.

Dr. Corning called for an end to the pay-as-you-go method of meeting school needs. That "slow and laborious process," he charged, is partly to blame for present inadequate facilities.

Wender Reappointed to Recreation Board

Harry S. Wender and Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler were reappointed to the District Board of Recreation yesterday by the Commissioners.

Both have served continuously since the board was organized in 1942, Wender being the elected chairman during the whole period.

Wender, a lawyer, will serve four years, beginning May 29. His previous two terms were for two and four years respectively.

Fowler was reappointed for one year as the Commissioners' representative. It will be his seventh one-year term.

Geoffrey M. Thornett, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, was reappointed as alternate to Fowler.

Fields to Quit Lorton Today

About 8 a. m. today, Benjamin F. Fields, promoter and publicist, will bounce off a Department of Corrections bus somewhere in the District a free man once more.

Fields has been serving out a 90-day term at the Lorton Reformatory for contempt of Congress in refusing to show his records on surplus sales of bronze wire screening to a House committee.

Lorton officials said he has lost weight during his enforced stay, which was shortened two weeks by good behavior, but he was said to be still on the "pudgy side."

Negro College Drive Opens Here Tonight

A drive for Washington's share of the $1,400,000 United Negro College Fund will be opened at a mass meeting in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel at Howard University tonight at 8:30.

Principal speaker will be Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, Howard president. Others to be heard are John L. Burling, an attorney with the Department of Justice, and Dr. W. Montague Cobb, professor of anatomy at Howard, cochairmen of the local campaign committee.

Music will be furnished by the Howard University choir, under direction of Dean Warner Lawson.

The Washington area has been assigned at $40,000 quota in the Nation-wide appeal, now in its fifth year. Slated to benefit from the proceeds are 32 of the Nation's 36 private Negro colleges.

Hearing Today On Regulations For Radio Towers

A Senate District Subcommittee, headed by Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.), will hold hearings at 10 a. m. today in the District hearing room of the Capitol on a bill to regulate the installation of radio and television towers here.

The bill, passed by the House last year, is intended to protect residential areas, playgrounds, recreational facilities and schools.

The subcommittee will also take up a bill which would permit police to confiscate dangerous weapons unlawfully owned or carried.

On Thursday morning, another Senate Subcommittee will take up a House- adopted bill to extend the child day-care centers one year until June 10, 1949.

Fire Dept. Official To Appeal Fine for Improper Driving

Attorney Paul E. Jamieson yesterday notified the Commissioners he will appeal a Trial Board verdict against Ivan J. Dalstrom, Fire Department superintendent of machinery.

The three-man board on May 19 found Dalstrom guilty of driving a Fire Department vehicle improperly to cause a collision and recommended he be fined $125 and lose approximately $150 in pay as a result of a suspension from duty.

The board found Dalstrom not guilty on one intoxication charge and dismissed a second.

In Hyattsville Police Court on April 19 he was acquitted of the drunken driving charge, but fined $50 for reckless driving.

Repairs to Begin At Gallinger Unit

Two projects for improving psychiatric buildings at Gallinger Hospital were given the final green light yesterday by the Commissioners.

They awarded a $46,604 contract to Warsaw Elevator Co. of Warsaw, N. Y., for replacement of three elevators and a $5900 contract to William E. Dietz, 5112 Connecticut ave. nw., for installing heating and ventilating systems for individual rooms in the psychiatric division.

You had to listen hard to hear the mellow, fine-car purr of that heavenly, made-for-Mercury motor. You had to hear it to believe that this 8-cylinder, V-type motor was not in a car far beyond Mercury's price class.

You sat on a flying easy chair with a luxurious "comfort-zone" seat cushioning you. You made your own "weather" inside the car—with something they called "Fingertip Weather Control." A controlled flow of fresh, filtered air—no fog on the windshield—no opening to drip water on your stockings. That was comfort you'd dreamed about. That was all-new. That was Mercury!

You saw something exciting!

An all-new kind of car beauty—longer, lower, wider—with a poised, graceful silhouette. It was not a "new model" looking pretty much like last year's with its face lifted. You saw the ALL-NEW Mercury in a choice of superb body styles—including the new Six-passenger Coupe and Six-passenger Convertible.

You were happily married to the steering wheel!

You felt so safe, so secure, because Mercury didn't "wind-wander" or "over-steer." Mercury took the curves with ease. Its perfect balance, the way it hugged the road, and its fat new super-balloon tires gave you a ride that was smooth as satin.

You tiptoed into a new world of driving pleasure!

You knew thrills that—until this year—came only to the owners of the costliest cars. You learned about big new brakes that bring you to a swift, sure, yet gentle stop . . . about all-new beauty, comfort, performance . . . about how really new a car can be! Two Airlines Show Upturn In Revenues

By S. Oliver Goodman

Two major airlines, operating extensively in the Washington area, yesterday reported improved operating revenues in the first three months.

Trans World Airline showed revenues of $18,634,313 for the first quarter, a gain of 46 per cent over the same 1947 period. Operating costs of $22,115,292 were up 22 per cent. Net loss of $3,914,235 was 33 per cent lower than in the like period last year.

United Air Lines reported operating revenues of $13,122,731, compared with $12,003,270 in the first quarter last year. Operating expenses dipped to $17,006,519, against $17,124,415 last year. The net deficit for the quarter was $3,550,534, against a net loss of $3,450,671 in 1947, due to a larger tax credit in the 1947 period.

Meanwhile, American Airlines yesterday announced that it will begin service to 15 cities with its new Convair flagships on June 1. The twin-engined transport, which carries 40 passengers and travels 300-miles-per-hour, is expected to help reduce expenses. The New York-Washington schedule will be cut to 66 minutes and the Chicago-Washington time will be 2 hours and 35 minutes.

CAPITAL BOOST: Stockholders of National Capital Bank will vote June 9 on a proposal to increase capital stock from 30,000 shares to 40,000 shares, or from $300,000 to $400,000, President George A. Didden reported yesterday. Under the plan approved by the bank's directors and the Comptroller of Currency, the 10,000 additional shares will be sold at $10 a share. Present stockholders will be given rights to subscribe on the basis of one new share for each three old shares. The "rights" will be on a transferable basis and, based on the current $35 market price for National Capital Bank, should be worth more than $10 each.

CONTROLLERS ELECT: H. Randolph Barbee was elected president of District of Columbia Control, Controllers Institute of America, at a dinner meeting last night in Carlton Hotel. Barbee is treasurer and a director of the Federal Storage Co. and chairman of the board of trustees of the Southeastern University.

Barbee

Other officers elected: Charles L. Carr, Potomac Electric Power Co., vice president; Peter Guy Evans, Bureau of Internal Revenue, treasurer; Robert J. Garner, Engineering Research Corp., secretary. Named to the board of directors: Walter L. Brauer, Howard G. Oberlander, Milton A. Barlow and Raymond G. Lochiel.

OIL CAREERS: Two Georgetown University graduates left yesterday for Bombay, India, where they will be associated with a branch of Standard-Vacuum Oil Co. They are Michael J. Shortley, jr., and E. B. Cowdrey, both of whom served as first lieutenants during the war.

ODD LOTS: Pennsylvania Railroad Co. asked ICC authority to issue $11,055,000 of equipment trust certificates. The notes would be first installment on a $31,710,000 equipment trust issue in connection with purchase of 233 new Diesel locomotives and 2300 new freight cars . . . White, Weld & Co. were high bidders for a new issue of 25 million dollar Union Electric Co. (Missouri) debentures, offering 100.2799 for a 3 per cent interest rate . . . William L. Maude of Newark, N. J., has been elected president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

PROFITS DOWN: Net earnings of 323 department and specialty stores last year were 4.2 per cent of sales, as compared with 5.2 per cent the year before, according to the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Sales were 4 per cent higher. Reflecting rising prices, the average gross sale last year was $4.48 against $4.17 in 1946 while unit transactions last year fell to 96 per cent of the previous year. Salespersons served fewer customers, 6784 against 7422 but net sales per customer were higher, $13,500 against $13,400.

VOTES DIVIDEND: Directors of National Mortgage & Investment Corp. have voted an arrears dividend of 30 cents a share on preferred stock, payable June 15 to stock of record June 4. This makes a total of 55 cents a share paid by the Washington corporation during the present fiscal year. President Joseph B. Schaaff announced that Gen. Willard A. Holbrook had been elected to the firm's directorate. Holbrook's father at the time was chairman of the board.

Hogan Routs Mike Turnesa, 7-6, to Win PGA Title

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

CLEVELAND, May 25.—The mantle of baseball's best promoter, once worn by Larry MacPhail, falls easily about the shoulders of tow-headed Bill Veeck, who is popping the eyes of the whole industry with the land-office business he is doing in Cleveland Stadium.

POVICH

Before the season started, Veeck made it known that the Indians would begin to make money when they passed the one million attendance mark at home. On Sunday, after consuming only 11 of their 70 home dates, they showed an attendance of 453,780 for an average of 44,000 per date thus far. With the Indians in first place, the Cleveland and Ohio natives for a hundred miles around have blown their top.

Eighty thousand of 'em funneled into big Municipal Stadium on Sunday to see the Indians play a double-header with the Yanks. And it was raining for a half hour before the game after the morning threat of rain. But the 80,000 seats were sold out by 10:30 a. m., and thousands were still clamoring for standing room when the gates were closed on orders of the fire protection people.

VEECK HIMSELF wasn't there at the start of the two games. He was in City Hospital, confined to his bed, after a third operation on the leg that was amputated after a bit of ill luck at Guadalcanal. But in the fourth inning, Veeck popped into the park and was wheeled to his favorite seat on the press box steps.

Young Veeck had sneaked out of the hospital against physicians' orders, but not just to see his Indians play the Yankees. He went to the park for what he deemed a more important purpose. He wasn't going to let 'em call the double-header if rain fell in the fifth or sixth innings of the first game, and turn 80,000 Cleveland fans away from the park holding useless rainchecks.

Veeck ordered a special microphone into the press box. He had it poised if the umpires called the game in the fifth or sixth. He was going to announce, in that event: "Attention, please. This is Bill Veeck. It is a legal game, but your rainchecks will be honored and fans may have their money refunded if they wish."

IT WAS A GESTURE that was going to cost the Indians treasury about $90,000. Veeck would have had to pay the Yankees' their share of the gate. But he was going to keep the faith with his good Cleveland fans who had been attracted to the park by the promise of a double-header. The rain didn't stop the game. Veeck saved his money, but he was ready to spring for it.

There's been nothing like it in the history of baseball—this Cleveland attendance. When the Yankees set a record of more than 2,500,000 home attendance under MacPhail a couple of years back, they averaged about 30,000 fans per home date. The Indians are doing nearly 50 per cent better in a population area only one-fourth the size of New York's.

Lou Boudreau's club is playing excellent baseball to stay in first place, for which Veeck is properly appreciative, but Veeck is the guy who has the town hopped up. He got around on crutches last winter to make two and three speeches a day to civic clubs and any organization that wanted him as a talker. He took the Indians to the people.

HIS LATEST STUNT is the day nursery for parents who want to park their children in trained hands in the stadium while they watch a ball game. When that proved popular, Veeck went further. In addition to the nursery, he is now constructing an outdoor playground adjacent to the stadium for the pleasure of the kids whose parents are inside.

Veeck doesn't even own a controlling interest in the Indians, but he controls 'em under his contract with the big stockholders. They are increasingly fond of him. He paid them back their full investment in the club after less than two years of operation, and now it's the biggest profitmaker in baseball.

He isn't stingy with his payroll. Last season he made it possible for Bob Feller to earn $87,000 with the Indians. He pays his manager, Lou Bordreau, $50,000 a year. "That's a lot of money," Veeck says. "I'd like to have four pitchers like Feller and four infielders like Boudreau and pay them as much. We'd make more money.

IN, OUT OF TROUBLE—Ben Hogan's ability to get out of trouble helped him win the National PGA Championship yesterday in the final match with Mike Turnesa in St. Louis. Above, Hogan steps up to his ball in the rough to execute a shot past a tree. He successfully made the shot, got his par 4 on the hole, halving it with Turnesa. Hogan's victory was by 7-6 and was worth $3500. Turnesa received $1500 for second place

Ben Regains Crown He Won in '46

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

St. Louis, May 25 (AP).—Ben Hogan, golf's little mechanical wizard from Hershey, Pa., trounced Mike Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., 7 and 6, in a 36-hole final match today to win his second Professional Golfers Association championship.

With $2000 at stake, the difference between $3500 first money and $1500 second money, the little Texas-born tournament star proved too efficient and consistent for Turnesa, a 39-year-old "working" club pro who plays in comparatively few tournaments.

Turnesa's usually fine putting failed him and he never was a real threat after Ben hit a winning streak on the second nine holes and reached the halfway mark 4-up.

Approximate 65 for Ben

Hogan, winner of the title in 1946, registered an approximate medal score of 65 for the morning round and kept piling up birdies in the afternoon. He ran out the match on the 30th hole as he won three holes in succession.

The $3500 victory places Hogan second among the money winners on the tournament circuit. He has won $13,897.50 this year although he captured first place in only one of the winter tourneys.

The match came close to being the most one-sided in any PGA tournament final. The record margin is 8 and 7, racked up by Paul Runyan when he beat Sammy Snead in the 1938 final. When he won the title in 1946, Ben disposed of Ed (Porky) Oliver, 6 and 4, in the final.

Result Not Unexpected

Today the result was just about what everybody expected. Turnesa, a short driver, wasn't at as great a disadvantage on the hilly, 6467-yard Norwood Hills Country Club course as he might have been on a longer layout. But Mike had just been shading par 71 in most of his matches while Hogan, like most of the other stars, was beating the daylights out of it.

Silent, drably clad little Ben, puffing cigarettes nervously as he played, was nine under par for today's 30 holes and 35 under standard figures for the 213 holes he played in six matches. Turnesa didn't have the game to match that kind of scoring.

Turnesa, who will be 40 years old next month, advanced to the finals through the easiest quarter of the 64-man draw. He disposed of Charles Sheppard, Zell Eaton, Al Smith and Johnny Bulla in the early rounds and outlasted Claude Harmon, the Augusta Masters champion, in a 37-hole semi-final.

He Defeated Rugged Foes

Hogan, who didn't win by a margin bigger than 2 and 1 on his way to the last round, beat Jock Hutchinson, jr., Johnny Palmer, Gene Sarazen, Chick Harbert and Jimmy Demaret.

Gaudiest Shot

Turnesa had the scant consolation of making the most sensational shot of the final match and probably the gaudiest of the entire tournament.

Just after he had blown himself to a pair of sixes to go 4-down on the morning round, Mike holed out an eight-iron shot from fully 150 yards from the cup for an eagle two on the sixteenth hole. The ball bounced dead to the pin, appeared to climb up the flag a couple of inches and almost stuck between the stick and the cup before it dropped.

On the final hole, the 303-yard twelfth, Hogan's drive went off to the left of the green behind a trap. Turnesa was short off the tee but approached hole-high 10 feet from the cup. Ben chipped beautifully from his bad spot and the ball curled around 12 inches from the cup for a "gimme" three.

As the crowd rushed up to the green at the 30th, Johnny Manion, veteran St. Louis pro who was handling the loudspeakers, begged: "Down in front, folks, and let everybody see. This might be the last hole."

Turnesa looked up at him with a painted grin and the crowd gave Mike a big hand. Then he missed his putt by less than an inch.

The real turning point came somewhat earlier in the match—Turnesa's two sixes. He three-putted on the 14th green, missing one 3-footer. Then he slashed his second shot on No. 15 into a lake in front of the 16th tee and had to take a penalty.

Mike's eagle on the 16th was one break that helped him prolong the match and he got another on the 25th when he laid Ben a dead stymie. Hogan tried to chip over it and his ball stuck on the lip of the cup.

Rickey Says if Truman Is as Sure of Winning as Bums Are, He'll Do Okay

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

SAID THE PRESIDENT of the Brooklyn Dodgers about the President of the United States:

"If Mr. Truman feels as confident of victory as we do in Brooklyn, he should have no worries."

Branch Rickey was answering remarks Mr. Truman made Monday to Representative O'Toole of New York, when the two discussed the plight of the Dodgers. The Brooklyn lawmaker said Mr. Truman told him "he guessed we Brooklynites were in a hole."

Mr. Rickey, whose second division ball club could stand plenty of improvement, was in Washington yesterday to address the National Council for Community Improvement.

He told the group, among other things, that he wasn't fully prepared for his address and that his remarks would be drawn "from out of the air."

For the next 30 minutes the master of double-talk proceeded to prove his point.

"Right now it's hard for a person from Brooklyn to speak on any subject," the Mahatma of Montague street opened up.

His audience must have reminded him of the sparse gatherings at Ebbets Field these losing days, but Mr. Rickey had all the earmarks of a real spellbinder.

He cupped his left hand, tugged constantly at a floppy bow tie and riffled through a maize of notes to which he rarely referred.

In his sermon, Deacon Rickey touched on everything from a recommendation that the Federal Government take a more active interest in sports to a 95-yard touchdown play by Benny Oosterbaan for Michigan against Minnesota many years before Rickey planted his tree in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field.

He favored competitive sports for all and said sports were the "real backbone of any community." The chairman thanked Mr. Rickey for an "inspiring address."

When he dismounted the podium, Mr. Rickey made for a side door exit and a hurried trip to the airport. He said he wished he could stay longer, "but I have a 7 o'clock appointment with my manager in Brooklyn tonight. Leo wants to get rid of three ballplayers and I'm going to try to talk him out of it."

He said he didn't know which three players Durocher wanted to dispose of, but that he wished Durocher would stand pat. He said he thought he could influence his employe's decision.

Rickey discounted reports that Durocher wasn't the most popular man along the banks of the Gowanus Canal. "Why, when we win, Leo is a hero, when we lose, naturally he isn't so popular."

Mr. Rickey said he hadn't read Author Durocher's book, "The Dodgers and Me," and had no intention of reading it. He said he did read Durocher's magazine piece last fall, "Nice Guys Finish Last," but didn't want to comment about it because "it might lead to a controversy and we try to stay away from controversies."

With that he left the Council for Community Improvement and hustled off to Brooklyn to see what could be done about improving his community's baseball team.

Nats Whipped By Tribe, 4-0; Lemon Fans 11

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Cleveland, May 25.—The Nats met up with Bob Lemon again tonight and the pleasure was all his. He reduced the Nats to stooges for his stricke-out act, fanned eleven of them for a new season record in the American League and pitched Cleveland to a 4-0 victory.

Mr. Lemon, a converted infielder until he discovered he could pitch last season, was merely being consistent. The last time he faced the Nats, on May 7, he also held 'em to four hits and shut 'em out.

Tonight before 23,417 pennant-conscious Cleveland fans he pitched the Indians more securely into first place by pitching one-hit ball after the fourth inning. Only in the third and ninth did he fail to fan somebody.

Third base was just a mirage to the Nats tonight. None of them got that far. Lemon was buzzing his fast ball past 'em and horn-swoggling them with his curves.

Haefner Loses Fifth

Little Mickey Haefner extended his personal losing streak to five in a row. He was rapped for all the Cleveland runs and 8 of their 11 hits before he was lifted for a pinch hitter after four innings.

Haefner was in a mess of trouble in the third inning and the Indians took a 2-0 lead in that session.

Lemon himself doubled to center with one out, and Jake Early aggravated Haefner's grief by muffing a pop foul off Tucker's bat. On the next pitch, Haefner hit Tucker with a pitched ball.

Boudreau Scores Two

The Indians filled the bases when Clark was credited with an infield hit on a grounder to Yost whose throw for a force out at second was tardy. Lou Boudreau moved two runs home with a single to right.

Berardino and Keltner opened up with singles against Haefner in the fourth and both eventually scored. On Pat Seerey's bunt, Keltner dashed back to first base on the assumption that Yost caught the ball, only to discover he had trapped it.

Keltner was tagged out by Vernon who took Yost's throw, but Seerey reached first and Berardino took third. Tipton beat out a hit to Yost to score Berardino and Lemon singled Seerey home.

Welteroth held the Indians runless with three hits in the last four innings, but the Nats were achieving nothing.

Sullivan Fans Twice

Lemon fanned Sullivan for the third out on two occasions with two out and two on in the early innings, and Mickey Vernon's double to the right field fence in the sixth was the high-water mark of the Nats' attack thereafter.

IN SHORT: Joe Kuhel is the biggest winner among the Nats on this trip. The other day in St. Louis he was presented with a de luxe golf bag by Kansas City admirers, and in his home town of Cleveland tonight the Old Timers Association gave him an expensive television-radio set in home-plate ceremonies . . . Johnny Barardino, who was bought from the Browns for $50,000, started his first game for the Indians at second base. Joe Gordon reported a lame back . . . Bill Veeck has four bands performing for the customers tonight, two ensembles of musicians roaming the grandstands . . . One reason why the Indians are leading the league: They've hit 40 homers this season, to the opposition's 15

Remember, the deadline is midnight tonight. The prize is a free trip to a World Series game.

Paper Says Bums Ask Waivers on Jackie Robinson

New York, May 25 (U.P.).—The Daily Mirror said tonight the Brooklyn Dodgers have asked for waivers on Jackie Robinson, their Negro infielder.

Harold Parrott, secretary of the team, flatly denied the report.

Leo Durocher, the sixth-place Dodgers' manager, would say only, "I don't know where anyone could get such a report. There are 25 players on the club and Mr. Rickey might ask for waivers on any of them at any time. But that's all confidential stuff."

The Mirror article, by Gus Steiger, described its source as "unimpeachable."

It said, "It is no secret that The Mahatma (Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers) was first annoyed by Jackie's bloated physical proportions when he reported for training and more recently has expressed emphatic displeasure with Robbie's slowness, or reluctance, to get himself down to his normal playing weight.

Robinson weighs 198 now.

Stranahan, Chapman Win In England

Sandwich, England, May 25 (AP). Frank Stranahan and Dick Chapman, a pair of famous United States golfers, moved into the third round of the British Amateur tourney today along with a pair of lesser-known countrymen.

Sergt. Charles (Chuck) Jennings of Medford, N. J., and Christopher Dunphy of Westbury, N. Y., also advanced but Udo M. Reinach of New York, who entered this meet as a lark, was eliminated.

Still in the second round is Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., the defending champion, who makes his first appearance tomorrow morning. He drew a first-round bye.

Stranahan, whose deportment today was excellent, ousted Dr. James Wilson, 5 and 3.

Chapman eliminated Phil Scrutton, executive in a London stevedore concern, 5 and 4.

Jennings, now stationed with United States forces in Wiesbaden, Germany, had the easiest American task of the day, however. He eliminated Peter Frigast, Copenhagen radio salesman, 7 and 6, by sweeping the last five holes of the match.

Dunphy's triumph was in part a gift from his rival, Edward Brandstrom of Sweden, who couldn't control his drives. The Long Island player won, 2 and 1, because he made the fewer mistakes off the tee.

Reinach, elderly New York businessman who is Champion Willie Turnesa's boss, lost to J. Taggart of Ireland, 5 and 3.

Bethesda Golfers Beat Coolidge, 9-0

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High, leading the Metropolitan High League, defeated Coolidge, inter-high league leader, 9-0, yesterday in a golf match at Woodmont. The match didn't count in the standings of either loop.

In other matches yesterday, Gonzaga defeated Georgetown Prep, 6-3, at Georgetown Prep, Western routed Anacostia, 8-1, at Fairfax, and Wilson whipped Roosevelt, 8-1, at Kenwood.

Athletics Follow Tribe Pace With 4-3 Victory Over Chisox

Chicago, May 25 (AP).—Buddy Rosar's sixth inning single scored Hank Majeski with the winning run as the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Chicago White Sox, 4-3, before 19,426 tonight.

The victory enabled the A's to remain a half-game behind first place Cleveland along with balancing Philadelphia's record at four won and four lost on the season's first Western swing.

Owns Arena and Stadium

La Motta Has Plenty Money But Just Loves to Fight

When Ken Stribling tangles with Jake LaMotta at Griffith Stadium Monday, he'll be swapping punches with a unique fighter—one who not only earns big money, but who manages to keep it.

Loaded with power in his two murderous fists, Mrs. LaMotta's little alley-fighter Jake, is also loaded with dough.

He's taken his ring earnings and invested them into (1) an arena, (2) an outdoor stadium and (3) a parking lot, and all three are doing well, thank you.

From the parking lot alone, located near Yankee Stadium, Jake added $17,000 to the LaMotta till last year. In his arena and stadium go boxing matches, wrestling, rodeos, dances and just about anything you'd care to rent it for.

Financially, LaMotta is in great shape, but everything isn't Jake with him by a long shot. He loves to fight and he's being denied that privilege in his native New York to say because of that four-round "thing" against Billy Fox last winter.

It was stopped with LaMotta on his feet and Fox awarded a TKO. After an investigation, Jake was suspended indefinitely for failure to report an injury.

The Stribling fight is his first opportunity to bowl someone over since.

LaMotta has never been knocked off his feet and is the only person ever to whip Welterweight Champ Ray Robinson. They fought five times, Robinson winning four of the bouts. Losing to Robinson, however, is no more of a shame than being fanned by Bob Feller.

LaMotta had only four fights last year, whipping Tommy Bell and Tony Janiro and losing to Cecil Hudson and Fox. The Bell scrap was a lulu. Jake had a mad on against Chick Wergeles, Bell's manager, and promised to knock Bell into Wergeles' lap. He almost did, knocking Bell through the ropes, but Tommy recovered and managed to stay the 10 rounds, regretfully

Jake grew up in a rough-tough section of New York. Two of his playmates were Rocky Graziano and Tami Mauriello. They took turns whacking each other daily just for laughs.

"I beat hell out of Rocky in the street one day," LaMotta recalls, "and I'd love the opportunity of doing it again—for dough this time, however."

Sharkey Grapples Carnera Tonight

It's Babe Sharkey's turn to wrestle Primo Carnera tonight in the feature match at Turner's Arena. The winner is promised a local outdoor shot at "champion" Frank Sexton this summer.

Two women's matches are also on tonight's 8:30 program. Juen Byers meets Rose Evans in one, and Therese Theis opposes Elvira Snodgrass in the other. In addition, Jesse James faces George Flynn and Benito Gardini tangles with Andy Meixner.

Hutchinson Routed

Yanks Blast Out 22 Hits, Wallop Detroit, 16 to 5

Detroit, May 25 (AP).—The murderous New York Yankees went on their spree of the season today as they walloped the Detroit Tigers 16 to 5 with 22 hits off four pitchers. The Yankees didn't get a single homer, although eight of the blows were for extra bases, seven of them doubles.

Everybody in the Yankee lineup hit safely—in fact everybody but Joe DiMaggio and Bill Johnson got at least two hits—as Righthander Vic Raschi coasted to his fourth straight victory. It was the second time this year the Yanks had backed Raschi with 22 blows but today's swatfest produced three more runs than they got the other time, against Chicago.

Right Fielder Tommy Henrich collected three singles and a pair of doubles for a perfect day at bat while Charley Keller, George McQuinn and George Stirnweiss each chipped in with three blows.

Every Yankee but Catcher Larry (Yogi) Berra scored at least once, and Berra made up for that with the day's best runs-batted-in total—four.

A crowd of 18,864 fans winced as the Yanks plastered Freddie Hutchinson for six hits and five runs in two innings, sending the Detroit righthander to his third defeat, and continued the rampage with five hits off Al Benton in 2 2/3 innings, eight more off Stubby Overmire in 2 1/3 and three off Southpaw Ted Gray in the last two frames.

Hoyas Snap 6-Game Losing Streak in Beating Loyola, 8-0

Tom Flynn Allows Only Three Hits

Georgetown snapped out of a six-game losing streak in time to end their season with an 8-0 victory over Loyola of Baltimore yesterday at the Hoyas' Medical Field.

Sophomore Tommy Flynn pitched three-hit ball for Georgetown, permitting only five balls to be hit out of the infield. He retired the last 14 Loyolans in succession. The loss was the seventh in 17 games for Loyola, runner-up for the Mason-Dixon Conference title. The Hoyas wound up with a 16-9-1 record.

Woodmont Loses, 9-0, To Kenwood

Kenwood strengthened its lead in the Women's District Golf Association first team cup competition with a 9-0 sweep over Woodmont yesterday at Chevy Chase Golf and Country Club.

Fourth-place Manor sprang the day's surprise, scoring four points against second-place Army-Navy, and losing by only one point. In order to stay in the running for the W. D. G. A. cup, Army-Navy must win at least five points in its match against Kenwood next week.

In the other match yesterday, Congressional scored 6½ to 2½ for Washington to place the two clubs in a tie for fifth place. Chevy Chase drew a bye.

Standing and point totals with two weeks left in the Cup series find Kenwood with 39½; Army-Navy, 28; Chevy Chase, 19½; Manor, 17; Congressional and Washington, 12½; and Woodmont, 6.

GW, Virginia Play Today

George Washington University baseball team will meet Virginia at Charlottesville today in the Colonial's last regular season game. GW will face Alabama in the opening round of the NCAA District 3 playoffs at Charlotte, N. C., on June 10.

The Colonials, who squeezed past Virginia, 6-5, in a previous encounter, have a season record of 13 wins, 4 losses and a tie with Georgetown. All four losses were one-run defeats.

Pitcher Bones Becraft will start for GW today. The G st. school finished third in the Southern Conference and is the only area school to receive an NCAA invitation. Southern Conference titlist North Carolina will be in the District 3 playoffs.

Friends Blanked, 5-0

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High's baseballers wound up their season yesterday with a 5-0 win over Sidwell Friends at Bethesda.

Winning pitcher Bob Young struck out nine and walked only two to give Bethesda a 9-6 record for the year. Dick Latimer was the hitting star for Bethesda as he connected for a single and two doubles.

The long holiday weekend ahead has four horse shows coming up.

Friday the season's first night show will be held at the Mount Vernon High School Stadium, 5 miles south of Alexandria, Va.

Saturday and Sunday one of the major shows of the Old Dominion States takes place on the Deep Run Hunt Club Show Grounds in Richmond. Sunday morning the Washington Bridle Trails Association will hold its annual junior horse and pony show at Equitable Field in Rock Creek Park.

The annual Iron Bridge Hunt Club Horse Show and Timber Race will again be held on Memorial Day on the J. Lieter Aitcheson Farm, Burtonsville, Md.

The night horse show, sponsored by the Vernon Heights Civic Association, is scheduled to begin at 7:30 and lists a card of 11 classes for hunters, jumpers and ponies.

The twenty-eighth annual show of the Deep Run Hunt Club will get under way at 9 a. m. Saturday and again on Sunday at 1:30 p. m.

Beginning at 10 a. m. Sunday the Bridle Trails show, open to all children under 18 years of age showing horses and ponies, will proceed at the Equitation Field in Rock Creek Park with no fees to exhibitors or spectators.

Memorial Day's Iron Bridge Hunt Club horse show and timber race is scheduled to start at 1 p. m., at the Aitcheson Farm, Burtonsville, Md., on Highway 198 between Silver Spring and Laurel. The fourth running of the Aitcheson-Gales Memorial timber race will be the top event of the day, with the entries carrying a minimum of 160 pounds over the 2½-mile course of post and rail fences.

Hicks Stars at Bat

Pitcher Billy Hicks drove in two runs with a pair of singles and allowed but two hits in the five innings he worked to lead Gynn Park to a 12-3 triumph over La Plata High yesterday on the winners' field.

La Plata	110	001	0—	3	3	4
Gwynn Park	305	400	x—12	10	4

Jordan, Summers (5) and Dutton; Hicks, Quade (5) and Loury, Cunningham (5).

St. John's Beaten

Catcher Johnny Hogan slapped a long fly to the outfield in the seventh inning to score Jack Spicer with the run which gave Gonzaga a 3-2 victory over St. John's yesterday on the Ellipse. Pat Gibbons hit a home run to help the Eagles to their ninth win in 21 games.

McAndrews in New Role on Midget Program Friday

Shorty McAndrews, former stunt and thrill driver who was a leading money winner for years while competing in a Ford V-8, will step out in a new role Friday night when he makes his 1948 debut on the second weekly midget auto racing card at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway.

The stubby McAndrews returns to Lanham in a high-powered, new Offenhauser car in one of the finest fields ever assembled there.

Shorty remained loyal to his Ford machine long after the more powerful Offenhausers had taken over the spotlight, but changed over to a new Offy when he found that he no longer could score consistently in his Ford.

"Time was when a smart and experienced V-8 driver could outmaneuver and beat out the Offenhausers, but those days are over," the 5-foot, 7-inch, 175-pound Pennsylvanian observes. "These Offy cars have gotten so fast, and so powerful, that they just about run the show now."

Six other Offy drivers will round out Friday night's field at Lanham, including: John Cabot, leading midwestern pilot; Charlie Miller, Mike Joseph, George Fonder, Larry Bloomer and Walt Fair.

Parker and Patty Reach Semifinals

Paris, May 25 (AP).—Frank Parker and Budge Patty of Los Angeles brushed past two Italian Davis Cup players today to reach the semifinals of the French International Tennis Championships.

Parker overwhelmed Giani Cucelli, 6—1, 6—2, 6—1, and Patty disposed of Marcello del Bello, 6—1, 6—3, 8—6.

Blair Wins on Steal

Bob Rodeffer, Dick Comer and Ray Luckett worked a triple steal in the extra eighth inning with Rodeffer scoring the run that gave Montgomery Blair a 5-4 triumph over Georgetown Prep yesterday at Garrett Park.

Aylesbury Is 2d by One Length

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., May 25.—Mrs. M. L. Brown's Casset got out of control of Apprentice Jockey Charlie Richmond at the first turn but the youngster rode like Earle Sande from that point to the wire and won the Mayflower purse, featuring the Tuesday program.

Casset, winner this year at Havre de Grace, finished a length in advance of Mrs. Mary Knieriem's Aylesbury. Two lengths farther back came E. P. Minor's the Demander, one of the other horses at the first turn, to be third by a nose over S. B. Webbs' Majeto.

The winner returned a $7.80 mutuel and was clocked in 1:21 2-5 over a track made heavy by torrential downpours last night.

Aylesbury did the expected and went to the front soon after the break. Majeto soon settled into second position as the field went into the club house turn.

Here Comes Casset

At this point, there was bumping and dumping which the two front horses escaped. Out of the stampeding pack came Casset to get into third position.

Aylesbury continued to show the pace along the backstretch, followed by Majeto and Casset. Majeto swung wide at the far turn and Casset went up to gradually to wear down the pacemaker. In the final drive it was all Casset as Aylesbury was leg weary.

The second disqualification of the meeting came in the second race. G. P. Smart's Waylass and Golden Babe fought it out in vain until the stretch against Woody Kirk, who rode Waylass.

The stewards agreed something was wrong and revised the order of finish putting up Golden Babe, owned by G. W. Farr, of Washington as the winner and placing Waylass second.

One on the Aisle—

ANTA Deserves A Capital Stage

By Richard L. Coe

THERE'S SOMETHING EXACTLY right about ANTA's interest in obtaining that Belasco Theater lease from the Government.

What could be more natural than for the theater group chartered by Congress to have a home in the Nation's Capital?

Yesterday Board Chairman C. Lawton Campbell spoke with Treasury Secretary Snyder on the matter, the outcome of which only time can tell.

As things stand, it's now up the Public Buildings Administration to issue its invitation for bids. How many there'll be and from what quarters, time, too, will tell, but ANTA's strong determination to find a home in Washington is about the most heartening thing on the Washington theater scene.

What, you ask, is ANTA? It's the American National Theater and Academy, chartered by Congress in 1935, with, however, no financial appropriation. In those days the Federal Theater was in the spotlight and it was felt that the two units might be confused. Then came the war.

Two years ago, top leaders in the theater decided to put their own money into the task of bringing the stillborn infant to life. With Campbell as chairman of a board that reads like a Who's Who in the Theater, the officers include Vinton Freedley, president; Robert E. Sherwood, first vice president; Helen Hayes, second vice president, and Gilbert Miller, treasurer.

Their task has been to act as a clearing house and stimulus to things theatrical across the country. That ANTA has done so much so well with private money has jolted the profession into outspoken admiration.

Two Notable Results

A little over a year ago, Utah made up its mind to observe its 100th anniversary with a theatrical festival. A Utah agent approached some New York managers, who felt that Utah was pretty far away to concern them. Finally the Westerner wound up in the makeshift offices of ANTA. It was just the opportunity ANTA welcomed. With the Congress-sponsored agency as middleman, arrangements were set to present Katharine Cornell and her original cast of "The Barretts," Judith Evelyn as "Joan of Lorraine" and several other attractions. So successful was the season that it's being repeated this summer and plans are afoot for annual events

Another hinterland feature to which ANTA can point with pride is Margo Jones' enormously successful repertory theater in Dallas. This has been the inspiration for similar groups, to which ANTA has loaned money, materials, experience and guidance.

In New York, its headquarters, ANTA's Experimental Theater is just completing its second season. Of six plays which otherwise would have probably never been produced, three have gone on to regular runs on Broadway and a fourth, "Seeds in the Wind," opened last night.

So ANTA has a proud record to point to in its brief working career. It looks on Washington as its natural home, aiming someday to serve as national theaters already do in capitals throughout Europe and South America.

But this is looking ahead a bit. At the moment, ANTA simply wishes to serve as overall guide, to present its Experimental Theater some weeks, play host to the regular commercial managers other weeks and to leave some playing time to noteworthy local groups. Colonel Campbell gives high praise to the efforts of the Washington Arts Committee in pushing for an ANTA home in the logical spot.

For Washington certainly is the logical seat of a theater sponsored by the people through their representatives. Were this a logical world, the Belasco property would be awarded by the Government to this struggling offspring. As it is, ANTA vows it will find the rental money somehow. Certainly ANTA's dream has no more admiring, hopeful supporter than this department.

"PIPIT" FLASH: "Tawny Pipit" is coming back to the Hippodrome Saturday, which is bright news indeed . . . This is that beguiling British comedy about a wartime villages playing host to some rare egss and their sitter, which stayed only a week its first visit . . . One of the best comedies of the year, its brief stay, after slow business, baffled everyone . . . But there have been so many requests from those who missed it, the Hippodrome's bringing it back . . . From our mail and phone calls, it's the first time in a long while that phrase "popular demand" has meant what it says.

THE GAUDEO PLAYERS of the Blessed Sacrament Parish last night presented Ruth Gordon's comedy, "Years Ago." . . . The performance will be repeated tonight at Holy Trinity Auditorium, 36th and O sts., Georgetown.

TWO OPENINGS TODAY: "Berlin Express," with Merle Oberon, Robert Ryan and Charles Korvin heading the cast of a melodrama filmed in Berlin, opens at Keith's.

. . . The Dupont brings back James Mason in "The Mill on the Floss" and an unusual short from Britain, "Our Mr. Shakespeare." . . . This presents John Gielgud in scenes from "Hamlet," Leo Genn in some "Julius Caesar" and Cathleen Nesbitt as Lady Macbeth, supported by players of the Old Vic.

Cancer Registry Studied for D. C.

A register of all known cancer cases in the District may be set up by the Health Department "in the next year," Health Officer George C. Ruhland announced yesterday.

He said Dr. Jay McLean, director of the Bureau of Cancer Control, went to Hartford, Conn., this week to study operation of the Connecticut Cancer Record Registry.

Health officials said the cancer registry proposed for Washington would be similar to the record now kept of every known tuberculosis case here.

$450 Raise Proposed For Classification Act And Postal Employes

This is the latest report on Federal pay raises. The talk in backstage conferences is for a flat $450 each for both postal and Classification Act employes, with the possibility of lifting the figure to $500 for postal people. The provision for Classification Act revision and higher salaries for Cabinet members and other officials should be included. The threat of a new Federal deficit caused the pay plans to be scaled down a bit.

RFC: Jackson Dick, vice president of the Georgia Power Co., is reported to be under consideration for appointment as chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

PEOPLE: Bruce Catton will return to Commerce to be special assistant to Secretary Sawyer. He's one of the best in the public relations field . . . Representative Richard Harless (D., Ariz.) is a good bet to leave the House to run for Governor of his State . . . Vince Callahan has resigned as director of public relations for the National Security Resources Board to launch a Marshall Plan newsletter . . . Isaiah Matlack, chief of Justice's war frauds division, has been assigned temporarily to be the United States Attorney for New Jersey.

TRIBUTE: The tobacco industry which he has helped as chief of Agriculture's tobacco section will give Charles E. Gage a slambang goodby party and a raft of presents tomorrow night.

The dinner party with all the trimmings will be staged in the Mayflower. Gage will end 42 years of Federal service on June 1. The affair will be one of the few times a Federal employe has been feted by the industry he has regulated. An industry spokesman said all the tobacco interests appreciate Mr. Gage's fair and impartial handling of his office, his constructive suggestions, and his nonbureaucratic methods.

STORY: In 1930, a young Denver lawyer by the name of Oscar Chapman decided to form a Young Democrats Club. His first member was another young attorney by the name of Charles Brannan. Today Brannan is the President's nominee to be Agriculture Secretary, and Chapman has served in the "little cabinet" longer than any other person in history. Both are A-1 public servants.

UPWA: This left-wing union is beginning to fall apart. Leaders of 14 locals in New York City have begun a revolt movement and they have asked Mike Quill to take them into his Transport Workers Union. Quill recently broke with the Reds. The UPWA secessionists in New York say they can take up to 6000 members to Quill's CIO union. They are fed up with the United Public Workers left-wing policies.

Meantime, the UPWA has put Roy Eldean in charge of its separate department for Federal workers. Eldean, a Chicago postal employe, will have offices here. He was recently elected vice president of the union.

BACK PAY: The House yesterday approved the conference report on the Thye bill which would compel any Federal agency to pay the back salary of any employe who is illegally fired and who appeals and wins his job back through Civil Service.

RETIREMENT: Several Senators are interested in a retirement plan that would give the G-Girls a break. Work on the proposal is going ahead leisurely since action at this congressional session is out of the question.

In substance, it proposes that retirement ages for G-Girls be five years less than they are for men. Under it, for example, a woman could retire on a full annuity at 55 after 30 years of service instead of at 60.

It's pointed out that Government girls won't benefit nearly so much as men from the survivorship provisions which were recently enacted.

Another bill is being drawn which would allow members of Congress greater benefits under the survivorship provision.

NOTES: Thomas B. Hudson yesterday was elected the employe representative on the Patent Office efficiency rating board. His alternates are: William Anderson, a Negro, and Thomas J. Hickey . . . Edward P. Eardley, formerly of REA, is the new chief engineer of Interior's Power Division. He succeeds George W. Hamilton, who resigned . . . The President has issued an order in which he says that in no case shall the rates of pay of Federal workers outside the United States be 25 per cent greater than they are for similar jobs in this country. It will mean a revision of many pay rates as of April 20.

REVENUE: Here are some further details on Internal Revenue's budget which was approved late Monday by the Senate Appropriations Committee:

Revenue would be given all the funds it requested for personnel at headquarters here. The House bill would require a lay-off of several hundred people.

In addition, Revenue would be able to hire about 5000 new employes for its field enforcement staff from CAF-2's to CAF-14's.

Also, about 8000 employes in enforcement work would be given promotions that would average around $300 a year, and about 2000 more would be given grade promotions at no change in their present salaries.

Revenue asked for more than four million dollars to give $300 average promotions to 16,583 enforcement employes, and grade promotions that cost no money to 4715 additional people. It was given two million dollars.

Board Votes Sick Leave To Teachers In Arlington

Establishes First Program for Paid Absences; Salary Advances Set Up

Arlington County School Board last night voted Arlington teachers sick-leave pay, and set up a regular pay-advancement plan for teachers with and without college degrees.

The board also raised from $2200 to $2400 the minimum annual pay of teachers without degrees.

The sick leave action, which gives the county's teachers the first fully paid sick leave they have ever had, followed a Virginia State-proposed plan.

Sick Leave Plan

During their first year, under the plan voted, teachers will be entitled to up to 10 days sick leave, with five days being added during each succeeding year until a maximum of 30 days has been accumulated.

By following the State-proposed program, board members explained, the county may receive $3 a day from the State toward paying substitute teachers.

The board left as at present the $2400-to-$4000 salary range of teachers with bachelor's degrees, and the $2600-to-$4200 range of teachers with master's degrees.

But it voted teachers salaries in both categories will be advanced at the rate of $100 a year for each year of satisfactory service up to a maximum of 16 years. Heretofore, there has been no established plan for advancing to maximum pay.

Salary Advancement

Teachers without college degrees, who were given the $200 minimum pay boost, now will receive the same minimum as teachers with bachelor's degrees. Salaries of non-degree teachers will be advanced $100 a year for 14 years until a maximum of $3800 is reached.

The board, in voting the non-degree teachers' raise, stipulated that nondegree teachers must have had two years' teaching experience at the time of appointment.

The board voted to recognize teaching experience in accredited schools other than in Arlington, and to pay teachers with such experience the same as if they had received their experience within the Arlington system.

The new salary changes, the board decided, will give full credit for the time veterans spent in the armed services.

Two Sea Horses Arrive at Zoo, Need Sea Water

Two tiny sea horses, the National Zoo's latest arrivals, darted about in an improvised container full of muddy sea water yesterday while Dr. William M. Mann, Zoo director, hoped he could get additional sea water today to keep them alive.

The first sea horses to come to the zoo, the 4-and-5-inch, brownish-gray creatures were donated by Misses Jacqueline E. Simpson, 3828 Garfield st. nw., and Doris E. Kimber of 1344 Quincy st. nw., Navy Department employes who caught them Saturday morning at Clearwater Beach, Fla.

Miss Kimber said the horse-headed, reptile-tailed fishes were brought here by train in a gallon jug. The sea horses, which propel themselves by a small fin on their backs, "have to have salt water to live," she said.

Providence Hospital Showing Film of Work

Providence Hospital will mark Know Your Hospital Month Thursday with public showing of a color movie of work inside that hospital at 2d and D sts. se.

The film, "Behind the Scenes," was made from photographs of work in various departments. It will be shown in the nurses' auditorium at 2:15, 3, 3:45 and 4:30 p. m., while the hospital will be open for public inspection from 2 to 5 p. m.

PSC Upheld On School Fare By State Court

Order Confirmed For 3-Cent Rate in Nearby Maryland

The Maryland Public Service Commission was upheld yesterday by the Maryland Supreme Court in its order directing the Capital Transit Co. to offer reduced rates to school children in near-by Maryland.

The decision was handed down in Baltimore by Chief Judge W. Conwell Smith.

The PSC had agreed to permit the transit company to increase bus and streetcar fares in Prince Georges and Montgomery counties on the condition it provide special fares for students.

In its order, the PSC said the company could establish a series of zones radiating from the District line and charge five cents for travel in each zone. The order also provided that the zone fare for school children would be three cents.

No Comment From Company

Capital Transit refused to abide by this decision and served notice it would invoke the higher fares without special fares for students. The PSC obtained a restraining order preventing the company from instituting the new fare schedule pending a Supreme Court decision.

A spokesman for the company said there would be no comment until the court decision had been studied.

However, Walter F. Mullican, president of the Prince Georges County Civic Federation, which opposed the higher fares, said:

"This is a compromise. Even with the new rate our school children will pay more than school children in the District do. However, we feel we've gained something."

Meanwhile, Capital Transit found itself opposed yesterday on its plan to establish extra-fare express bus service between Silver Spring, Md., and downtown Washington.

Express Bus Plan Opposed

The proposal did not meet favor with the Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring or the Silver Spring Board of Trade.

The company had suggested a morning and evening rush-hour express operating between Fenton st. and Colesville rd., in Silver Spring, and 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. The fare would be 20 cents—5 cents more than at present.

Declaring the proposal was "likely of failure," the Allied Civic Group voiced objection to the extra fare and said the proposed service would merely "shift the feeder terminal from a place with inadequate facilities to a place with no facilities, not even a curb or a sidewalk."

Blair Lee 3d, president of the Silver Spring Board of Trade, said the trade group's board of directors has unanimously voted against the Capital Transit proposal.

Budget Airing In Montgomery Set for June 1

Montgomery County Supervisor I. G. McNayr has completed his 1948-49 budget recommendations and will make them public June 1.

The County Commissioners discussed the budget, which is expected to reach an all-time high.

The school board alone has requested over one million dollars more than it received this year. The county police department has requested almost $750,000 which includes funds for a traffic bureau and police pay increases.

Postlude

Petrillo Gives Address at Free Concert

By Paul Hume

James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, addressed many official Washingtonians, including President Truman with his family last night in Constitution Hall.

The occasion was a free concert by the National Symphony Orchestra given by the Musicians Union, with the assistance of Gladys Swarthout, and paid for by the union out of the record and transcription royalty fund accumulated during 1947. Over $1,736,000 will be spent by the union this year in giving free music throughout the country. Veterans' hospitals, homes for old and crippled people, and other institutions will benefit from the program. Gen. F. R. Kerr, Chief of Special Services, of the Veterans' Administration, spoke in praise of the generous work of the union during the past year.

Petrillo emphasized that under the Taft-Hartley Act, the royalty fund cannot be collected this year. Thus the union's praiseworthy music appreciation program for 1948 can hardly be anticipated for 1949. Petrillo was introduced by Paul Schwartz, president of the local chapter of the union.

The National Symphony was augmented to 110 pieces for the occasion, with tickets distributed free. The players' regular fee came from the royalty fund. Hans Kindler, returning from a three-week honeymoon, directed the large orchestra. Beethoven's Prometheus Overture, the Franck symphony, and short pieces of Khatchaturian, Philip Henry and Berlioz made up the instrumental numbers.

The orchestra, having rehearsed all day Monday and Tuesday, was in good form, with only a few minor slips to show that they have been away from it all for six weeks.

Swarthout, unnecessarily amplified over the equipment used to broadcast a part of the program, sounded in brilliant voice. Her singing of Tschaikowsky and Bizet was perfectly in the vein. But as usual, for this reporter, it was her wonderful way with "Go 'way from my window" that sent me. And from the pen of Francis Poulenc, a song in the popular vein, scored in the most dazzling Ravel fashion, took the house apart.

For the whole evening, and for their continuing good work, our heartiest thanks to the Musicians' Union.

Lewis Carroll China Figures To Be Exhibited

China figures of Alice in Wonderland characters will be exhibited to the public at The Hecht Co., Silver Spring, Friday through June 5. There will be no admission charge.

Mrs. Alice Fay, creator of the ceramics which will include Alice, the Mad Hatter, Tweedle-Dum and Tweedle Dee, and the Walrus, as well as kings and queens, will be present to explain the models.

She will also narrate the speech of any personality in the Lewis Carroll classic upon request and will recite the entire "Jabberwocky."

Senate Unit to Probe Postoffice in Detroit

A complete investigation by the Post Office Department of its Detroit office and Roscoe B. Huston, the postmaster there, was ordered yesterday by a Senate Postoffice Subcommittee.

Confessions Not Forced, Witnesses Say

Police Brutality Charge Denied At Murder Trial

Counsel for George A. Garner, 25, and his brother, Lawrence J. Garner, 23, who are accused in the District Court of murdering two taxi drivers, tried in vain yesterday to establish a foundation for a claim that a confession attributed to the two men was obtained by police brutality.

Two witnesses who testified yesterday to the circumstances of the questioning of the Garners by the police were Wilhelmina Green, who was taken to headquarters at 4 o'clock in the morning, and Pvt. H. L. Pilling, a photographer in the Identification Section.

Defense Attorneys John Alvin Groghan and Louis Jongbloet asked both Miss Green and Private Pilling whether they had not seen the Garners beaten, spit on and mistreated, whether one of the brothers was not lying on the floor unconscious, and whether Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, was not a participant in the questioning which elicited the alleged confession. Both witnesses said firmly that they saw nothing of the kind.

However, Attorney Groghan said last night that other police witnesses would be asked similar questions, and that he believed the evidence would show the confession was coerced and that 15 policemen in all questioned the Garner brothers.

Whether Assistant District Attorney Arthur J. McLaughlin would seek to place the alleged confession before the jury was not clear when Justice Richmond B. Keech adjourned court yesterday. McLaughlin told the jurors that a watch belonging to one of the slain taxi drivers, Howard Jones, 37, was found in the possession of George Garner.

Jones' widow, Mrs. Lannie M. Jones, 417 Irving st. nw., identified such a watch yesterday, telling the jurors she gave it to her husband at Christmas, 1946, and that she knew it by the name "Howard" engraved on the back of the case.

The Garners are now on trial only for the death of Jones, but they also are accused of murdering another taxi driver, James Hardy, 38. Both men were killed the night of February 27.

Party, Dance to Climax Fort Myer Romance

A couple who met at a Fort Myer "unification" dance on St. Patrick's Day will be feted at an engagement party and dance at the post tonight at 8:30.

The pair, Miss Margaret Britt, 24, of 1617 Hobart st. nw., a clerk at the Navy Department, and Sergt. Ernest H. Bolton, 26, of Warrenton, Va., will be interviewed earlier, at 12:15 p.m., over Radio Station WWDC. The dance, for enlisted men of the Navy, Marine, Coast Guard and Air Forces, will be at the North Post's service club.

In Montgomery

Detectives Very Crude, Says Johns

Montgomery County police, who usually can rise to any occasion, yesterday had something new to ponder, and late reports had them floundering over the surprise development.

In a blast which left the gendarmerie scurrying for the latest manual on manners, police were accused by President Brooke Johns of the county board of impoliteness and lack of finesse.

At a recess in the meeting of the county commissioners at Rockville, Johns discussed with reporters a police order of last week closing down bingo games involving a cash payoff at Congressional Country Club.

Detectives Kept Hats On

The detectives who visited the club showed no finesse and were impolite," Johns said.

"They didn't even take off their hats," he complained.

Declaring that Police Chief Charles M. Orme should have visited the club himself and requested club officials to stop the games, the former Ziegfeld Follies star turned county politician amplified his position:

"The games had been going on for three years and police should have given more than a 48-hour notice to the club."

He said more than 1000 invitations had gone out for a bingo night.

Last week it was revealed that Johns called a special meeting of the county board to intercede on the club's behalf. The move failed for want of support.

"Generous" to GOP

Johns, a Republican, said the club at River rd. and Bradley blvd., near Bethesda, had been "extremely generous" to county Republicans when it canceled plans so the local GOP could stage a Lincoln Day dinner there.

"The action of police and failure of my colleagues to back me up hurt me," Johns said. "At the club, they did an Indian dance around me when I was elected."

At the board meeting yesterday, three club officials appeared to ask permission of the commissioners for a bingo game May 31, to be staged for the benefit of 30 amputees from Walter Reed and Bethesda Naval Hospitals.

On assurances of club officers that no cash would be paid for the bingo cards and prize money would be donated by club members, the board ruled no permit was needed.

GWU Will Award 1500 Diplomas at Exercises Tonight

Diplomas will be awarded to 1500 George Washington University graduates in exercises tonight at 8 p. m. at Constitution Hall.

Four alumni will be presented achievement awards and three doctor of philosophy degrees and one doctor of education degree will be conferred by University President Cloyd Heck Marvin.

William Cullen French, professor of education at the university since 1929, will be given the title of professor emeritus.

Alumni achievement awards will go to William C. Van Vleck, dean of the university law school; Mildred M. Coughlin, principal of Western High School in Baltimore; William C. Thom, chief engineer of the Naval Gun Factory, and Donald D'Arcy Shepard, trustee of the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust.

$88,276 Loss On GHI Cited By Garfield

Hospital President Places Deficit for 1947 at $206,680

Treatment and care of patients insured under Group Hospitalization, Inc., last year cost Garfield Memorial Hospital $88,276.52, the hospital president reported yesterday.

The figure, said President William R. Castle, represents the difference between what the hospital would have received had the GHI subscribers been charged individually and what the hospital actually was paid through the hospital insurance plan.

"This put GHI patients on a semi-charity basis, and that was not the original intention of the agreement," declared Castle, former Under-Secretary of State.

Castle said the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area, which he also heads, is demanding that GHI pay hospitals at the same rate as non-subscriber patients are charged.

"Progress is being made (toward upward adjustment in GHI payments to hospitals), but when this will become a reality is not now known," he said in reporting on Garfield's 1947 finances.

At the year's close, reported Castle, the hospital showed a net loss for 1947 operations of $206,680.79. Total income from all sources, he said, was $1,556,894.60 as compared to total costs of $1,763,575.39. To make up the difference, he reported, the hospital borrowed $200,000.

"Obviously," declared the hospital president, "we cannot continue to operate on this basis."

Other causes for hospital losses were cited in the care and treatment of the city's indigents, and of part-pay patients whose hospital costs are borne in part by Community Chest funds.

As to the indigents, Castle said Garfield Hospital in 1947 admitted 298 such patients for a total of 5381 days of care, and provided 2818 clinic visits for the nonpaying needy. He placed the hospital's total loss from such services at $93,258.56 for the year.

200,000 Enlist In Fund Drive of Salvation Army

Some 200,000 Washingtonians have enlisted in the business and Government divisions of the Salvation Army's $350,000 rebuilding fund drive, a report luncheon was told yesterday at the Evangeline Residence, 1330 L st. nw.

Enthusiastic response of 1400 business firms has "swamped" campaign offices at 1435 K st. nw., Andrew Parker, business division chairman reported. An additional 4300 firms are being canvassed in the campaign, the Army's first direct appeal to the public in 25 years, Parker stated.

Col. W. W. Bouterse, divisional commander, announced formation of a women's team under leadership of Mrs. John Allen Dougherty, Mrs. A. Smith Bowman, jr., Mrs. Andrew Park and Mrs. Edward Burroughs.

Liquor Cost Sure to Rise, Price Fixing Hearing Told

Friends and Foes Of Bill Allowing Industry Action Predict Increase

The price of packaged liquor seems bound to go up, no matter what Congress does about a bill to permit price fixing in the alcoholic beverage industry here.

That is the outlook forecast yesterday by both proponents and opponents of the legislation, at a hearing before a House subcommittee.

Said proponents: If we can't set a minimum price for bottled goods, then the price-cutters eventually will drive the others into bankruptcy, create a monopoly and raise prices.

Said opponents: Fixing prices will mean fixing them at a level higher than they are now.

Committee Just Listens

A subcommittee, headed by Gregory McMahon (R., N. Y.), heard the arguments, but made no attempt to come up with an immediate decision on the measure. A hundred persons, nearly half women, attended the hearing.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, representing the District Commissioners, reported they were against the legislation on several grounds, mainly that there was no reason to give the liquor industry a "special privilege" in the way of price-fixing. There's no price-fixing here for any other commodity, West pointed out.

Alan W. Payne, chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, backed up this argument, and added:

"Let the liquor industry clean up its own house, and not call for Congress to do it."

"At Higher Levels"

The price-fixing law, he insisted, would stabilize prices "at higher levels."

Payne also warned that price-fixing would eventually lead to a public demand for State monopoly, as in the case of Virginia.

F. Joseph Donohue, counsel for the Washington Retail Liquor Dealers Association, presented a petition supporting the bill. He said it was approved by all 25 wholesale dealers and 376 out of 388 retailers.

He assailed the Commissioners for opposing the bill without first listening to the dealers, and scored the ABC board chairman for voicing a "patent misconception" of the bill.

Donohue asserted that the liquor industry was "peculiar" in that it was hemmed in with rigorous restrictions, therefore rated special treatment, such as the proposed price-fixing law.

Price fixing has worked well in the four States which have it—New York, New Jersey, Illinois and California—Donohue insisted. Without price fixing, the current liquor price war here will lead to disastrous "bargain basement sales," in which liquor will be sold under the cost to produce.

Milton Kronheim, wholesaler, warned that the industry was alarmed over the situation.

"At the pace we're going, bankruptcies will follow, and a few price-cutting stores will take over a monopoly, which will then raise prices," Kronheim predicted.

Officials Discuss D. C. Disaster Unit

An organization to provide quick medical aid in event Washington is bombed or overtaken by other disaster was discussed yesterday at a conference between District Medical Society officials and Commissioner John Russell Young.

Meeting with Young were Dr. A. Claggett Gray, chairman of the Medical Society's Committee on Emergency Medical Service, and Theodore Wiprud, the society's secretary.

Young said the Medical Society's ideas for a medical setup probably would tie in directly with defense plans being prepared under direction of Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young.

He said he had invited Wiprud and Dr. Gray to attend a commissioners' meeting in the near future to discuss the matter with all three commissioners.

Any District setup, Wiprud said, should be coordinated closely with those in near-by Maryland and Virginia.

Over FHA Limit

U.S. Demands Refunds on 31 Houses

The Justice Department yesterday filed a suit in the District Court to require the Federal Contracting Co., 915 New York ave. nw., to refund $758 each to 27 persons and $858 to four others to whom the company is alleged to have sold houses in excess of the ceilings fixed by the Federal Housing Administration.

The suit charged that the company was given priorities under the Veterans Emergency Housing Act in 1946, and that the FHA fixed a ceiling of $10,000 on 27 of the houses to be built, and of $9900 on four others.

The houses were duly erected in the 3800 block of Allison st. in Brentwood, Md., but the Justice Department claims that the builders failed to follow the specifications so as to reduce the value of each dwelling by $758. The department claims that the 31 houses were sold for $10,000 each.

The Federal Contracting Co. is run by Maurice I. Schlein and his wife, Rose, of 401 Delafield pl. nw., as a partnership. Schlein claims he suffered substantial losses on the constructoin project, by reason of shortages of materials and rising costs.

Through his attorney, Austin F. Canfield, Schlein some weeks ago offered to take back all the houses and give the purchasers their money.

Marks 99th Birthday

August Reher yesterday spent his ninety-ninth birthday puttering about the lettuce, carrots, and peas in the garden of his home at 549 N. Piedmont st., Arlington.

Reher

Born in Glendorf, Germany in 1849, Reher came to America about 1872, worked for years in Indiana and Illinois as a watchmaker, and moved to Arlington 12 years ago.

As he marked his birthday yesterday, he counted nine living children, 19 grandchildren, and 20 great-grandchildren.

Would he live to reach 100? "I've gotten this far, I guess I can get the rest of the way," Reher said.

Seek Kensington Office

Howard S. Bean and G. Leonard Daymude have been nominated to run for Mayor of Kensington, Md. The election will be held next month at a date to be announced.

Nominees for two vacant seats on the four-member town council are Robert Caviness, Mrs. Mildred Harman, Douglas Birchby, George Menke and M. P. Shoemaker. All terms are for two years.

Boy Hatches Sparrow

Four-year-old Jimmy Rowe of 5603 Roosevelt st., Bethesda, Md., yesterday gave shell-side aid to a cracked egg. As a result he has a new pet.

Jimmy Rowe

Jimmy found the cracked, brownish egg while playing near his home. By the time he had carried it into the house, to show to his mother, Mrs. George Rowe, the egg in his warm hand had hatched into a ball of palpitating skin and fluff.

"Peewee," the young sparrow, now is in residence in the Rowe living room on a heating pad. With tender care, Jimmy feeds his ward drops of egg yolk, water and chopped worms, via an eye dropper.

Youth Accused of Theft

A 16-year-old District youth yesterday was accused of stealing $20 from the home of County Detective Chief Hugh C. Jones.

Jones said he heard a noise in the hall of his home, 205 S. Ivy st. Arlington, Monday night, investigated, and saw the youth running off with his wife's purse.

Calling a police scout car, he and two policemen caught the suspect, the purse, and the money.

The boy, on parole from the District for a similar theft offense, was returned yesterday to Washington. Captain Jones, who last year had his car stolen, returned to his newspaper.

Natives Society Elects

James C. Toomey, Washington attorney, was elected president of the Society of Natives at the group's annual meeting Monday evening at the Mayflower Hotel. Toomey, who lives at 1875 Taylor st. nw., succeeds Herbert P. Leeman.

Chosen vice president were Frank Strickler, Marcelina Hummer and Ford Young. Hugh McGee was elected recording secretary and Mrs. Jane Nolan Byrnes, corresponding secretary.

Fred Umhau, society treasurer since 1927, was reelected to that office. Etta Taggert was reelected historian.

D. C. Autos Gained in '47

Passenger car registration in the District reached 138,028 during 1947, Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the American Automobile Association's D. C. division, reported yesterday.

The 1947 figure was 27,772 higher than that of 1946, he said.

Gayety Theater Offers New Style Of Strip Show

The Gayety Theater, whose footlights have exposed the charms of most of the Nation's burlesque queens, has become the scene of a strip performance entirely new to most 9th st. habitues.

Through the cooperation of Jimmy Lake, who leases the theater, space has been made available to the Washington Chest X-ray Survey for an indefinite period for examinations in connection with the current drive. Portable equipment has been set up in the theater's 9th st. lobby, where examinations will be given from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., Monday through Saturday.

With only 15 days of the drive remaining, some 600,000 Washingtonians still must be X-rayed to meet the District quota, officials of the survey said.

D. C. Bar Association Plans Memorial Rites

The District Bar Association will hold memorial services in honor of 34 members who have died since November, 1946, on Thursday at 3:45 p. m. in the United States Court of Appeals Building, 5th and E sts. nw.

Chief Justice of the United States Fred M. Vinson will lead the processional and recessional of justices and judges. Spencer Gordon, attorney, will deliver the memorial address.

BULLETINS BY BLIMP—Tonight, weather permitting, the Goodyear blimp Ranger will cruise over Washington flashing in huge, glowing letters the latest news bulletins from The Washington Post. The news flashes are translated into a perforated tape and the words come out in letters 10½ feet high on the side of the blimp. The lights—there are 3000 of them—are arranged in a frame 100 feet in length. The aerial news show will continue from 8:30 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. Walter Massic of 2002 Ridge pl. se., is captain of the blimp

County Won't Lend Laurel Its Policemen

Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday announced that county policemen will not be assigned to Laurel, Md., except on ordinary patrol duty.

Laurel's Mayor Merrill L. Harrison and a delegation of town councilmen had asked the commissioners that six county policemen be assigned to the town with the town paying their salaries.

Laurel's own police force fell apart recently when three full-time policemen—half of the force—resigned after protecting longer working hours. Differences with the police chief also were alleged.

The commissioners said they denied the request on the advice of their counsel, Waldo Burnside, who ruled town tax money could not be used to pay the county policemen.

SCC Authorizes New Bus Service To Alexandria

Establishment of cross-country bus service between Alexandria, Va., and the Bailey's Crossroads sector of Fairfax County, Va., was authorized in Richmond yesterday by the Virginia State Corporation Commission.

The new bus route, requested by the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co., was proposed to provide direct commuting service between Annandale, Bailey's Crossroads and the city of Alexandria. At present, A. B. & W. officials said, such commuters have to travel by one bus to Washington and then transfer to another to reach their destinations.

Northern terminus of the new line would be at 5th rd. N., about two miles north of Bailey's Crossroads on Leesburg Pike.

Dr. Emlyn Britton, Dentist, Willed $164,000 Estate

Dr. Emlyn James Britton, dentist, who died here May 14 at 75, left an estate of $164,000 to be divided equally between his two children, his will filed in District Court yesterday disclosed. The estate included stocks, bonds and nearly $69,000 in cash.

Dr. Britton left the family home, at 4601 16th st. nw., to his widow, Mrs. Rose M. Britton, for life and all other property to his son, James Emlyn Britton, and his daughter, Rose Emlyn Britton.

The will, which was filed by Arthur C. Keefer, attorney, named Robert E. Lee, bank official, as executor.

Married 34 Years, Mrs. Blair Sues Mate

Mrs. Marian Davenport Blair of the Meridian Hill Hotel, sued her husband, Bryce Wadhams Blair, sales manager here for the General Electric Co., for separate maintenance in the District Court yesterday.

Mrs. Davenport asked the court for custody of her son, Bryce Davenport Blair, 20, for a living allowance and for other relief. The couple, who have two adult children, married in Plymouth, Pa., 34 years ago.

Manslaughter Charge Filed In Jeep Death

A young Marine was charged with manslaughter yesterday by Prince Georges County police following a jeep accident in Beltsville, Md., in which a Marine companion was killed.

Police said Pfc. Clifford Purcell, 23, of Norwood, Ohio, was fatally injured at 11:25 p. m. Monday when the jeep in which he was riding crashed into a pole at Prince Georges and Montgomery aves., Beltsville.

Two other Marines, Pfc. Alvin Padgett and Pfc. Courtland Sands, both 18, suffered minor cuts and bruises and were treated at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale.

Police said Sands, the driver, told them he failed to see a curve in the road. He was charged with manslaughter and reckless driving and will appear before the Hyattsville trial magistrate at 10 a. m. Thursday.

Sands and Padgett are both guards at the White Oak, Md., naval ordnance laboratory, as was Purcell.

Meanwhile, the first effects of the campaign for stricter enforcement of traffic laws in Prince Georges County were felt yesterday by Edward M. Elliott, 30, a cab driver of Beltsville, Md.

Although the drive was to officially start today, Elliott had a foretaste of it yesterday when he was served with three warrants for allegedly failing to comply with the law requiring motorists to pull to the side of the highway and stop when overtaken by fire engines responding to an alarm.

Two of the warrants were sworn out by William Walker of the Berwyn Heights volunteer fire department and one by Edward Boyer of the College Park volunteer fire department. Elliott allegedly interfered with the fire trucks when they were answering a fire call at Beltsville Saturday.

Elliott will have a hearing June 7 at 7:30 p. m. in Hyattsville police court. His hacker's license has been temporarily suspended.

Prince Georges Planning Council In First Meeting

Some 100 representatives of 45 organizations performing health, welfare and recreation services attended the first general meeting of the Prince Georges County Planning Council at the University of Maryland last night.

Merrill Krughoff of New York, associate director of social planning for the National Community Chest and Council, told the group private and public health, welfare and recreation agencies spend some 2½ million dollars annually in the county—"and that's big business, requiring planning on a country-wide basis," he said.

Planning councils, he noted, usually have only the authority of public opinion developed through group discussions and decisions. The session adjourned into separate health, family-child welfare and recreation committee discussions.

Meeting Called to Plan Memorial Day Program

James G. Yaden, president of the Grand Army of the Republic Memorial Day Corp., has invited representatives of veterans' and patriotic organizations to a meeting in the Central High School auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock.

Plans will be made for Memorial Day exercises at Arlington Cemetery, and decoration of graves in Washington.

W. P. Tobin Dies at 82 in Mt. Rainier

William Patrick Tobin, 82, retired stonecutter and bricklayer, whose offspring include 59 grandchildren and great-grandchildren, died yesterday morning at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Julia Reed, 4303 30th st., Mount Rainier, Md.

Mr. Tobin, who worked on the construction of the Lincoln Memorial a quarter of a century ago, had been ill since January.

A native of Washington, he was, in his youth, a stonecutter by day and flour mill operator in Prince Georges County at night. For 15 years he was employed as a bricklayer at the Navy Yard.

He was a member of the Holy Name Society of All Saints Church in Manassas, Va.

Surviving are a brother, Charles Tobin of Suitland, Md.; two sons, Andrew and David Tobin of Mt. Rainier, Md.; five daughters, Mrs. Alice McGrath of Carmody Hills, Md., Mrs. Jeanette Ross of Washington, Mrs. Mabel T. Magruder, Mrs. Veronica Conger and Mrs. Reed, all of Mount Rainier, 29 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren.

Mass will be said at 9 a. m. on Friday in St. James Church, Mount Rainier. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Pearl Baskin

Mrs. Pearl Ruth Baskin, 38, wife of Emanuel Baskin, owner of the Baskin Fur Shop, 719 G st. nw., died yesterday at 6 p. m., while en route from the shop to her home at 6514 7th st. nw.

A native of New York City, Mrs. Baskin was the daughter of Gustav and Jennie Stark of that city. She had lived in Washington for the past seven years.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Baskin is survived by a daughter, Miss Leila Iris Baskin, and a son, Harvey Harden Baskin, both of the 7th st. nw. address.

C. B. Lyman Dies at Work; Navy Engineer

Charles B. Lyman, 35, aeronautical engineer, of 1112 N. Kennebec st., Arlington, died yesterday while at work in the Navy Department.

Mr. Lyman had been with the Bureau of Aeronautics, in the design-elements division of the structures branch, since 1940. He represented the bureau at the International Aeronautic Conference in Paris in 1946.

He was with the Naval Aircraft Factory in Philadelphia before his transfer to Washington. Prior to that he was successively an aeronautical engineering instructor at Carnegie Institute and on the staff of the Curtis Aero Motor Co. in Buffalo.

Mr. Lyman, a native of Holly, Mich., was a member of the structure subcommittee of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics and the Institute of Aeronautical Science.

Unmarried, Mr. Lyman is survived by two brothers, Walter Lyman of Pittsburgh and Robert Lyman of Detroit. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night at the Fitzgerald Funeral Home, 3245 Wilson blvd., Arlington.

Col. Edward Steidtmann

Lexington, Va., May 25 (AP)—Col. Edward Steidtmann, 66, professor of geology and mineralogy at Virginia Military Institute for 25 years, died today at his home here.

Colonel Steidtmann joined the VMI faculty in 1923, coming here from the University fo Wisconsin. He received his bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees at Wisconsin.

After going to VMI, Colonel Steidtmann became a member of the staff of the Virginia Geological Survey, on which he served until his death.

He had been honored by the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the Geological Society of America and the American Association for the Advancement of Science, among other groups.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Bertha Steidtmann of Lexington; two daughters, Mrs. Thomas Quigley of East Orange, N. J., and Mrs. William Wilcox of Rome, Ga., and three sons, Lieut. Col. Robert F. Steidtmann, USMC, Washington; Edward Steidtmann, jr., Newark, N. J., and Maj. Carl Steidtmann, Ottawa, Canada.

Rear Adm. L. B. Schulten

Funeral services for Rear Admiral Leo Byron Schulten, USN, retired, who died in Jefferson City, Mo., Wednesday, will be held at Arlington Cemetery today. The funeral party will leave the Fort Myer gate at 1 p. m.

Admiral Schulten, 51, was assistant chief of maintenance of the office of the Chief of Naval Operations here before his retirement in 1947. He is survived by his wife, a son and a sister.

Honorary naval officer pallbearers will be Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen, Capt. Donald R. Osborn, Capt. Paul W. Steinhagen, Capt. John F. Crowe, Capt. Charles H. Murphy and Capt. Hugh E. Haven.

Greathouse, Writer-Editor, Dies at 90

Charles H. Greathouse, 90, retired Agriculture Department official and for many years an Arlington journalist and real estate man, died Monday in Niagara Falls, N. Y., according to word received here yesterday.

Mr. Greathouse died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frederick Leighton, where he went last year because of illness.

He came to Washington in 1892 as a special correspondent for the Louisville (Ky.) Courier Journal. He had been editor of that newspaper and earlier a reporter for the Louisville Commercial following graduation from the University of Michigan in 1878. After taking a master's degree there in 1879, he was elected to the university's new Phi Beta Kappa chapter.

While a correspondent here, he wrote frequent articles for the old Washington Times. He joined the Agriculture Department as an editor in 1900, later becoming chief of the indexing section, and retired in 1927. Thereafter, he and his wife, the late Mrs. Mary Melisse Greathouse, published a weekly report on Government publications.

The Greathouses were living then at 1502 Colonial ter., Arlington, in an area known as Colonial Heights, where Mr. Greathouse was one of the first to build. At the same time and later, Mr. Greathouse was associated with the Arlington County Monitor and the Chronicle. For some years, he published his own weekly, the Commonwealth. He was active in real estate until his illness last December. Mrs. Greathouse died in 1940.

Mr. Greathouse was born in Uniontown, Ky., and was educated in Bloomington (Ind.) schools, where he also taught before going to college.

He leaves, besides his daughter, a son, Dr. Lucien H. Greathouse of New Orleans, La. Funeral services will be in Niagara Falls.

Mrs. Helen T. Colton

Prince Frederick, Md., May 25 (AP).—Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Helen Trevor Colton, 92, who died Sunday at the home of a daughter in Huntingtown, Md.

The widow of Frank L. Colton, she had been in ill health since June, 1946, when she suffered a fractured hip in a fall.

Mrs. Colton was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Van Der Werker of Marietta, Ohio.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. J. W. Leitch of Huntingtown, and Mrs. Appleton Lawrence of Washington, D. C.; one son, Van Colton of Dayton, Ohio; 12 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

Ernest C. Johnson, chief airway forecaster of the United States Weather Bureau at National Airport, will discuss weather services available to fliers and nonfliers at 7:30 p. m. today in the Archives auditorium, 7th st. and Pennsylvania ave. n.w. The talk closes a series presented by the Civil Aeronautics Club.

Gov. Osborn Of Arizona Is Dead at 64

Phoenix, Ariz., May 25 (AP)—Sidney P. Osborn, Governor of Arizona since 1940, died today after a long illness. He was 64 May 17.

Mr. Osborn

He was a victim of progressive muscular atrophy.

Secretary of State Dan E. Garvey, under Arizona law, automatically became Acting Governor. Garvey went to the State's Capitol before dawn to assume his new duties.

With Governor Osborn when he died was his wife, Gladys Smiley Osborn, who is seriously ill from arthritis. The Governor also is survived by his 87-year-old mother, Mrs. Marilla Murray Osborn, and a daughter.

Osborn, a Democrat, was the first person elected to four consecutive terms as Governor of Arizona.

He first became ill about two years ago. His condition became progressively worse. Several months ago he became confined to a wheelchair but he continued to go to his office almost daily. A State highway patrolman acting as his personal aide carried him in and out of his automobile.

In the final stages of paralysis the Governor was unable to talk and could barely move his limbs. His last press conferences were conducted with his secretary deciphering his comments as he illustrated them on a spelling board.

William A. Anderson

Mt. Jackson, Va., May 25 (AP).—William A. Anderson, 64, retired public school official, died last night at his home, Beverley Farms, near here, after a long period of declining health.

A native of Glenwood, Rockbridge County, Mr. Anderson was a son of the late Francis P. and Rose Bruce Anderson, and a grandson of the late Justice Francis P. Anderson of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals. He was a lineal descendant of four former Virginia governors, Patrick Henry, Alexander Spotswood, William H. Cabell and Nathaniel West (Lord Delaware).

Conrad J. Langenfelder

Baltimore, May 25 (AP)—Conrad J. Langenfelder, 71-year-old contractor, died in his sleep early today.

He specialized in excavating, and his firm did much of the work on nearby Army and Navy air fields—Andrews Field at Camp Spring, Md., Phillips Field at Aberdeen Proving Ground, and the airport at Edgewood Arsenal. One of the recent jobs he was interested in was grading and excavating for Baltimore's new Friendship International Airport in Anne Arundel County.

Miss Elizabeth Shantz

Baltimore, May 25 (AP).—Miss Elizabeth P. Shantz, noted Baltimore educator in home economics, died in University Hospital today after a brief illness.

On the Party Calendar

Argentines Entertain; Leslie Biffle Is Host

By Marie McNair

WITH Argentina's Minister of War in town, and Glade Biffle celebrating a birthday, everybody—well, almost everybody—went partying yesterday.

The reception at the Argentine Embassy celebrated their national holiday, and Gen. Sosa Molina and Mme. Sosa Molina were distinguished honor guests.

Up at the Shoreham, I've never seen a greater turnout of big names than there were at Leslie Biffle's party in honor of his wife.

The Argentine blue and white striped flag with its emblem of gold flew over the doorway of the embassy, which has been put in readiness for the new Ambassador, who, I heard yesterday, is bringing a bride when he arrives the middle of June.

Hosts at the party were the Charge d'Affaires and Senora de Drago, and in the receiving line, which grew and grew, were members of the embassy staff, and officers of General Sosa Molina's staff who accompanied him on his visit here.

Staff Wears Gold

The Argentine cabinet minister wore a gold belted white tunic. So did his staff. Senora Sosa Molina was in black lace over pale pink satin with a purple orchid pinned to the low decolletage.

There's a Parisian chic to these ladies from Buenos Aires and Senora de Drago looked like a mannequin in burnished gold satin softly draped with a brown orchid for adornment and rows of bronze beading about the square-cut neckline. Senora de Quiros, wife of the Counselor, who also greeted the guests, wore an ankle length gown, the skirt of black crepe, the tunic of pale green and yellow crepe, and her black-brimmed hat was draped with a fishnet veil.

A good many of the guests were prepared to take in both parties then go on to dinner.

I saw Judge and Mrs. George Neilson first at the embassy, again at the Biffle's party, with Mrs. William Pope Anderson 3d, with them.

Admiral Clark Woodward and Mrs. Woodward came first to congratulate the Argentines, went on to congratulate Glade Biffle.

Gen. Matthew Ridgway was there with Mrs. Ridgway in a black and white costume and big black hat. Admiral and Mrs. W. O. Spears came in and Paul Daniels, chief of the American Republics Division of the State Department, was in a group which included John Dreier, also of the State Department. Ray Muir, assistant chief of protocol of the State Department, and Mrs. Muir circled around, finally wound up in the ballroom, where there was a buffet almost a block long with ham, turkeys, lobster, chilled salmon, pate in duck molds and wrapped in aspic, and lots of other delicacies.

There was another buffet equal in quantity and quality in the dining room and here I saw Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, Ecuador Ambassador to the Pan American Union, giving service to the ladies.

The Nicaraguan Ambassador, Dr. Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa, and pretty Lillian Sevilla Sacasa, were there, the Ambassador receiving congratulations that his government is once more in the good graces of the United States.

Among others were the Norwegian Ambassador, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne; Sir John Balfour, Charge d'Affaires of Great Britain; the Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Ferreyros, the Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila, Anis Azer, Charge d'Affaires of Egypt, the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis, the Bolivian Ambassador and Senor de Martinez Vargas.

It would be a lot easier to say who wasn't at Leslie and Glade Biffle's party than who was.

In a quick survey of the room I saw the Attorney General and Mrs. Clark, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John Snyder, former Secretary of State and Mrs. James F. Byrnes surrounded by friends, Senator Alben Barkley, Senator and Mrs. Brien McMahon, Senator and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, Mrs. J. William Fulbright, without her husband, and Mrs. John Steelman minus hers.

Glade Biffle, smiling and happy, wore a delicate black lace gown with orchids on her shoulder, and at the moment I walked in, "Happy Birthday to You," was being sung by the Belgian Ambassador, Baron Robert Silvercruys, and some of Mrs. Biffle's friends.

J. Edgar Hoover was there and Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Koo, the Ecuador Ambassador and Senora de Dillon, the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Belt.

Then there were the Sergeant at Arms of the Senate and Mrs. Edward McGinnis, Senator and Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, President Truman's Military Aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan, and Mrs. Vaughan; the Arthur Gardners, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air John Nicholas Brown, in dinner jacket, and Mrs. Brown, in a beautiful gown of white and gold brocade patterned in squares with steel bead medallions embroidered on the white blocks. The Cornelius Whitney, he's the Assistant Secretary of the Air Forces—were a good-looking couple in a room filled with smartly dressed women and important men.

Then I saw Clark Clifford, Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan, Jimmie Cromwell and his bride, dressed for dinner—Mrs. Cromwell in a bouffant gown of black tulle; Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young, District Commissioner John Russell Young, former Attorney General and Mrs. Homer Cummings, Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mrs. Harold Walker, the James Vardamans, the Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Harold Walker, Mrs. Frederick Brooks, Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip and dozens more.

* * * *

MRS. KATE SCOTT BROOKS was guest of honor yesterday at a surprise party to celebrate her 86th birthday anniversary, given by her daughter, Miss Katharine Brooks, at the American Newspaper Women's Club. Mrs. Brooks was first president of the club and is an honorary member.

Not one but two birthday cakes decorated the tea table and the little clubhouse was filled with flowers sent to the honor guest.

* * * *

WITH roses in full bloom and peonies in great quantities, Jonkheer and Mme. Rene de Marees entertained in their garden yesterday for their daughter, Mrs. F. R. Hoyer Millar, who has just come over from England.

Mrs. Millar is the wife of the British Minister, who preceded her to this country by several weeks.

Wedding Bells Ring

In First Presbyterian Church on May 22, Miss Gloria Wenrick, daughter of Mrs. Viola E. Wenrick of Washington and Lloyd A. Wenrick of Buffalo, N. Y., became the bride of Charles Henry Neely, son of Robert W. Neely and the late Mrs. Neely of Washington. The Rev. Allen McLachlan Frew officiated at the ceremony at 2 o'clock.

The bride wore a gown of white satin edged in lace, fashioned with long train, and her veil of illusion was fastened with orange blossoms to a Juliet cap. She carried a white orchid and lilies of the valley with a white Bible.

Mrs. Edward McKernon of New York City was matron of honor, gowned in shell pink pique and carrying a cascade bouquet of blue delphinium and white snap dragons. Miss Patricia Ann Neely of Narberth, Pa., niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Her frock was hyacinth blue and she carried a nosegay of mixed flowers.

Robert W. Neely, jr., brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Richard C. Kessler and John C. Horigan of Richmond, Va.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neely, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, immediately after the ceremony.

The bride attended Buffalo Art Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., and the bridegroom attended George Washington University.

maid of honor wearing yellow taffeta and marquisette and carrying a bouquet of purple iris and daisies.

Miss Jane Polk Ball, Miss Patricia Nickelsen, Miss Edith Lang and Mrs. Richard L. Hennessey were bridesmaids wearing aqua taffeta and marquisette and carrying yellow iris and daisies.

Capt. Clare H. Armstrong, jr., was best man. Maj. William A. Knowlton, Maj. Walter H. Cook, Maj. Thomas H. Farnsworth, Maj. Darrie H. Richards, Maj. Clifford J. Moore, jr., Maj. William F. Pitts, Capt. Robert S. Beightler, jr., and Capt. William H. Fritz were ushers.

After a reception held in the Fort Fort Myer hop hall, the couple left for a Southern wedding trip. On their return the couple will reside in Sandia Base, Albuquerque, N. Mex.

The bride is a graduate of Vassar College and her husband is a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Burger—Layman

Miss Mary Italene Layman, daughter of Mrs. Julia Constance Layman and the late Nelson B. Layman of DuQuoin, Ill., was married to Joel A. Burger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burger of New York City, May 16, in the First Baptist Church, the Rev. E. H. Pruden officiating.

Given in marriage by her brother, N. H. Layman of Chicago, the bride wore a deep powder blue suit with pink accessories. The attendants, Miss Doris Mae Johnson, maid of honor, and Miss Elsie Kottman and Miss Dorothy McRoberts, wore pastel suits and white accessories.

G. W. Senior Class Calls at White House

Members of the graduating class of George Washington University had a day-long round of social activities yesterday prior to their formal graduating exercises today.

Between 400 and 500 young men and women who will receive their degrees today, as well as graduate students at the university, were received at the White House by Mrs. Truman at 3 p. m.

Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president, and Mrs. Marvin were hosts at their annual reception for graduates in the Chinese Room at the Mayflower from 8:30 to 11:30 p. m.

Davidson—Arnold

Miss Dorothy Maurine Arnold became the bride of Lester Earle Davidson, U. S. A., on May 23 in the Westover Baptist Church, the Rev. Harvey Glass officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. R. D. Arnold and the late Mr. Arnold, formerly of Richmond, Mo., and her husband is the son of Mrs. Robert Choniocki of Orange, N. J.

Given in marriage by her brother, Kenneth Arnold, the bride wore a traditional white satin gown and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas.

Miss Thelma E. Arnold attended her sister as maid of honor wearing orchid marquisette over taffeta and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of spring flowers. The bridesmaids, Mrs. James D. Ne Smith of Manchester, Ga., and Miss Mamie Waldrep of Washington, wore gowns of Nile green marquisette over taffeta and carried old-fashioned bouquets of spring flowers.

Archie Moore of Havertown, Pa., was best man and George Ortlip and Erl Dordal were ushers.

The bride is a graduate of Strayer Business College and is employed at the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Her husband, now stationed at Fort Monmouth, N. J., has served with the Army for the past 10 years and during the war was in the European theater for 36 months.

Jillson—O'Dell

In the Sacred Heart Church, May 8, Miss Louise Marjorie O'Dell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Echols O'Dell of Quinwood, W. Va., became the bride of Donald H. Jillson, son of Mrs. Grace Jillson of New York City, the Rev. Donald J. Fannon officiating.

Given in marriage by Richard Finn of Boston, the bride wore a gown of white satin. Her fingertip veil was held by a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The reception was held at the home of Robert O'Dell in Silver Spring, Md., after which the couple left for a short wedding trip to New York.

Mrs. Harriman Entertains Mrs. Truman

MRS. TRUMAN was guest of honor at a luncheon yesterday given by Mrs. William Averell Harriman, wife of the Ambassador-at-large for E.C.A. The party was given in Mrs. Harriman's apartment at the Shoreham. Guests were seated around a long table centered with three bowls of pink sweetpeas.

Mrs. Fred Vinson was a guest, as well as Mrs. George C. Marshall. Others were Mrs. John W. Snyder, Mrs. James V. Forrestal, Mrs. Thomas Campbell Clark, Mrs. Jesse Monroe Donaldson, Mrs. J. A. Krug, Mrs. Clinton Anderson, Mrs. Charles Sawyer, Mrs. W. Stuart Symington, Mrs. Robert A. Lovett and Mrs. William Chapman Foster.

Vacation in West

Mrs. W. Drunkard and Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Roll of Washington are vacationing at the Ahwahnee in Yosemite National Park, California.

Parties Are Canceled

Due to the illness of Mrs. George W. Bean the parties which she and Mr. Bean were to give on Saturday, May 29 and Sunday, May 30, have been canceled.

On the Club Front:

Secretary Royall Lists Requisites for Peace

By Genevieve Reynolds

Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall yesterday declared that "fairness, firmness, firepower and faith" are the four requisites for world peace.

He presented his personal credo in a speech before some 800 members and guests of the Political Study Club at the organization's annual breakfast held in the Mayflower Hotel.

The Secretary emphasized that by "firepower" he meant preparedness and stressed the point, "No one is more determined to have world peace than I am." Then he added, "except that it must be an honorable peace."

"I can't find anything desirable in World War III," he said, "but the problem is how to have peace. Appeasement doesn't bring peace."

Obviously referring to Soviet Russia, Royall asserted, "One nation knows nothing except force. It is difficult to deal with such a nation. It is difficult for the President, Congress and the Government departments.

"You can't reach a sound conclusion by what Russia says but by what she does," he continued.

Pleas for UMT

Issuing a strong plea for Universal Military Training and the draft, the Secretary of the Army pointed out that Russia is spending four times as much as the United States on its armed services.

"We are spending about 7 per cent of our national income on defense whereas Russia is spending 28 per cent of its national income," he continued. "The Soviet has 14,000 planes compared to our 7000."

"Is defense or possible aggression the reason,"? he asked.

Russia cannot possibly fear attack from its controlled satellite countries on her western borders. On the south there is no country with real military power. China on the east, torn by civil war with friendly Communists in the ascendancy, is no threat. And the northern border of the Soviet is a polar ice cap, according to Secretary Royall.

"Russia's plea of self-defense makes no sense at all," he said.

However, Secretary Royall made it clear that he did not believe war is imminent but that we must keep in mind that war is a distinct possibility . . . that the United States must be prepared to meet it, should it come.

"Above all," concluded the speaker, "a sound economy must be preserved in any future war as after World War I and World War II."

Mrs. Erland H. Hedrick introduced the Secretary of the Army.

Included on the program were greetings by Mrs. Theophilous John Morgan, club president; a musical program by Mrs. Hope Ross Anderson, pianist; Mrs. Leo F. Haines, violinist; Mrs. Raymond V. Briggs, violinist. Musicians were presented by Miss Lillian Chenoweth.

Special greetings were given by the former Empress Zita of Austria, who was among the distinguished guests including the Countess Teressa Kerssenbrock, Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, wife of the Delegate from Hawaii, and Mrs. Thomas F. Burke.

Mrs. Edward Campbell Shields was aide to the club president, Mrs. Harry V. Schnable was chairman, and Miss Maud B. Snead, vice chairman of the breakfast committee.

League Votes Three-Point Local Program

The Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters yesterday adopted a three-point local program to work for the referendum an delections, provided Congress passes the Auchincloss-Ball bill to give self-government to citizens of the District.

Action was taken at the league's annual meeting held in All Souls' Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

Provisions of the 1948-'49 local agenda of the league call for emphasis on the following:

1. Government by the people with:
(a) Full suffrage for the District of Columbia.
(b) Protection of civil liberties.
(c) Protection of academic freedom in the public school system.
2—Government of the people with:
(a) Departments with clearly defined responsibility.
(b) Adequate appropriations to support public services.
(c) An equitable system of taxation and Federal payment.
3—Government for the people with:
(a) A system of public services, particularly in the fields of health, education, housing, welfare and employment, based on the needs of the community
(b) A housing program on sound community planning, with slum clearance and public housing for low income groups.
(c) Elimination of racial discrimination.

In event Congress does not pass the District charter bill the league will continue its long fight for District suffrage, according to Mrs. John F. Thomas, president.

The national current agenda adopted by the District League, which is a part of the National League of Women Voters' agenda, includes support of the United Nations and its specialized agencies; use of all available means under the Charter to increase the security functions of the U. N.; a full information program to strengthen the U. N.; support for the promotion of international reconstruction and expansion of world trade plus thorough analysis of Federal taxes and expenditures in order to understand and support such fiscal policies as make for a stable economy.

New officers elected during the afternoon session are Mrs. Earle V. Simrell, first vice president; Mrs. Stephen Burke, secretary; Mrs. Maurice Goodman, Mrs. William Kaufman, Mrs. D'Alton B. Myers and Mrs. Walter Tobriner, members of the board of directors.

All except Mrs. Tobriner, who is filling in an unexpired term of a board member, were elected for two year terms.

World Police Force Is Advocated by Club Federation

Portland, Ore., May 25 (AP).—The General Federation of Women's Clubs today advocated an international police force and extension of reciprocal trade agreements for a three-year period.

Resolutions for these were passed without opposition as the first business sessions of the fifty-seventh annual convention began here with 2000 delegates present.

The federation also indorsed the international trade organization, urged clubs to sponsor adult education forums, and protested "current literature which tends to lower the moral standards and literature appreciation of our youth."

Mrs. Frank J. Pratt, jr., chairman of the American home department, offered a resolution to encourage sobriety. Mrs. Paul Dupertius, president of the Wyoming Federation of Women's Clubs proposed five amendments to stiffen the resolution.

"The consumption of alcoholic beverages by teen-agers has reached alarming proportions," she said. The amendments, not yet in final form, protest liquor advertising and drinking scenes in motion pictures.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Ostensibly a Family Friend, Woman Solicits Advice on Managing Boy, Past Four Years Old, Who Is Savagely Rough With Younger Brothers

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am writing at the request of friends who have three small sons and are baffled by the behavior of the eldest, Don, now approximately 4½ years old.

He is extremely precocious, the kind who is always two jumps ahead of you and appears to be jealous of the younger boys, one of whom is 3 years, and the other 18 months old.

He is always hitting them or knocking them down, has launched some vicious attacks on Mark, the second boy, and when the smaller lads build anything with blocks or their mechanical toys, he waits until they've almost finished, then smashes it. He can be very sweet to them one minute and hostile the next.

Kind Treatment Makes Him Worse

BOOKS on child psychology say that in dealing with a child like Don, you should study his interests and give him a chance to develop them. He likes to work with carpenter tools, but only so long as he has an audience of the two younger boys, who are supposed to sit quietly and watch him show off.

The boys worship him, but he has Mark cowed to a pitiful extent, and if they touch a tool, Don throws a hammer at them. The more his parents do to make him feel loved and secure, the worse he acts; and lately, at Sunday School, he has started the same tactics.

His parents have tried spanking him, which does no good. Also, they have tried giving him the same treatment he gives his brothers, but then he acts as if they are being cruel to him for no reason at all. Talking and explaining doesn't help; he refuses to accept the fact that he has done anything wrong.

He enters day-school next fall and things may be different then, as boys his age may knock off some of the rough spots; but in the meantime, can you furnish some helpful suggestions? My husband and I read your column daily and enjoy it immensely. S. F.

Lad's Spoiled By Favoritism

DEAR S. F.: It isn't likely that a family friend would be so well informed about the problem, and so well disposed towards the spoiled brat Don, despite his noxious behavior, as you are. So I am assuming that you are the mother.

As I have said, Don is a spoiled brat. That's the problem in a nutshell. He probably had a long running start in that direction, owing to your indulgent pride in his precociousness, before his brothers were born; and your subsequent attempts to curb his savage abuse of them have been fitful and chickenhearted at best.

To explain the situation, you are faithfully devoted to the smaller fry, but worshipfully infatuated with Don, which may be an overstatement, but is still very much the general idea; and therefore, weakened by fool-mother sentiment as regards him, you lack firmness in dealing with his headstrong temperament.

Needs Schooling In Self Restraint

CONFRONTED with serious instances of his misconduct, you tend to temporize in his favor, to "feel" or "think" from his viewpoint, instead of acting instantly to constitute yourself absolute arbiter of impartial justice guaranteed all.

Although you strive with Don in moments of fright or exasperation, the major drift of your mothering is to keep him happy on his terms, insofar as possible, while also trying to protect his brothers from his dangerous bullying. And this left-handed coddling of him is a ruinous abdication of your duty to school him in civilized restraint and decent consideration for others' rights.

For advice, see pages 207-213 in Chapter 15, titled "Education and Instruction," of Lecomte du Nouy's book "Human Destiny" (Longmans, Green & Company), where the author tells how to invest a child with the foundations of moral character and explains why this work should begin in the child's infancy and be substantially completed between his third and seventh years. You will find that du Nouy's logic puts the finger on your mistakes and tersely proposes the antidote. M. H.

Hazel Scaife Detwiler, ceramics artist, will give a lecture today at 8:30 p. m. at Chequire House, 202 King st., Alexandria. She illustrates her talk with some of her latest pieces of work, including a chess set modeled after characters in "Alice In Wonderland."

Mrs. Detwiler, wife of a naval officer, first became interested in ceramics during the early days of the war when she was living in Philadelphia, where her husband was stationed. After coming to Washington she enrolled in a local art school and bought a kiln. She recently added a potter's wheel to her equipment.

How to Keep Range Of Record Cabinet

For a Wedding Breakfast

CRANBERRY HEART CHICKEN SALAD

Festive dish for the informal wedding breakfast is a Cranberry Heart Chicken Salad. It can be made in three layers in a heart-shaped mold, or a square mold can be used and the gelatin trimmed to heart shape after it's turned out.

CRANBERRY HEART CHICKEN SALAD

Cranberry layer:

1 pound cranberry sauce
½ cup water
1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water

Chicken layer:

2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups diced cooked chicken
¼ cup slivered blanched almonds
¼ cup diced green pepper
¼ cup diced celery

To make cranberry layer, crush sauce with fork, add ½ cup water and heat thoroughly. Soak the gelatin in 2 tablespoons water 5 minutes and add to hot sauce. Pour half of this into bottom of mold and chill in refrigerator until firm.

To make chicken layer, soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes and dissolve over boiling water. Add other ingredients and pour over stiffened cranberry layer. Chill, and when firm, add rest of cranberry gelatin.

I have had a radio-record player cabinet made by a woodworking shop. I have assembled it, and would appreciate some advice on finishing it. The wood is white poplar, and appears to be good, close-grained stock. On two test panels I have tried two oil stains—maple, and walnut—and both have turned out undesirable colors; the former, too orange, and the latter, too brown.

Have also finished one panel with three coats of varnish, but it is far too "glossy." I would like to finish it in a "honey color," but do not know if poplar will take this. Moreover, I have been unable to find a shop where I can get water stain or the materials to make it up. I have the specifications for honey (maple) water stain if I could get the materials. (I know you cannot recommend a specific store, but if you could give me a lead it would be helpful. Five or six paint and artists' stores I've tried do not seem to have water stains). J. G. T.

There is a paint store on New York Avenue which sells a honey-color, acid-type stain which is thinned with water. The gentleman with whom I discussed your problem, thought this stain would be satisfactory and said that he would be glad to help you work out the right shade if you would come in, bringing with you a small piece of wood corresponding to that in the cabinet. You can get in touch with him by calling NAtional 8610.

On the same record cabinet would building up a number of coats of wax directly over the water stain give a dull finish, and yet give good protection to the wood, or should shellac or varnish be used? (Have heard that only varnish gives a real hard protective surface, but it seems so glossy). J. G. T.

A dull protective finish can be best achieved by applying varnish and then rubbing the dried surface with oil and pumice applied with a felt pad. However, varnish cannot be applied directly to a penetrating stain such as the water-mixed stains, for the color will be drawn into the varnish and cause smears. This can be prevented by applying a coat of white shellac, following it with the varnish. To dull the gloss on the thoroughly dried varnish, place the powdered pumice stone in a flat receptacle such as a box cover. Wrap a square of felt around a wood block and dampen it with linseed oil, sweet oil or other light oil. Touch the oiled felt to the pumice and shake. Rub the varnished surface with the pumice stone which clings. Rub lightly in straight strokes with the grain, with no more than six or eight strokes in one place. A greater number or heavy pressure will cut through the varnish. Rub the entire piece in this manner, taking care to rub all parts evenly. After rubbing, the surface should be immediately cleaned by wiping with soft cloths wet with the same oil used for rubbing.

Has Anyone Told You . . .

An assortment of more than 50 delicious cookies is found in the fiftieth anniversary box now being packed and sold by one of our largest biscuit companies. In honor of its anniversary, the company has invented 10 new kinds of cookies, many of them sandwich varieties. The box makes an attractive gift for a family of children or almost anyone who likes good cookies.

Brewed in glass and served in silver is coffee made in the latest in automatic coffee makers. The lower part of this appliance is made of chrome filled with sterling silver and the top is flame-tested glass. After the coffee is brewed automatically, the high heat shuts off and the beverage is kept at serving temperature indefinitely.

Now available in clear glass as well as the faintly bluish kind are well-and-tree platters of heat resistant glass. These can be used for roasting or broiling meat, then for serving it. Attractive in appearance, they keep the food sizzling hot.

Before Leaving for Rome

Lone Man Says Farewell At Pasha Luncheon Party To 14 Women Friends

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WE HAVE BEEN to hen luncheons, heard tell of stag affairs but until yesterday, had never attended a Pasha's luncheon. The descriptive term is of our own coining—what else could you call Newbold Walmsley's party? Mr. W., who is Ambassador Jimmy Dunn's right hand man over in Italy, reserved a table in the Mayflower's darkest recess, asked some fourteen lady friends to join him.

It was a farewell gesture, since the host returns to Rome Saturday. The ladies, hatted and dressed most decoratively, were mildly startled to find Mr. Walmsley the only gent present.

They hoped for some entertainment feature, such as a girl in a pie, or a hula-hula dancer, but the meal ended on a conservative note of coffee and brandy. The ladies, however, devoted considerable effort writing messages on a menu to Mrs. Walmsley who, presumably, is languishing in Rome. To give all his guests a chance to chat with him, Newbie staggered his eating, finishing the first courses at one end of the table, then shifting to the other. It was lots of fun and a painless way to pay off hospitality showered on the host during his brief Washington leave.

Oratory for Dinner

AT SENATOR and Mrs. Owen Brewster's very plush dinner honoring the retiring senior Senator from Maine, Wallace White, and his lady, some snippets of amusing oratory were delivered by both Senator Alben Barkley and Senator Vandenberg. In eulogizing his confrere, whose New England accent is lavishly interlarded with broad a's, Senator Vandenberg said, "Once I began to understand his foreign accent, I liked Senator White."

"During his first term a bill on fishing restrictions came up. The Senator started to talk about 'shot' lobsters. What a queer sport, I thought, shooting lobsters! Then I discovered he meant "short" lobsters but was pronouncing it 'Shaaart.' After this was straightened out we got along famously."

Senator Barkley, who claimed to be representing all the other Republican presidential nominees, told a story about former Vice President Charles Dawes. Sitting on his high seat in the Senate one day, Dawes said to Barkley sourly, "This is the dullest job in the world. There are only two things I do, first listen to all of you arguing without a chance of replying; second, brighten up my day by looking through the papers, first thing in the morning, to see how the President's health is!"

The Brewsters, incidentally, achieved a tour de force. Some 150 people sat down to dinner, enjoyed themselves, without touching a drop of alcohol. This department, innocent in worldly ways, downed half a dozen glasses of what we supposed was champagne, felt terrifically stimulated, then found it was only white grape juice. Maine lobsters, plus filet mignon, plus a strawberry meringue, was more than compensation, gastronomically speaking, for cocktails and such!

Festival Tickets Sold on Bus

MRS. JOHN GOODELL, coordinating chairman of the "International Festival" which is being given May 28 in Constitution Hall to benefit the United Nations Appeal for Children, has found a new method of selling tickets. She actually sold seven on a Connecticut ave. bus—and got the conductor so enthusiastic about her cause that he broadcast it to his passengers.

Mme. Tarchiani, the Italian Ambassadress, is personally rehearsing the Italian children who will take part in the pageant. The kids are putting on an act called "La Doneica del Villagio"—and you should hear the Ambassadress singing, "Ring Around-a-Rosy" in her native tongue.

Aside from the 400 children from 20 embassies who are taking part, there are to be all sorts of curious musical instruments, some of them hitherto unheard in Washington. The Chinese will have a flute orchestra, the Italians an accordion; the Greeks, clarinos; the Siamese, gongs; the Spanish, guitars, castanets. The Filipinos are staging a dance with two bamboo poles, and the children are supposed to be little birds hopping amongst them. Mme. Nehru, whose husband is charge d'affaires of the Indian Embassy, is writing the script for the Indian children actors and actresses. There's been a terrific demand for tickets—and the best way of getting yours is to call STerling 3500.

Re: The Friendship Sale

LAST WEEK this department jotted down a few behind-the-scenes notes on the Friendship sale. We're making bold to print a letter received from Bradley Delehanty, senior partner in the Meredith Galleries, which conducted the auction.

"Dear Molly: I have just received a copy of your article, re: our auction. It was the first favorable publicity we received. It was well written, amusing, truthful. Thanks a lot. Could you possibly arrange to send me a half-dozen copies?—Sincerely yours, Brad."

Anne Martin to Be Married To British Officer June 1

Miss Anne Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martin of Westmoreland Hills, Md., has selected June 1 as the date of her marriage to Capt. Edward McIver, British Army. The ceremony will take place at the Naval Communications Annex chapel at 4 p. m.

Mrs. Raymond Edward Thayer has come from Hawaii to be her sister's matron of honor and other attendants will be Miss Carolyn Wilkes, cousin of the prospective bridegroom; Mrs. Harry Andrews, Miss Annette Roberts of Landover, Md., and Miss Joanne Day of Short Hills, N. J.

Captain McIver will have Squadron Leader J. U. Stacey, D. F. C., as his best man and ushers will include Maj. W. B. E. Brown, M. C.; Maj. Michael Hornsby, D. S. O. Maj. Joseph Smith and Lieut. Sterling Bolling.

Miss Martin and Captain McIver will be feted at a cocktail party on Sunday, May 30, to be given by Comdr. and Mrs. Charles Wilkes, and the following day Mrs. Thayer will give a luncheon for her sister at the Army-Navy Country Club. Following the rehearsal on May 31 Mrs. Alexander McIver, mother of Captain McIver, will give a dinner for members of the bridal party.

Others who have entertained for the bride-elect and her fiance are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leich who entertained at cocktails; Miss Annette Roberts, who was hostess at tea; Mrs. Harry Andrews and Miss Sheila McCabe, who gave showers for Miss Martin.

AAUW Will Install New Officers

The Washington branch, American Association of University Women, will honor its newly elected officers with a reception Thursday at the clubhouse from 5 to 6 p. m. Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm, outgoing president, will be hostess.

There will be a club dinner at 6 o'clock for club members.

The following new officers will be installed: Dr. Elizabeth Whiting Conrad, president; Mrs. Hampton D. Percy, second vice president; Mrs. J. P. Mewshaw, recording secretary; Miss E. Grace Deal, treasurer, and Judge Annabel Matthews, director.

Fashion Show Slated For Army Women

The Army's contingent of women in uniform will be treated to a fashion show of their own tonight at Delano Hall, the nurses' home at Walter Reed General Hospital.

Wacs and nurses, who must spend at least a third of their daily lives in khaki or white, have a natural interest in attire for the other two thirds of their day, their leisure hours. So officials have arranged a show that will feature clothes suited to their particular needs. There wil be both spectator and sports fashions, cotton suits and dresses for town and country wear. Costumes will be from the Charles Haberdashers in Silver Spring, and models will be from the Phyllis Bell Modeling School. Miss Annette Ward of Fairchild Publications will be commentator.

YOUR GUESTS WILL RAVE

You'll be complimented on your hors d'oeuvres if you order from us. Clement's makes an unusual variety of tempting, eye-delighting canapes, hors d'oeuvres and cocktail sandwiches. Be sure you serve the best; call Clement's.

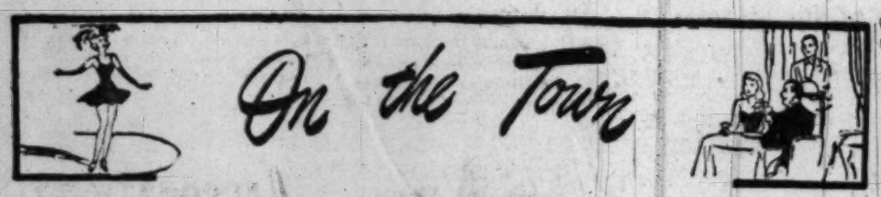
On the Town



THE Statler's Embassy Room show follows its usual standard by bringing in topnotch acts when available and not holding shows when acts are scarce. The present attraction is Rolly Rols, who once called himself the "Mad Parisian" but later dropped the name when he changed his act. His mainstays are his impressions of different types of pianists. His best known act is that of the concert pianist in his first concert. Andre, Andree and Bonnie come up with a new twist on dance routines by having the two girls pose with mannequin masks over their heads while Andre works out with a real mannequin. After a few moments of this the girls discard their masks and go into their dances. This show will be in the Embassy Room through June 2.

Summer will be here in earnest tomorrow night with the opening of the Shoreham Terrace. Barring vagaries of the weather, the terrace will be open nightly from 7 till 12:30, with the floor show going on at 10. Of course Barnee, who was complaining about the heat a week or so back, will be breaking out with his summer tuxedo to furnish music for the dancers. The floor show will be made up of Mario and Floria, who have done a wonderful job in the Blue Room these two weeks. Along with Mario and Floria will be the Costello sisters, who have just wound up 4½ years with Earl Carroll in Hollywood.

One of the big attractions that's been added this year is the new fountain with what you might well call a floor show in colors. It plays a changing pattern of colors, and if you can spot the same pattern any time within 20 minutes something's wrong with the controls and it's time to call the electrician.

FRANK FAY, when he can shake his friend Harvey for a while, drops in to eat at Olmsted's. Being as much a character off stage as he is on, he tried to talk the hatcheck girl into leaving her job by telling her that she is much too good for the place (he's really fond of it) and that she would have a promising career on the stage. Usually a number of people ask for his autograph when he dines there and you can imagine his surprise when he looked up into the face of an autograph seeker who turned out to be the lawyer who arranged his divorce from Barbara Stanwyck. Small-world stuff.

Fay swears that Brahms, the manager, is not a Swede. Says he really has an unmistakable French accent, recognizable to someone like himself who only speaks "bawdy house French." His recommendation of Olmsted's was this. "I see you're recommended by the three A's. Now you're also being recommended by the two F's and in three D's, delightful, delicious, delectable. Frank Fay."

Child Creates Big, Bad Wolf From Fear of Being Alone

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The child who spends the largest share of time with one parent becomes very dependent upon her. Such a baby cries and is inconsolable if the mother disappears from the room, and the older child shows marked anxiety when the parent leaves the house, even though the absence is expected.

"Recently," writes Mrs. G. S. "I have had trouble every time I have left my daughter. She is nearly 4 years old, goes to Sunday school happily, but asks every day whether I am going away. She is upset even when her grandmother stays with her and sobs bitterly when I leave her with a sitter. If she thinks I am going out in the evening, she can't go to sleep for an hour or two after she goes to bed. Once she told me that there was something next to her crib, then something in her closet. She said it was 'The big, bad wolf.' She must have heard this somewhere.

"Perhaps I am more worried because when I was 8 my parents went to a movie leaving me and my 2-year-old sister alone. We were terribly frightened when we woke up and discovered we were alone. Our folks talked to us, told us they needed recreation, but that didn't prevent us from being scared to death at every creak and noise. I am still uneasy about being left alone. I have had psychiatric treatment and am trying to get over this."

Here is a parent who, herself, is showing the life-long results of parental neglect. If parents think that a child does not suffer from being unprotected, here is evidence to the contrary.

Your child's own fears are a reflection of yours. You can't help but give yourself away and she thinks that there is something to fear and so she is anxious when you leave her.

Also, she is at the age when she is imaginative about what she feels though she cannot say, "I am afraid," as easily as she can manufacture concrete monsters upon whom to blame her emotions.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that a meeting of the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission on May 14, 1948, the following regulation was adopted and shall have full force and effect of law on and after August 1, 1948:

REGULATION IV

TREATMENT AND DISPOSAL OF INDUSTRIAL WASTES.

No industrial wastes other than acid-mine drainage shall be placed or permitted to be placed or discharged or permitted to flow into any of the waters of the State in any manner by any person unless the industrial wastes after treatment or untreated shall meet with the ten industrial waste requirements established by the Water Pollution Control Commission BEFORE being discharged into any waters of the State. These ten industrial waste requirements are as follows:

1. Settleable Solids—Must not exceed 400 ppm in one liter of representative sample settled 1 hour in an Imhoff cone.
2. Turbidity—Must transmit 10% of light through 12 inches of sample in a 3-inch column.
3. Oxygen Consumption—Must not exceed 50% of saturation in the stream. Oxidizable material in the effluent not to exceed 500 ppm. B.O.D. in the effluent not to exceed 100 ppm.
4. Toxicity of Toxic Compounds—Must be totally removed.
5. Color—Color intensity regradless of frequency must not exceed 400 ppm on the chloroplatinate scale.
6. Dissolved Solids—Must not exceed 1500 ppm.
7. PH—Must not range below 5.5 or above 9.5.
8. Temperature—Must be below 100 degrees F. in the stream within 50 feet from waste outlet.
9. Floating Solids and Liquids—Must be completely removed. Oils and greases in the effluent must not exceed 30 ppm.
10. Taste and Odor—Effluent must not exceed threshold odor number of 1000. Mixture of the waste and receiving waters shall have a threshold odor number not in excess of 90.

These are maximum values, but are not fixed values. They cannot be made more liberal but they can be made more stringent if a survey of the stream indicates that it is polluted or is continuing to be degraded.

Any industrial wastes, after treatment or untreated, which do not meet with the above requirements shall be deemed and considered in violation of this regulation based on Maryland law, Chapter 697, of the Acts of the General Assembly of the State of Maryland of 1947, and shall be subject to penalties imposed thereby. Each day upon which a violation occurs under this regulation shall be deemed a separate and additional violation.

MARYLAND WATER POLLUTION CONTROL COMMISSION
JOSEPH H. McLAIN, Chairman.
By PAUL W. McKEE, Executive Secretary.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission on May 14, 1948, the following regulation was adopted and shall have full force and effect of law on and after June 1, 1948:

REGULATION III

All food-processing and food-packing plants in Maryland (including fruit and vegetable canners and processors, fish and sea-food packers and processors, meat and poultry packers and processors) are required to meet the following conditions in the disposal of the waste products resulting from food-processing and packing operations:

1. All solids must be removed from plant wastes discharging into or adjacent to State waters either directly or indirectly through municipal sewers.
2. The elimination of these solids from State waters constitutes minimum treatment requirements and plants discharging strong dissolved organic wastes, caustic acid, lye or other deleterious substances and plants discharging wastes into State waters that are seriously polluted or that are particularly important to fish, shellfish or aquatic life or that have insufficient volume to absorb the wastes without ill effect shall be required to provide additional and satisfactory treatment as may be necessary.
3. The size of solids to be removed shall be that size retained by a screen no coarser than 1/32-inch mesh.
4. Grinding, maceration or any operation intended to reduce the size of the solids so that they can pass the screens will not be permitted.
5. Plants which presently have screens with mesh larger than 1/32-inch mesh openings will be permitted to use existing installations during the 1948 canning season provided these screens have openings no larger than ¼-inch mesh. Screens of at least 1/32-inch mesh must be installed and operated before the start of the 1949 canning season.

Any food-processing or food-packing plant which does not meet with the above requirements shall be deemed and considered in violation of this regulation based on Maryland law, Chapter 697 of the Acts of 1947 and shall be subject to penalties imposed thereby. Each day upon which a violation occurs under this regulation shall be deemed a separate and additional violation.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Wife Wonders Why Hubby Always Gets Stuck With Check

Mrs. H. E. D. of Chevy Chase, Md., want to know why her husband always has to emerge as the successful contestant in the grab for the dinner check.

The masterful fumbling of one acquaintance has led Mrs. D. to compose this little jingle:

A man I know has a disease;
I don't know what you'd call it.
The only fitting name, I think,
Is hardening of the wallet.

MISCELLANY

Fred Battle of 1409 Mount Vernon blvd., Alexandria, Va., tells me that the broker who invented the push-button telephone dial has been wasting his time. Ten years ago, Fred and a friend worked out a similar device, but abandoned the project when they discovered that somebody in France already had the gadget on the market . . . The Bethesda-Chevy Chase Cooperative Nursery School is holding open house at the recreation center today (4700 Norwood dr., Bethesda, Md.; 3 to 5 p. m.) and you can get details from Mrs. Jean Williams at Wisconsin 0306 . . . The ladies of the newly formed Independence Chapter of B'nai B'rith have decided to make Children's Hospital their first project, with more than 150 members helping to staff the wards and help with clerical work. In addition, each time the gals visit the hospital they take along some crayons, books, rattles or toys for the children; and now they're organizing a Shoe Fund, to make sure that each of the little patients has a good pair of shoes when he's discharged. Anybody who'd like to help the good work is invited to call Mrs. Maurice Goldberg of 6410 Western ave., Chevy Chase, Md., who is chairman of the drive. Her phone number is Wisconsin 4991 . . . Historian Ernest Lee Andes of 821 Crittenden st. nw. says that he doesn't know of any other name for "Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-ay," which is merely listed as "A Character Song, words by Richard Morton, music by Angelo A. Asher." But District Liner Andes adds the interesting footnote that the song was originally dedicated to Hattie F. Townley—of Washington, D. C . . . Speaking of songs, Mary Burns of 2013 New Hampshire ave. nw. wants to know whether we can tell her the name of a song about which she remembers only that, "It describes an elderly man who met the train every day when it stopped in the small town in which he lived. One part of the song goes something like this: 'Some day there'll be no more old folks.' Do you think anybody can identify it from those clews?" I doubt it, Mary. I don't think Oscar Levant reads this column.

(Which reminds me: Oscar Levant's mother can't understand why everybody thinks Oscar is so clever. She thinks her other son, a dignified Pittsburgh dentist, is the brighter of the two. To me it looks like a toss-up. They both make a living by pounding on the ivories.)

AB, B, HB AND SAC EQUALS R, PO AND LOB

My recent reference to "proving" a baseball box score has produced just one correct explanation of the proper method—and it comes from a woman.

Mrs. Thomas J. Scheblik of 4329 Hally ter. se. says her husband has taught her that:

"The total of a team's official times at bat (AB) plus its hit batsmen (HB), sacrifice hits (SAC) and bases on balls (B) should equal the total of runs scored (R) and men left on bases (LOB) plus the other team's putouts (PO)."

Correct. But to forestall criticism from the purists, we ought to add that if a batsman is awarded first base because of interference by the catcher, we add "1" to the side of the ledger which lists the "at bats."

If I've forgotten anything else, I have a ready alibi. It's been many long years since I quit covering ball games and started putting in an honest day's work for my pay.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Permit me to register a protest against your remarks about women drivers.

I'm 28, and have been driving since I was so little I had to sit on pillows to see the road. I've never had an accident and I challenge any man to say I'm not a good driver.

When a woman driver makes a mistake, you men immediately notice it and comment about it. But men are constantly making similar mistakes, which other men simply ignore. Why?

Jackie Angerman
Tysons Corner, Va.

Dear Jackie:

It's more fun to watch women.

Bill.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Frederick Lonsdale sailed for England last week to start his new film job with the J. Arthur Rank organization, and to keep an appointment with G. B. Shaw. They've been friends ever since Lonsdale left the Dramatists League during the first war because Shaw had been asked to resign for suggesting that the war would end if the enlisted men on both sides would shoot all officers. "I certainly am not good enough to belong to any organization of dramatists which won't have Shaw," said Lonsdale, in resigning . . . He tells of a Shaw birthday party he attended, and hearing Shaw say: "It may be that I came into this world mad, or a little too sane. But my Kingdom is not of this world; I am at home only in the realms of my imagination and at my ease only with the mighty Dead."

A Yale clubman who was graduated from Yale in 1896 tells this story about his distinguished classmate, Anson Phelps Stokes, whose listing in "Who's Who" takes up almost a full column. One day Stokes met four other members of the Yale Class of '96 at luncheon. He enjoyed this reunion so much that he invited them to dine with him. He telephoned his wife and said: "I'm going to bring some '96 chaps home to dinner" . . . "Ninety-six?" replied Mrs. Stokes. "I'm afraid that's impossible, dear. Our table can accommodate only 40."

Lawrence Langner, head of the Theater Guild, saw a preview of the Cagney picture, "The Time of Your Life," and told of the time the Guild produced this play by William Saroyan. The set featured a pin-ball machine which had to light up at certain moments. During the rehearsals Langner approached Saroyan and suggested: "This line has to be fixed." The author told him: "No. Never mind the words. Let's fix the pin-ball machine" . . . During the hectic rehearsals, director Eddie Dowling told the bewildered Will Ley: "Young man, I've been in the theater for 30 years." Lee replied: "So have I — the past 3 weeks."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Visitors Make 'Detour'

By Drew Pearson

For some time, Washington observers were amazed at the number of visitors President Truman saw daily. But now the calling list has tapered off. The official list released every morning shows only a handful of visitors.

Lord Inverchapel

What most people don't know, however, is that there are five separate entrances to the White House, and in recent weeks Truman has been fooling the press. While regular White House correspondents wait in the lobby of the executive offices watching for presidential visitors, various private callers slip in other doors. Sometimes as many as 25 will flow into Truman's office unnoticed. They come in through various side doors, sometimes even the distant east wing, and are then spirited around the back through the rose garden and in to the President.

In recent days, Truman has held numerous significant confabs, none listed. He has seen Joe Keenan, head of the A. F. of L. political action committee, British Ambassador Lord Inverchapel, and French Ambassador Henri Bonnet.

Old-Age Pensions

At a secret powwow with Congressional Democratic leaders last week, President Truman was told there was little chance of Congress approving any of his proposals to increase old-age pensions. However, the leaders advised that the people were entitled to a frank report on how old-age insurance benefits—on which millions of Americans depend for retirement security—have lagged behind higher wages and living costs. That was why Truman decided to send his message to Congress anyway.

Michigan's aggressive representative, John Dingell, an original champion of the Social Security law, summed it up bluntly: "Unless pensions are increased in ratio to higher wages, higher taxes, and higher living costs, counties that have sold their poorhouses for the aged will have to re-establish them."

Dingell said it would be "actuarially sound" to increase pensions because of increased revenues from payroll taxes. He added: "Sixty million people are employed now, more than we ever dreamed of when we changed the law in 1939. We thought then that we wouldn't have that many employed until 1980."

"I want to cover as many people as practically possible," commented the President. "Also, I favor higher pensions, as well as benefits to disabled people."

Biggest problem, observed Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing, is providing protection for casual workers, such as domestic servants and farmhands.

"We might try the stamp system they use in England," suggested Ewing.

"I doubt that it would work here," remarked Truman. "It's a nuisance to employers, difficult to administer, and such casual employees frequently build up less credits for contributory pensions than they could get in an old-age assistance dole."

Army-Senate Politics

Pvt. Leo Christensen was convicted by a United States military court in Japan last year of raping a Japanese woman in front of her son, deliberately running down a Japanese boy with his motorcycle, and beating up a Japanese man.

He was given the death sentence for rape, murder and assault.

Then his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Deloy Christensen of Iona, Idaho, appealed to Senator Henry Dworshak, Idaho Republican and a staunch isolationist. Dworshak succeeded in reducing the death sentence to three years hard labor and a dishonarble discharge.

Later, Dworshak went to bat again, got a parole for Christensen. He is now a free man. However, the man who raped a woman, killed a boy, and beat up a civilian isn't satisfied. He now wants an honorable discharge, and Senator Dworshak has been asked to get it for him.

Forged Export Permits

The Senate Small Business Committee is ready to blow the lid off a fantastic racket in forged export licenses that has flourished under the nose of the Commerce Department.

Goods cannot be shipped abroad today without a license from the Commerce Department. Yet counterfeit licenses for shipping flour, lard and other foodstuffs to Latin America have been sold to businessmen at black market rates. Two alleged forgers—Tom Quinn and his nephew, Jack Quinn—already have been arraigned in New York.

Yet even after Jack Quinn's arraignment, he was able to obtain licenses from the Commerce Department for shipping $1,000,000 worth of goods, mostly to Cuba.

The full scope of the forgery scandal was brought out last week in secret hearings. One secret witness, Harry Levey of New York, vice president of Haro Products Co., testified that he had paid $28,000 for 14 licenses that turned out to be forged. It also developed that customs declarations had been forged as well.

The spurious licenses cover not only foodstuffs, but possibly steel which has been exported far beyond existing quotas, investigators learned. Forgeries also have been uncovered in the shipment of streptomycin to the Philippines.

Final date

I wonder how much longer I . . . Am due to be on earth . . . And what I shall accomplish that . . . Will be of any worth . . . I know what I desire and . . . What I propose to do . . . And certainly I hope to have . . . The time to see it through . . . But it can never be my choice . . . To say how many years . . . I shall be smiling to the world . . . Or joining in its tears . . . I hope the time is far away . . . When I must say good-by . . . And I shall do some good on earth . . . Before the day I die . . . I want to do the best I can . . . Before it is too late . . .
